Crime a National Issue. Vegetables Very Cheap. Flattering College Boys. Radio and Automobile.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

DEAN ROSCOE POUND, of the Harvard law school, says "crime is no longer a local affair." Crime organization, according to the dean, spreads over many states.

The main business of government formerly was to provide against foreign attack. Now the dangerous enemy is the criminal at home.

IF IT BE TRUE that gross receipts of criminals in Chicago alone amount to more than $300,000,000 a year, the United States Treasury certainly has a rival.

WHILE THE government and tariff makers are "relieving the farmers," commission men in New York last week were refusing many carloads of vegetables, because they were not worth the cost of the freight.

Farmers of Virginia, Florida, California, North and South Carolina, were the chief sufferers.

YOU CAN buy in one southern state excellent land for $5 an acre that formerly sold for $125 an acre. One young New Yorker recently bought a few thousand acres of it, for quail shooting.

Another is accumulating 200,000 acres of that land, thinking it must "come back" sometime.

AT LAWRENCEVILLE school graduation exercises, Senator Walcott, of Connecticut, a Lawrenceville graduate, told the boys:

"The only way to save our country as the leading nation of the world is by educating leaders to steer the ship of state."

Abraham Lincoln was an exception to that rule.

THE SENATOR said also:

"Learning gives a man in one year what would otherwise take twenty years to acquire."

Again, you reflect that Shakespeare, within twenty years of the average college graduating age, did some things that few could learn in one year.

It is dangerous to give boys too high an idea of their education and themselves. It sometimes takes about ten years to knock university conceit out of a boy, and make him useful.

WALTER DAMROSCH, whose admirable concerts contributed to the radio by the General Electric Company render great public service, is inharmoniously off the track when he says:

"The radio will save family life from disruption by the automobile."

Instead of disrupting family life, the automobile unites the family out of doors, as the radio unites it indoors.

A machine that enables the people to conquer the enslaving law of gravitation, making it possible for the family to be united and happy out of doors, in the fresh air, is the greatest existing influence for keeping families together.

You might as well say:

"Breakfast disrupts family life."

WISE are the British. Deserving citizens are made happy with titles, that cost nothing, and deliriously happy by giving them a garter to put around one leg and a star for their chests. Such happiness is for the upper ten.

THE LOWER 10,000 are made happy in a different way. When the Prince of Wales takes his father's place, sitting on a golden throne, he rides to the throne from the palace in a magnificent jeweled carriage. Cream colored horses drag it slowly through the streets. A servant rides on the back of each horse. There are servants sitting up in front, more servants in the rear.

THE YOUNG PRINCE, who cares little for show, probably smiles cynically as he steps into that carriage of gold, big enough to hold a hippopotamus. After the 10,000 have seen it pass they say to themselves: We have a Real King, Real Prince. And they too, are happy. That carriage, paid for long ago, costs nothing.

SENATOR HOWELL, of Nebraska, very dry, learning with grief that the British embassy has received liquors and wine from Europe, protests that foreign diplomats should not be allowed to import alcoholic drinks.

How would the dry senator feel if he were sent as ambassador to France, for instance, where nobody drinks ice water, and he were not allowed to have any ice water?

We must make allowances for semi-barbarous foreigners that do not take ginger pop with their saddle of mutton, or breakfast on buckwheat cakes, and sausages.

YACHT CRASH IMPERILS STAR

NEW YORK, June 16.—(AP.)—A sailor was drowned and 10 persons, including Claire Windsor, motion picture actress, were rescued when two yachts, one owned by Philip N. Plant, prominent Broadway figure, collided late last night three miles off Greenwich, Conn.

The Plant yacht, Loleta, on which Miss Windsor was a guest, was struck amidship by the Chandwan, III, owned by O. Chatfield Taylor.

Thrown into the water by the impact, Miss Windsor and the other passengers were picked up by the Chandwan, which cruised about the wreckage with its bow badly crushed.

Plant is a nephew of the late Morton Plant, millionaire yachtsman.

Young Pastor Drops Dead During Service

CHICAGO, June 16.—(AP.)—The Rev. Bertil Lundh, 27, pastor of Missouri Valley, Ia., stood yesterday in the pulpit of the Trinity Lutheran Church where he formerly was assistant pastor.

The Liturgical service was in progress. Suddenly the young minister pitched forward, stricken with a cerebral hemorrhage and died within an hour.

Policeman Kills Man In Detroit Robbery

DETROIT, June 16.—(INS.)—Caught in the alleged act of "cracking" a safe in a fashionable downtown department store, a man, who is believed to be W. R. Wilky, 30, was shot and killed by Patrolman Thomas Holland today. Wilky's companion was trapped in the store by police.

Stop Hiccoughs by Pressing on Nerve

CAROL RISKS HIS REALM ON MAGDA

Antagonizes Helen Anew as Plans for Mme. Lupescu To Return Stir Populace

FREDERIC K. ABBOTT,
International News Service.

BUCHAREST, June 16.—King Carol II, a little more than a week on the throne of Rumania, again today had allowed his affairs of the heart to place his position in jeopardy.

Mme. Magda Lupescu, whom Carol supposedly had given up in his return to Rumania after four years of exile, was on her way here and it was understood Carol was in open communication with her.

Queen Helen, who has steadfastly refused reconciliation with Carol, had secluded herself at Scrovistea for the week-end and conflicting reports as to her attitude were generally current.

REFUSES TO ENTER PALACE

She had refused to appear at Cotroceni Palace, where Dowager Queen Marie and Carol had arranged for a reconciliation dinner and family reunion.

It is understood Helen was disgusted over the idea of Mme. Lupescu's return under the thinly disguised patronage of Carol. The disclosure Carol and friends had purchased a house, completely furnished, for Mme. Lupescu, added to Helen's displeasure.

While the government established by Dr. Juliu Maniu, supporting Carol's dynasty, continued unshaken in its strength, there were murmurs today over Carol's course. Hope still was expressed for a reconciliation between Carol and Helen, though it seemed farther away than ever.

POPULAR WITH PEOPLE

Helen's popularity with the Rumanian populace has lent her position a certain strength that may prove embarrassing to Carol.

She came back to the city for a short time and was closeted with Queen Marie, apparently discussing Carol's attitude. She then returned to Scrovistea.

Carol, reported to have been exhausted by the rapid sequence of events coming upon the heels of his return to Rumania, planned to spend a few days at Sinaina, outside Bucharest, in an effort to gain some rest.

LAKE CARGO RATE CASE OPENED

I. C. C. Begins Hearing on Application; Chamber of Commerce Presents Views

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, June 16.—The Interstate Commerce Commission today began hearings on the Lake cargo coal freight rate case in which Pennsylvania and Ohio bituminous operators alleged the differential of 35 cents per ton is too low to permit them to meet the opposition of mines in West Virginia, Virginia, Kentucky and Tennessee.

In a petition to intervene the Pittsburgh Chamber of Commerce told the commission it was interested in the case from the standpoint of the prosperity of the community in the relationship of rates between the northern and southern fields. The chamber said its interest is based particularly on the ground that the Pittsburgh district should enjoy the full benefits of a geographical location in the fixing of freight rate differentials on lake cargo coal comprising such relationship, so that its coal industry will not be subject to any

VOTE FOR FREER SUNDAY GROWS

Results to date in the poll of Baldwin, Bethel, East Deer and Elizabeth townships will be published tomorrow.

Objection to the Pennsylvania Sunday laws is recorded by three additional boroughs, East Pittsburgh, Dravosburg and East McKeesport, filing substantial returns in the Blue Law poll of Allegheny County by the Sun-Telegraph. The votes to date from these boroughs show that each favors repeal of the law in a ratio of repeal to enforcement as follows: East Pittsburgh, 13 to 1; Dravosburg, 4 to 1; East McKeesport, 9 to 1. Their ballots are divided:

	East Pittsburgh	Dravosburg	E. McKeesport
For the Blue Laws	14	17	11
For modification	16	10	11
For repeal	151	65	133

YANKS LEADING BRITISH OPEN

HOYLAKE, England, June 16.—American golfers placed among the leaders in the first qualifying round of the British open championship here today.

W. T. Twine, British pro, set the pace with a 68 over the Wallasey course, and Leo Diegel, American pro champion, placed second by carding a 70, one under par and a new course record, at the Royal Liverpool course. Jimmy Bradbeer, a Briton, tallied a 70 at Wallasey, the easier course.

George von Elm, detroit amateur, played brilliantly to bag a 71 over Wallasey, and Bobby Jones, American open and British amateur titleholder, achieved an advantageous position by scoring a 73 at the Royal Liverpool.

Don Moe, youthful Oregonian, and Horton Smith had 75 each, and MacDonald Smith and Jim Barnes, American pros, were tied at 77.

Macfarlane 'Can't Be Bothered' on Stolen List

Judge James R. Macfarlane continued his silence concerning the work of the recount board, of which he is the official head.

After an absence of several days, he returned to the courthouse this morning. After leaving the bench at noon he was approached by a Sun-Telegraph reporter and asked:

"Has any trace been found of the missing voters' list of the Sixth Ward?"

His reply was:

"Please don't bother me. I am going to lunch."

Shaking his finger, he added:

"Put that in the paper if you want to."

The reporter then ventured to inquire:

"May I see you later in regard to the work of the recount board?"

The judge scowled, said nothing, and walked away.

Stocks Dive In Torrent Of Sales

NEW YORK, June 16.—(AP.)—Stock prices were swept into one of the most precipitous declines of the year by a torrent of selling orders today. A long list of pivotal issues established new low levels for 1930 or longer, and the selling was so heavy the ticker fell nearly half an hour behind floor transactions.

Scores of issues plunged $5 to nearly $20 a share.

By 1:30 o'clock, efforts to support the market appeared to be meeting with some success. U. S. Steel, after reacing $159.25, rallied above $160, and slight rallies appeared in several other pivotal issues.

CHICAGO, June 16.—(AP.)—All grain prices touched new lows for the year on the Chicago Board of Trade today.

Wheat sold at more than a cent under the record lows as the market opened and fell still another cent in the first half hour of trading. December corn fell to 69½. July Wheat reached 97.

Despite the break in prices the market was described as "not excited."

Billie Dove's Mate Agrees to Divorce

DELAND, Fla., June 16.—(AP.)—Irving Willat will not contest a divorce action filed against him in Los Angeles by his wife, Billie Dove, motion picture actress, he told newspapermen here.

Willat said he had not heard that his wife had filed suit until informed by newspapermen.

"If she feels it is for the best, I will stand aside," Willat said. "I am sorry, but when someone no longer loves you, it is the only thing to do."

BULLETS END RACE TO ESCAPE

Motorcycle Officer Chases Bandits to McKees Rocks; 1 Gets Away; Loot Found

Cornered by police following a fusillade of shots, one bandit was captured today after he and an accomplice had held up a bank messenger, seizing $2,250 in a satchel, and had kidnaped a motorist at points of guns, fleeing in his auto.

The machine containing the bandits and the kidnaped motorist was overtaken by a motorcycle policeman and stopped at the Chartiers Creek Bridge, McKees Rock.

As police opened fire, the two bandits leaped from the car and ran, leaving the kidnaped motorist dazed in the machine.

One bandit was traced to the cellar of a building at 131 Chartiers avenue and captured there without a struggle as he was stuffing the stolen money into the sleeves of an old coat hanging on the wall.

The other bandit eluded pursuers.

TWO STAGE HOLDUP

The holdup of the bank messenger occurred at 9:20. As John B. Stauff, 37, of 345 Jefferson drive, Mt. Lebanon, real estate manager for the South Hills Trust Company, was on his way downtown to deposit $2,250 to the bank's credit with the Union Trust Company, the two holdup men accosted him at Grandview avenue and Shiloh street.

One of them commanded:

"Stick 'em up."

As he dropped the money satchel and raised his hands, the two robbers seized the bag, then leaped into a coupe parked nearby and sped away.

CHICAGO, June 16.—(AP.)—Ralph J. Capone, brother of Al "Scarface" Capone, today was sentenced to serve three years in the Federal Penitentiary at Leavenworth, Kan., and fined $10,000 for having defrauded the government by filing false income tax returns.

He had been convicted April 25.

Charge Oversized Brick Used on Butler Job

By JOHN P. COWAN,
Staff Correspondent.

BUTLER, June 16.—Brick with a facing a half-inch greater than called for in the specifications is being used in paving Main street here, a city-state paving contract. It was charged today that despite the protest of T. C. Frame, district engineer, and merchants, represented by Mayor Joseph A. Heineman, Contractor Norman Boyer was instructed by the State Highway Department to pave the street with brick which did not comply with specifications. The brick, it is asserted, was manufactured by the Crescent Brick Company, of New Cumberland, W. Va., of which W. A. Bonitz is said to be in control. Bonitz was revealed recently as being a contributor of $97,750 to the Davis-Brown campaign fund.

State Highway Secretary James L. Stuart tomorrow at Harrisburg will hear arguments that specifications for paving brick on state-aid roads favor W. A. Bonitz, president of the Crescent Brick Company and the National Paving Brick Manufacturers' Association. The complaint will be made by Attorney E. Lowry Humes, who represents brick makers he says are excluded from bidding because only a restricted brick is acceptable.

NATION WATCHING NEW JERSEY ELECTION TOMORROW

WHITE HOUSE DISCLAIMS INTEREST

Morrow Has Betting Odds On Eve of Primary Vote; Drys Battling for Fort

By GEORGE B. HOLMES.
International News Service.

NEWARK, June 16.—A primary campaign that is expected to have a far-reaching influence upon the future politics of the nation came to an end in New Jersey today with the whole country, from President Hoover down, regarding the outcome with peculiar interest.

Tomorrow Jersey will bestow a republican senatorial nomination on either Ambassador Dwight W. Morrow, ex-senator Joe Frelinghuysen, or Rev. Franklin Fort. At the same time the Republican party in Jersey is going to commit itself definitely on the issue of prohibition.

Surface indications point to the nomination of Morrow by a comfortable margin. By the same token they point to Jersey Republicans committing themselves to the moist side of the prohibition question, for Morrow is the new hero of the liberals, however much he may personally dislike the role.

Morrow, however, will have to have some of the anti-dry strength, for Frelinghuysen also is anti-dry, after a political lifetime of dry associations.

DRYS WORK FOR FORT

Fort alone is dry and the Anti-Saloon League is laboring as it has seldom labored before to pile up a big showing for him tomorrow. From scores of Jersey churches Sunday came pastoral appeals to flocks to support Fort. The dry leaders feel that once Jersey Republicans go anti-dry, the way is opened to the Republicans of New York, Massachusetts and other important eastern states to follow suit. Hence the intensity of their efforts.

President Hoover has had an exceedingly difficult time in staying clear of this unprecedented Jersey fight.

On the very eve of the balloting he has found it necessary to again assure the voters that he has no personal interest in the outcome.

Mr. Hoover's second public avowal of his disinterestedness was necessitated by a statement made by Senator David Baird, one of Morrow's managers, in South Jersey Saturday night, that President Hoover is intensely interested in seeing New Jersey send Dwight W. Morrow to the Senate."

The Fort people immediately flooded the White House with protests. The Frelinghuysen managers followed suit. Whereupon the White House issued this:

"Several weeks ago a statement was made from the White House that the President has taken no part as between Republican candidates in New Jersey . . . That still holds good."

HUGE VOTE EXPECTED

Thus the personal desires of the President in this absorbing fight are left to the imaginations and conjecture of the politicians.

In this strange mixture of prohibition, outstanding personalities and presidential politics, the Jersey campaign came to a close today with all of the candidates claiming victory.

Douglas Thomson, state manager for Morrow, claimed the ambassador's nomination by a margin "well into six figures." The Fort and Frelinghuysen managers claimed certain victory.

The expectation is that New Jersey will cast an enormous vote tomorrow for an off-year fight, certainly half a million, maybe 1,000,000 votes are expected.

CANNON BROKER WANTED FOR SENATE QUIZ

Norris Asks for Papers On Lightening Sentence Of Bucket Shop Man

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, June 16.—Action was expected in the Senate today on a resolution by Senator Norris (Rep.), of Nebraska, ordering that Attorney General Mitchel submit all papers, documents and recommendations for the commutation of sentence of Harry L. Goldhurst, former partner in the bucket shop where Bishop James Cannon, Jr., of Virginia, held an account.

Goldhurst was sentenced to serve five years in the Federal penitentiary at Atlanta, but this penalty, it is alleged, was reduced on the recommendation of U. S. District Attorney Tuttle in New York, and others, to two years.

HEARS PAROLE PROMISED

Norris said today he understood Goldhurst also was promised parole within eight months. He declared:

"There have been rumors that certain Federal officers of high standing have been delinquent in the Goldhurst case, and that is why I am requesting all the information the attorney general has in the case. I shall ask for immediate consideration of my resolution."

The Senate also will have before it the resolution from its Lobby Investigating committee on Cannon's refusal to answer questions as a witness.

Sen. Blaine, (Rep.), of Wisconsin, is expected to move that Vice President Curtis certify the papers under seal, then send them to U. S. Attorney Rover, of the District of Columbia, for grand jury action. The committee has passed the Cannon case along to the Senate itself for action.

SEEN AS START OF INQUIRY

Norris, who is chairman of the Committee on Judiciary, which passes on all nominations by the President for the Department of Justice, is considered on Capitol Hill as having made the first move for a thorough Senatorial airing of the Cannon case. C. Bascom Slemp, former representative, and once secretary to Ex-President Coolidge, was counsel for Goldhurst until the day before Goldhurst pleaded guilty of using the mails to defraud. Goldhurst had been indicted after postoffice inspectors raided Kable & Company, which Goldhurst headed.

Slemp has denied he was present at a meeting between Cannon and Goldhurst in a New York hotel after the Kable & Company raid. Later Goldhurst and his partner, Joseph Radlow, opened another bucketshop under the name of the Cosmopolitan Fiscal Corporation, with which Cannon continued to trade. This also was put out of business for using the mails to defraud.

TAPLIN ASKS NEW TRUNK MERGER

Tells Plans for Eastern Rail System Around P. & W. V. To Commerce Commission

WASHINGTON, June 16.—(AP.)—A new plan for organizing an eastern trunk line railroad by merging several now independent or semi-independent lines was sketched before the Interstate Commerce Commission today by Frank E. Taplin.

Testifying as a witness in a proceeding by which the Pittsburgh and West Virginia Company seeks authority to control the Wheeling and Lake Erie, Caplin said he and associates were tentatively arranging a plan to arrange for a merger of both those lines and for the inclusion with them of the Western Maryland, the Wabash and the Lehigh Valley System. He said interests in control of stock of these railroads were friendly and if the system was arranged he would expect to be its operating and financial leader.

REPRESENTS NICKLE PLATE

W. A. Colston, attorney for the Nickle Plate, which now owns the Wheeling, said he understood the Pittsburgh and West Virginia is now owned by the Pennroad Corporation.

Caplin replied that he had sold about 220,000 shares of Pittsburgh and West Virginia to the Pennroad, but that he had contracts by which the road remained under his management. He believed there would be no difficulty in obtaining control of the stock which the Pennroad owns.

The new system, Taplin said, practically corresponds with the one outlined by the Interstate Commerce Commission, which proposed to include in one group all the roads mentioned by Taplin and the Seaboard Airline and the Norfolk and Western.

Taplin said he was willing to comply with any commission requirements creating a new company to lease the existing lines, or have the Pittsburgh and West Virginia exchange stock or to purchase stock of the other roads.

ADVANCES WABASH PLAN

The agreement reached between P. E. Taplin and the Pennsylvania brings the formation of the new Wabash system a step nearer completion. This system, as outlined by the Interstate Commerce Commission, will include the Great Lakes to Seaboard Line which Taplin has been trying to build around the Pittsburgh and West Virginia.

The deal also frees the Pennsylvania of the danger of getting into trouble with the government over a possible violation of the Clayton Act through its purchase of stocks of competing railroad systems, which have not been allotted to it under the general railroad consolidation plan.

Railroad men believe that Taplin, now president of the Pittsburgh and West Virginia, will, with the helf of the Pennsylvania Railroad, become the dominant figure in the new Wabash system which will operate over a greater area than any of the other four eastern systems.

PARK TO PROBE FAZIO 'FIXING'

Charges made today by Philip Fazio, who was acquitted Friday of killing William Gregory, that he had bought protection for his bootleg activities for seven years are to be investigated by District Attorney Andrew T. Park.

Fazio, who admitted making beer, was said to have declared that he had paid $10 a barrel protection, but that he had to move repeatedly because "other politicians" demanded another $5 or more a barrel.

Fazio was quoted as saying he had failed to "fix" federal agents and that one of their raids had put him out of business for a time.

District Attorney Park's statement reads:

"My attention has been called to a report that Philip Fazio asserts he has paid thousands of dollars in seven years for protection of violations of the liquor laws. The total amount was estimated at a third of a million dollars.

"Any information that he has is doubtless known to his counsel, Messrs. William H. Coleman and Frank Zappala, the latter of whom posed with Fazio for a photograph.

His statements were, therefore, evidently made under the approval of and upon advice of counsel. We must, therefore, presume that the statements so made can be substantiated by evidence.

"I shall request his counsel to meet with me in my office tomorrow morning to submit to me any facts that may be within their knowledge. If any competent evidence is presented, vigorous prosecution will follow."

Woodpeckers Put Radio Station Off the Air

WASHINGTON, Pa., June 16.—Radio station WNBO was off the air two days following the snapping of a 100-foot radio mast three feet thick. Woodpeckers drilled a hole through the big cedar pole.

The station canceled its program from 8:30 p. m. Friday night and resumed operations yesterday afternoon.

FLOODS FATAL TO 9 IN TEXAS

DALLAS, Tex., June 16.—(INS.)—Gradual recession of flood waters today marked the storm and flood crisis in Western Texas which has taken a known toll of nine lives during the past four days.

The bodies of four persons, all of one family, who were drowned when a freshet swept away their home near Goree, have been recovered from Lake Creek. They were Oscar Tidwell, his wife and their two children, Edna, 17, and Oscar, Jr., 8. Mrs. Tidwell's mother was a fifth victim of the flood.

Lightning killed Mrs. M. Durham and Mrs. Cora Whitaker at Lamesa Saturday night. The bolt injured eight others.

Knox and Haskell counties suffered most from the heavy downpour and flood waters with the property loss in Knox County estimated at $100,000. Scores of families have been forced to abandon their homes and flee to higher ground.

PAWHUSKA, Okla., June 16.—(AP.)—Bird Creek went on a rampage here following torrential rainfall, and water spread into a large section of the business district and Negro residential section. About 250 Negroes abandoned their homes.

PICK ANDERSON MURDER JURY

A jury was being selected in Criminal Court today to try Adrian Anderson, 25, of 2223 Liberty avenue, for the murder, May 11, of Edward Boswell, 34, Pennsylvania Railroad labor policeman, of the same address.

Boswell was stabbed in an argument over a card game. The case is being heard before visiting Judge Charles M. Culver, of Bradford County. Anderson is a Negro.

REOPEN BATTLE ON LAKE RATES

undue disadvantage in competition with other producing fields.

The Anthracite Institute of Philadelphia told the commission it was vitally interested for the reason that any change or adjustment which may be made in the lake cargo rates will of necessity affect the production, sale and shipment by members of the institute within the United States and Canada.

TELL OF INTEREST

The Minnesota Railroad and Warehouse Commission said the state of Minnesota, dealers citizens and industries therein, annually handle and consume large quantities of lake cargo coal shipped from docks located at Lake Superior and Lake Michigan points, and is interested in the "maintenance of just and reasonable rates from producing points in the Appalachian region and Lake Erie points." It is also interested in the maintenance of relationship in rates between the several coal regions or groups that will permit free movement of coal from all such producing points under competitive conditions.

Through counsel, the Duluth Chamber of Commerce, Winona Chamber of Commerce, Minneapolis Traffic Association and the St. Paul Association of Commerce told the commission the consumers represented by them were directly concerned in the case for the reason that they pay the transportating charges on all bituminous coal purchased by them from the producing districts to Lake Erie ports, as well as the charges from port to destination.

CONSUMERS CITED

The counsel said:

"It is to the interest of consumers that rates be so adjusted that they may have access to the greatest possible number of sources of supply for their full requirements.

"We have no desire to broaden the issues herein, but request permission to show the commission the propriety and necessity of fixing rates with the utmost regard for the interests of the consumer affected, rather than with respect to the narrow and more technical consideration involved in the controversy between the producing districts."

The Fairmont (W. Va.) Coal Traffic Bureau reported the Pennsylvania and Ohio operators were seeking to have established an adjustment of rates which will give them such an increase in the advantage they now have, as to hinder or prevent the members of the bureau from competing with them in the sale and shipment of lake cargo coal.

TWO DEAD, HEAT RELIEF DUE

Showers were expected today to break the heat wave which cost two lives and caused much suffering in congested districts over the week-end. Forecaster W. S. Brotzman said cloudiness, more pronounced this morning than for several days, likely would keep the mercury under yesterday's maximum of 87.

Heat prostration was blamed for the death yesterday in the McKeesport Hospital of James Campbell, 54, fireman on a steamboat of the Pittsburgh Coal Company. Seeking refuge from the heat, Michael Poyeen, 48, of Brackenridge, was drowned Saturday in the Allegheny River, near Brackenridge.

Poisoned Brew Kills Drinker, 1 May Die

PHILADELPHIA, June 16.—(INS.)—Two glasses of home brew that were turned into poison draughts with cyanide of potassium at the hand of an unidentified murderer brought death to one man last night, and probably fatally poisoned another. The victims were John Williams, 45, who fell dead in a chair at his home after quaffing the potion, and Jeremiah McCarthy, 28, who may die.

Aimee McPherson Fined For Customs Breach

NEW YORK, June 16.—(INS.)—Aimee Semple McPherson, Los Angeles evangelist, today paid over to Uncle Sam $138.55 in a forced adjustment of her customs declarations.

She paid the sum for failing to declare three dresses and "silk things" when she returned Saturday on the Europa after a trip to the Holy Land.

She had been told she would not have to pay duty on "worn things" and had not intended to evade payment.

Penalties, in addition to the duties, were levied against her, however. Had only the duty been imposed the amount would have been but $86.

Mrs. McPherson expects to leave tomorrow for the coast and will be accompanied by her mother, Mrs. Minnie Kennedy, who met her.

The evangelist's daughter, Roberta, remained in Ireland to visit her grandmother.

Hunger Suicide Blocked, He Shoots Himself

DANVILLE, Va., June 16.—(AP.)—Frank W. Davis, 58-year-old farmer, who recently broke a self-imposed fast of 26 days in an effort to end his life, was dead today from a shotgun wound through the heart.

Davis was found dead in his cabin yesterday by neighbors. The shotgun, which had stood at his bedside throughout his fast, was lying beside the body. A cord was tied to the trigger.

Authorities said it was a case of suicide.

Physicians said Davis had only recently returned to his cabin upon deciding to eat after authorities had threatened to have him committed for observation to the Western State Hospital for the Insane.

CHICAGO POLICE HEADS QUIT OVER UNSOLVED KILLING

OBEY PRESS AND PULPIT DEMAND

Resignations Climax Furor Over Reporter's Slaying; 'Scalp' of Mayor at Stake

International News Service.

CHICAGO, June 16.—Commissioner of Police William F. Russell and Deputy Commissioner of Detectives John Stege resigned today.

The resignations were the result of demands voiced throughout the city following a series of gang killings which culminated one week ago in the death of Alfred (Jake) Lingle, veteran police reporter.

Deputy Commissioner John Alcock was appointed immediately as acting commissioner of police, while Chief of Detectives John Egan became acting deputy commissioner of detectives.

Russell did not sever his connection with the police department entirely, retaining his rank of captain. He was a deputy commissioner when appointed commissioner by Mayor William Hale Thompson three years ago.

Whether he will return to the post of deputy commissioner or to the captaincy of a district was not immediately announced.

Commissioner Russell's resignation was made public after he had held a half-hour conference with Corporation Counsel Samuel A. Ettelson, Thompson advisor.

FOLLOWS PRESS DEMAND

During the week that the Lingle murder has remained unsolved, city officials, civic organizations, the churches and the newspapers have been demanding that the heads of the police department step aside.

Eleven murders in two weeks, climaxed by the slaying of Lingle, brought about a wave of public indignation at the entire gang situation in Chicago.

A demand may be made for the resignation of Mayor William Thompson, it was rumored.

An investigation of the police department was to be launched today by a city council committee.

HUNT LAUNCHED FOR 8 MISSING IN LAKE ERIE

Speed Boat Found Adrift, All Feared Drowned on Way to Elks' Outing

TOLEDO, O., June 16.—(AP.)—Eight Toledo men, lost in Lake Erie in the neighborhood of Rattlesnake Island, near here, yesterday, were the object of an intensive search today, with the fear existing that they might have been drowned.

Their speedboat, in which they set out Saturday for the annual Elks outing at Pelee Island, was found drifting yesterday morning off Put-in-Bay Island. In it were three life preservers and a hat.

PLANES READY TO AID

The men are Charles H. Nauts, internal revenue collector for the Toledo district; Franklin B. Jones, former member of the Lucas County board of elections; Herbert Nauts, an attorney and son of Charles; Arthur Kruse, president of the Kruse-Burman Mortuary Company; Frank Miller, former city water commissioner; Henry Heintus, assistant county engineer; John Myers, pilot of their boat, and John Hipcock.

Early today coast guards from Marblehead were leading in the search, and private yachts were ordered out to assist. Six airplanes here were to scan the locality.

MAY BE MAROONED

Although fears were prevalent last night that the men might have drowned, it was believed possible that they may be marooned on one of several of the small islands near where their boat was discovered. Friends said that they had intended stopping at one of these islands on their way to Pelee.

HOOVER O. K.; PROMISED FOR TARIFF

Defects in Bill Admitted; Promises Use of Flexible Clause of Grundy Act

By GEORGE E. DURNO,
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, June 16—Business men and politicians sat back today and waited the first effects upon industry and commerce—and the pocketbook of the man-in-the-street—of President Hoover's unprecedented Sunday announcement he would sign the so-called Hawley-Smoot-Grundy "billion dollar" tariff bill, despite its possible "inequalities" and inequitable compromises."

The measure, signed by Vice President Curtis, reached the White House today.

Politicians are waiting to see if the country at large will approve his gesture, or whether, through by-election votes and otherwise, it will favor the thought he should have vetoed it on the ground it will result in high living costs.

DEMOCRATS JUBILANT

Democrats, openly jubilant that is to permit it to become law, are just as ready to dispute the justice of those same arguments, and demand that the electorate repudiate them.

Mr. Hoover called in the press and announced his intention to sign the bill which it took Congress 15 hectic months to enact because, he said, he felt that continued business uncertainty should be dispelled.

He admitted there were many inequities in the measure.

WILL IRON OUT ERRORS

He promised to iron out these errors in a "scientific and businesslike" way through operation of the flexible clause permitting him to raise or lower rates.

The president vigorously defended the tariff bill as an aid to agriculture.

In many quarters it is held that President Hoover has staked his political future on the signing of the tariff measure.

HOLD UP BANK MESSENGER

police, and the holdup report was flashed over the teletype system.

Meanwhile the bandits stopped their coupe in Arlington avenue, leaped out and rushed across the street, where the automobile of Morris French, 28, of 170 Robinson street, was parked.

French said:

"They pointed guns at me and ordered me to drive on. hey told me to head toward McKees Rocks. On the way, a policeman seemed to recognize our car. I attempted to slow down, but one of the bandits poked a gun into my ribs and said: 'If you slow up this car, you'll be a dead hero.'"

ONE IDENTIFIED

The bandit captured in the cellar was identified by Stauff, the bank messenger, in the city detective bureau.

After the identification Stauff collapsed.

The captured man admitted that his name was Harry Andreini, 38, and that he was wanted in Columbus, O., for five robberies.

Police believe also that he is the bandit who shot Motorcycle Policeman Florence Brunner about seven months ago in Locust street, near Mercy Hospital, after a chase from a North Side holdup.

ACCOMPLICE SOUGHT

According to police records, Andreini has been a fugitive since last September, when he escaped from a deputy sheriff while being taken for bail by his attorney after appealing a conviction of possessing safecracking tools.

Following the capture of Andreini, police continued their search for his accomplice. He had fled along the Chartiers Creek after leaping from the bandit machine at Chartiers Bridge.

Police failed to obtain trace of the second desperado, but kept a squad of officers combing the district during the day.

CREDIT TO 'CYCLE MAN

Credit for the capture of the one robber was given to Pittsburgh Motorcycle Patrolman Leroy Gibson, who recognized the car in which the robbers were escaping at South Second and Carson streets.

He ordered the driver to stop, but the machine sped on. Gibson pursued, firing at the fleeing car.

At Chartiers Bridge a truck drawn across the road compelled the bandit machine to slow down. Then the two robbers leaped as Gibson continued to blaze away with his pistol.

The robbers took different directions, but police were able to trace Andreini into the cellar, where he was captured.

One of those who witnessed the bandits hold up Stauff and kidnap French was Harry Cohen, a tailor at Grandview avenue and Shiloh street.

Mrs. Luella McGarry, of R. F. D. No. 2, Glenshaw, who was visiting her sister, Miss Catherine Smith, of 115 Grandview avenue, also saw the bandits draw guns on French and drive away with him.

SCORE SEE CAFE OWNER SLAIN

CHICAGO, June 16.—(AP.)—Another North Clark street restaurant—The Villa Rica in the 2500 block—saw murder done early today when two men, probably robbers, slew Christ Petras, night manager.

Twenty persons witnessed the shooting. Two men entered and engaged Petras in conversation over the counter.

Suddenly Petras' hand reached below the counter and came up with a pistol. He fired twice and missed. One of the men snapped a gun from his pocket and shot Petras down.

The Moran gang massacre of Valentine's Day, 1929, was in a garage near the Villa Rica.

PLANE CRASHES KILL THREE

POTTSTOWN, Pa., June 16—(INS.)—Jessyl Johnson, 24, of Philadelphia, is dead and Milton Fritsche, 24, of Merion, Pa., in a critical condition in Pottstown Hospital today as a result of an airplane crash on a farm four miles southwest of here yesterday. Their Waco biplane went into a tail spin and fell approximately 30 feet.

Fritsche, struggling to release himself from the wreckage, urged rescuers to devote attention to Johnson. They were rushed to Pottstown Hospital, where Johnson was pronounced dead. Both fliers were classmates and graduates of Pennsylvania State College.

HORSE CAVE, Ky., June 16.—(AP.)—Marvin Mayfield, 21, Horse Cave, and Lemuel Timmons, of Nashville, Tenn., were killed in an airplane crash three miles from here. The pilot, J. Plummer, Piqua, O., was critically injured.

Air Fires Needless, Pittsburgher Says

STATE COLLEGE, Pa., June 16—(AP.)—Fire hazard, the bugaboo of aeronautics, can be overcome and development of aircraft increased through the use of heavy oil burning engines, E. E. Wilson, of Pittsburgh, said at the closing session of the third national meeting of the oil and gas power division of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers.

There are two ways to use heavy oil as fuel for aircraft engines, he explained, one through injection of fuel into the cylinder and the use of the Diesel engine cycle; the other is injection with the use of the Otto cycle now used in gasoline engines. Of the two processes, Wilson favored Diesel.

Boy Ill of Typhoid, State Seeks Source

Attaches of the State Health Department today were investigating the source of typhoid fever of which George Spencer, 12, of 7408 Perrysville avenue, Ben Avon, is seriously ill at his home. The boy became ill Memorial Day.

So far no pollution has been found in tests of water and milk, health officers say. The boy, according to his parents, had not eaten or drank anything other children did not have.

Film Shows in Parks Begin July 13

Movies—$10,000 worth of them—will be shown free to the people of Pittsburgh in six parks, beginning July 13, Mayor Charles H. Kline has announced.

Last year the pictures were contributed by motion picture concerns and were shown by volunteers from the Motion Picture Operators' Union. Two new parks have been added to the list this year, Arsenal playground and Washington Park playground. The other four are Schenley, Highland, McKinley and East parks.

Mayor Kline obtained the appropriation in his budget because of the success of the program last year.

TREATY'S FOES DEFENDED

WASHINGTON, June 16—(INS.)—Controversy between the Senate and the administration over the London naval treaty flared anew today in the wake of violently conflicting assertions of Secretary of State Stimson and Senator Oddie (Rep.), of Nevada, a treaty opponent.

Stimson, in a radio address over the week-end, branded naval officers who testified before Senate committees considering the treaty as "untolerant and narrow."

Oddie, in a vigorous denial of these charges, expressed resentment to Stimson's charges, and declared the naval officers were called not at their own request, and only gave the facts as they saw them.

The Senate Foreign Relations Committee, meanwhile, continued consideration of the arms liquidation agreement, intent on approving and reporting it favorably to the Senate during this week.

Accused of Fighting Arrest, Man Injured

Overpowered when he resisted arrest, police said, Dudley McDonough, 54, of Thirteenth street, North Braddock, today was in the Braddock General Hospital suffering from a probable fracture of the skull.

Patrolman William Smith, of North Braddock police, arrested McDouough near his home late last night, but although handcuffed, according to a police report, the prisoner staged a prolonged battle. Smith was struck repeatedly about the face and body before McDonough was subdued, police said.

WEATHER BALKS BROCK, SCHLEE

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., June 16—(AP.)—William S. Brock and Edward P. Schlee, Detroit fliers, postponed until tomorrow their scheduled round-trip flight to San Diego, Cal., after conferring with weather observers.

They were scheduled to start their flight early today, but the weather map showed conditions would be bad in Southern and Western states.

While repeated showers fell and the skies were overcast, the fliers went ahead grooming their monoplane for their attempt to break three records in crossing the continent.

They hope to set speed marks on their flight to California, on their flight back and for the round-trip from the Atlantic to the Pacific seaboards.

PLANE WRECKS CAR, KILLS 3

CHICAGO, June 16 — (AP) —Failing to gain altitude in its takeoff, a National Guard pursuit plane yesterday plunged into a small sedan on a crowded suburban highway, killing three occupants and critically injuring a fourth and members of the family.

The plane piloted by Lieut. Wilson N. Newhall of the Illinois National Guard, who saw service as a war pilot in France, had flown from Chicago to the Roxy Speedway near Hammond, Ind. A heavy rain left the field in a soggy condition, slowing the plane in its takeoff. On the fourth attempt Newhall left the earth and plunged down the line of automobiles, missing three of them. The propeller of the ship tore into the fourth car.

Mr. and Mrs. Peter Brockman and their 2-year-old granddaughter, Virginia Sterling, were instantly killed. The Brockmans' daughter, Mrs. Ernestine Sterling, is in a Hammond hospital in a critical condition. All were from Chicago.

Lieut. Newhall and his mechanic, Sergeant James H. Van Meter, suffered only slight injuries. They were held by Hammond police pending an inquest.

GIVES GIRL GUN, FATALLY SHOT

CHAMBERSBURG, Pa., June 16 — (AP) —The friendship of Jacob F. Kennedy, 68, for Ruth Elter, 13, indirectly cost him his life. A .22 caliber rifle which he had given the child and in the use of which he was instructing her, was accidentally discharged while she was using it Saturday night and Kennedy was instantly killed.

The girl and her sister, Bernice, 9, are daughters of Edward Elter of this place, and had returned from the movies with Kennedy, a friend of their father.

The children had finished shooting and Ruth was testing the rifle to see whether all the cartridges had been fired. The last one was discharged as Kennedy walked in front of her.

Illness Halts Trip Of War Mother

PARIS, June 16 — (AP) —Mrs. Sarah Ann Loomis, of Grand Rapids, Mich., American Gold Star Mother, who is visiting in France, has been taken ill with a severe cold and is in the American Hospital.

She is expected to be able to renew her pilgrimage to the grave of her war dead within a few days. She is the fourth Gold Star mother to become ill while in France. The other three either have or nearly have recuperated.

Instalment Convict Jailed Each Sunday

OMAHA, Neb., June 16 — (AP) —T. J. Rehak is serving a five-day jail drunken driving sentence on the instalment plan.

Rehak told Judge Holmes that if he had to go to jail for five days he would lose his job, with the result that his wife and four children would suffer. Judge Holmes is permitting him to serve the five-day sentence by going to jail on Sundays.

Man Badly Hurt By Distant Blast

CONNELLSVILLE, Pa., June 16 — William Baer is in Connellsville State Hospital with injuries to the head and body as the result of a premature explosion of a dynamite charge at the Casparis plant of the Youghiogheny Crushed Stone Company. Although 200 feet from the blast, he was thrown with such force that it is feared his skull may be fractured.

black cat, with white whiskers and white paws.

She says the white whiskers and paws give the cat's owners good luck. In 1930, that amuses everybody, including Lady Wilkins.

A thousand years earlier, ravens flying in the wrong direction might turn back an army from its purpose. A great battle was about to start when an eclipse of the sun caused both armies to go home.

NEW YORK is big in many ways. It will have this year 825,000 licensed automobile drivers, 110,000 more than last year. The traffic problem may solve itself by making traffic impossible. It is hard for city officials anywhere to think as fast as the automobile industry grows.

Automobiles are now building at the rate of only 5,800,000 a year, even under depressed conditions. Six millions probably represents the minimum necessary to replace obsolete vehicles among 25,000,000 cars now running and gratify the creditable desire for the latest model.

Battle Bacteria With Donahoe's Buttermilk

7c Large Glass

Everybody is battling bacteria all the time. They have a way of getting into the alimentary canal.

There's an old saying of "fighting fire with fire," so we battle bacteria with bacteria.

The lactic acid in DONAHOE'S Buttermilk contains bacteria which will fight for you if you give them a chance.

One glass three times a day will work wonders. A glass a day is better than none, but, remember, every army needs replacements and reinforcement.

DONAHOE'S Buttermilk is the richest, creamiest cold anywhere—it is a REAL food — wholesome, nutritious. You can take it home in a quart container, 17c.

TEST ON OCEAN POWER NEAR

MATANZAS, Cuba, June 16.—(AP.)—The plan of a French scientist of harnessing the Gulf Stream and converting its warmth into energy sufficient to turn the wheels of industry was declared nearing the stage of a practical demonstration.

After years of costly experiments Prof. George Claude said he has completed a tube 1,700 yards long which he soon will lower into the sea to serve as a pipe line from the Gulf Stream to a power plant he has erected at his laboratory along the gulf shore here.

His theory is that the Gulf Stream waters, being subjected to vacuum, will rise to the boiling point and produce steam sufficient to turn great turbines for generating electrical power.

The tube will rest in a channel on the bottom of the sea. A year ago Claude submerged a tube of smaller proportions and lesser strength but it was rendered unserviceable by strong under currents.

Priest Sings First Mass in Beaver Falls

BEAVER FALLS, Pa., June 16.—The Rev. Kenneth Fee, son of Mr. and Mrs. John P. Fee, of this city sang his first mass in St. Mary's Church here yesterday. Visiting priests were present from the Beaver Valley and Pittsburgh. Father Fee was ordained a week ago at Victoria, Kan.

Priests assisting in the celebration of the mass were the Very Rev. Herman Seidel, archpriest; the Rev. Stephen Schneider, deacon, and the Rev. Joseph Hochbert, sub-deacon. Frank Maetin was master of ceremonies. The Very Rev. Thomas Petrie preached the sermon.

Mother of Five Killed in Crash

WASHINGTON, Pa., June 16.—Mrs. Eva I. Small, 43, wife of W. I. Small, of Riverview Hill, near Monongahela, was killed yesterday afternoon when the automobile in which she was riding with her husband and five children went over an embankment east of West Middletown.

Two children were injured, Fannie, 15, and Frank, 9. The other children, Julie, 10; Wilda, 8, and Priscilla, escaped as did Small.

The Cape Mode Is Lovely
Pattern 1953
Sun-Telegraph 15c Practical Pattern

By ANNE ADAMS.

Combining the chic of pointed details with the charm of the cape collar, this ravishing summer frock would become any figure. There are long sleeves with the pattern if you prefer them. The narrow fabric belt ties in front in a pert knot.

Pattern 1953 makes up beautifully in flat crepe, shantung, georgette or chiffon. The color successes of the season are yellow, turquoise blue, rose and all the pastel shades. A solid color or a print may be selected with equally delightful results.

May be ordered only in sizes 14, 16, 18, 20, 32, 34, 36, 38, 40 and 42. Size 16 requires 3⅞ yards of 40-inch material.

No dressmaking experience is necessary to make this model with our pattern. Yardage for every size, and simple, exact instructions are given.

Send FIFTEEN CENTS (15c) in coins carefully wrapped, or stamps, for each pattern. Be sure to write plainly your NAME, ADDRESS, STYLE NUMBER and SIZE wanted.

Our BOOK of PATTERNS for adults and children, also transfer patterns, is FIFTEEN CENTS, but only TEN CENTS when ordered with a pattern. Address all mail and orders to Sun-Telegraph Pattern Department, 243 West Seventeenth St., New York City.

WARNS AGAINST PRISON EVILS

BOSTON, June 16.—(INS.)—An emergency exists in connection with prison systems in every state, Dr. Walter N. Thayer, superintendent of Maryland prisons, told the closing session of the National Conference of Social Work. He declared:

"Old and inadequate structures, in many cases devoid of necessary fire protection, are being crowded to more than double their capacity by the influx of prisoners sent in for long sentences as a result of repressive legislation and state and Federal efforts to enforce the prohibition law.

"In only a few prisons do authorities have a knowledge of which men are defective delinquents, those whose unstable minds may be led to put the torch to the institution at any moment.

"A lack of knowledge and a sense of fear and responsibility unnerving at best led those officials to demand a building program based on the theory that the whole prison population is unsafe unless locked within four steel walls.

"Unless careful co-operation between architects and far-seeing administrators is brought about, five years from now there will have been used up all over the country all available funds on buildings suitable for less than one-half of the prison population."

In a flood of revealing light your skin can be flawlessly lovely to kindle devotion in close observant eyes.

Every Woman must face her own particular Close-up Test

SMOOTH SKIN instantly attracts, say 45 Hollywood directors

A GIRL'S lovely skin is an instant attraction. A whole audience is swept by enthusiasm when the close-up brings the radiant loveliness of a star near to them. And every woman must meet the scrutiny of close appraising eyes. Does your skin quicken the heart with its loveliness like Clara Bow's, Betty Bronson's, Janet Gaynor's? It can.

In Hollywood—on Broadway—in Europe the favorite beauty care

Clara Bow, the bewitching little Paramount star, beguiling Betty Bronson, Janet Gaynor, the beloved Fox star, are among the 511 of the 521 important actresses in Hollywood who jealously guard their smooth skin with this fragrant white soap. Their enthusiasm has made it official in all studio dressing rooms.

Broadway enthusiastically adopted this famous Hollywood beauty care and the lovely stage stars are so devoted to Lux Toilet Soap that it is in 71 of the 74 legitimate theaters in New York.

And Europe! In France, in England, in Germany the beautiful screen stars insist on this soap for their beauty.

MARY BRIAN, beloved Paramount star, says: "It's a wonderful soap!"

DOROTHY SEBASTIAN, exquisite M. G. M. star, says: "I owe the beauty of my skin to Lux Toilet Soap."

ADDING to Milady's beauty has become one of the nation's major industries. Today there are salons and parlors where expert hands tend to the setting of Madame's coiffure, where agile fingers knead Madame's face in an invigorating massage, where scientific preparations renew the beauty of the hungry skin. It is all-important that you seek out the more reliable of these shops. That you entrust your greatest asset—beauty—to experienced hands. Thus, we suggest that you patronize those establishments who advertise in the Sun-Telegraph. Their reputation is solid. They are the masters of their profession. So that you may easily use their messages as a guide, we have grouped them every Sunday in the Society Section of the Sun-Telegraph. In these masseurs, barbers and beauticians you may place the utmost confidence. They are Sun-Telegraph advertisers, and are endorsed by the Sun-Telegraph.

5 DEAD AFTER SHOOTINGS

COLUMBIA, Tenn., June 16.—(AP).—Five persons were dead today in consequence of a shooting near here Saturday night. Mrs. Josh Dycus, 70, died yesterday in a hospital from a fracture of the skull, caused when she fainted and fell, on hearing the shots that ended the lives of her daughter, her small grandson and her son-in-law.

Parker Steward, 26, his wife, Mrs. Myrtle Steward, 23, and their son, Leo, 5, were shot and killed at their Lewisburg pike home by Jack Williams, 45, a brother-in-law of Steward. Williams then returned to his home and committed suicide.

Steward had operated a store for Williams. The store was destroyed by fire a few nights ago. Officers said the shooting resulted from an argument over proceeds of the fire insurance.

GLIDERS UNDER U. S. CONTROL

WASHINGTON, June 16.—(AP.)—Gliders, like airplanes, will be regularly subject to federal license after October 1. Clarence M. Young, assistant secretary of commerce for aeronautics, announced preparation of regulations defining the legal types of gliders which will be afforded the license and which air navigators will have to use unless they confine their sport within the limits of a single state, where federal supervision cannot extend.

All gliders built before October 1, if they pass an inspection of the department, will be licensed forthwith. Those manufactured after October 1 will be required to meet certain standards of construction to promote safety and efficient operation.

U. S. Deputy Shot In Dry Arrest Dies

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., June 16.—(AP.)—R. L. Hughitt, deputy United States marshal for the Eastern District of Tennessee, shot after arresting Harrison Welch on a charge of violating the prohibition law, died in a hospital here.

Welch has been charged with murder. He will be prosecuted in the state courts, United States Marshal Insle King said.

Mrs. Scott Again Named D. A. R. Head

WAYNESBURG, Pa., June 16.—Mrs. Kenneth W. Scott, for the past two years head of the Greene County Chapter, D. A. R., has been re-elected regent. Others elected were Mrs. R. P. Downey, honorary regent; Miss Louise Hook, first vice regent; Miss Mollie Knox, second vice regent; Mrs. William Gates, secretary, and Mrs. William Zahnizer, treasurer.

PINCHOT CITES LUZERNE FRAUD

WILKES-BARRE, Pa., June 16.—(INS.)—Attorneys representing Gifford Pinchot today were expected to ask Luzerne County Court to open the ballot box used in Larksville's Ward at the primary election May 20.

The court also was expected to order the corrected vote in six districts where recounting has been completed to pave the way for final certification of the election by the county commissioners.

The order was ordered in the decision handed down by the court in banc last Friday which refused the petition of the Francis Shoemaker attorneys to have the ballots cast out in 374 precincts where mutilated ballots were used.

The 374 in Larksville vote was impugned. Saturday and petitions of three qualified voters who charged irregularities and fraud. The vote was 286 for Brown and 51 for Pinchot, the gubernatorial candidates.

2 DEAD, 6 HURT IN 4-CAR CRASH

CAMDEN, N. J., June 16.—(INS.)—The wedding plans of one couple today have been brought to an end and the honeymoon of another climaxed in an automobile accident on the White Horse pike near Lawnside in which four cars were involved.

Violet White, the bride-to-be, and her fiance, Ivory Saulders, 28, both of Haddon Heights were the victims. Saulders was killed almost instantly. Saulders died later.

Lucille Vanderbilt, Philadelphia suffered a possible fracture of the skull. Joseph and Marie Gerbasi, both of Atlantic City, Mrs. Estelle Gilmore of Merchantville, Robert L. Hudson and Lester Gore both of Philadelphia were injured.

Gore was returning from Atlantic City (Gerbasi) was en route to the resort. Their machines met head-on.

Hudson, accompanied by Mrs. Gilmore, crashed into the two wrecked cars a few minutes afterward. Then a Philadelphia truck piled into the wreckage.

CHURCHES PLAN EVANGELISM

A county-wide program of evangelism to carry on the work of recent Pentecost observances was launched last night at a meeting of more than 1,500 members of the Churches of Christ throughout Western Pennsylvania, in Soldiers Memorial Hall. The principal speaker was the Rev. C. C. Crawford, director of the Christian Evangelistic Society of Allegheny County, sponsor of the gathering.

Other speakers were W. H. Hanna, the Rev. R. E. Snodgrass, the Rev. H. A. Denton and the Rev. Basil Holt. More than 150 elders and deacons officiated at the communion service which closed the meeting. A. A. Hibler pronounced the benediction and the Rev. J. L. Fisher the invocation.

BABY DESERTED, WOMAN SOUGHT

Police today were conducting a search for a young woman who abandoned a baby boy, about two weeks old, at the home of D. F. Robinson, of 607 Lincoln avenue, yesterday.

The woman, police said, called at the Robinson home and went out with the excuse of making a phone call, leaving the baby. When she failed to return, Mrs. Robinson became alarmed and notified police at the East End station.

The child was taken to the Rosella Foundling Asylum. A description of the missing woman was broadcast throughout the city.

MOONEY'S FATE HINGES ON PAL

LOS ANGELES, July 16.—(Universal.)—Pardon for Thomas J. Mooney and Warren K. Billings looms as practical certainty if the California Supreme Court recommends executive clemency for Billings.

"A recommendation by the Supreme Court favorable to Billings would be extremely persuasive," was the significant statement made by Gov. C. C. Young. "I shall act promptly when the Supreme Court submits its recommendation."

Fate of Mooney and Billings sentenced to life imprisonment for murder in connection with the bomb outrage of the Preparedness Day parade in San Francisco in 1916, are indissolubly linked in the mind of Gov. Young.

GETS JAIL IN BOGUS STAMPS

Ike Danovitz, a partner in the Feitler Bottle Company, today pleaded guilty to possessing 39,700 counterfeit strip revenue stamps seized in a raid March 28, 1929, at 1713 Our way and 815 Locust street, and was sentenced to serve one year and six months in a federal prison. The sentence is to run concurrent with a sentence of one year and a day imposed last November on a similar charge.

Danovitz recently lost a decision in the United States Supreme Court when that body ruled legal the seizure of 57 truck loads of bottles, casks and other containers.

REPORT GAIN IN EMPLOYMENT

WASHINGTON, June 16.—(INS.)—There was slight change in employment in the combined 13 industrial groups surveyed by the Bureau of Labor Statistics in May as compared with April, it was announced today. Reports to the Labor Department from other sources indicate an improvement in employment conditions, notably in the building trades. Federal, state and municipal construction work has increased.

Employment in the iron and steel industry remained practically unchanged. The combined total for the 13 groups, with 5,063,416 workers earnings $135,496,232 in one week, showed 0.9 per cent fewer employes and a decrease of 1.2 per cent in payroll totals in May.

Six of the 13 industrial groups reported increased employment in May as follows: Anthracite mining, quarrying, electric railroads, telephone and telegraph, power-light-water plants, and crude petroleum production. The seven groups reporting decreased employment were manufacturing, bituminous coal mining, metalliferous mining, wholesale and retail trade, hotels and canning.

Idaho Youths Made Buddhist Monks In Weird Rites

SAN FRANCISCO, June 16.—(AP.)—Two Boise, Idaho, youths ordained as Celibate Buddhist monks, today began accomplishment of their avowed ideal, bringing the East and West into closer relationship.

The ordination ceremony, said to be the first in the United States, was conducted yesterday in the Sen-Buddhist temple by Hyogen Senzaki, Buddhist monk and teacher.

As he held a knife poised over the neophytes to symbolize the cutting away of worldly desires, L. A. Colburn, 21, and F. M. Ormsby, 25, became Mokusai and Koun.

3 HELD IN BURKE GANG CLEANUP

DETROIT, June 16.—(INS.)—Three alleged members of a band of terrorists, which formerly was captained by Fred Burke, Benton Harbor policeman slayer and Michigan's notorious "gentleman crook," are held by police today, and 11 accomplices are being sought.

Commissioner of Police Thomas C. Wilcox says the arrests will clear up 16 kidnapings during the past two years here.

Those held are Harry Hallissey, 33, alleged blind-pig operator, the "master mind;" Stanley Delong, 37, and Ben Rubenstein, 38. Delong's wife was arrested, but probably will be released.

The gang is said to have been recruited by Burke.

We Now Present

By DARRELL V. MARTIN,
Radio Editor.

SUNNY LANDS, DANCING GIRLS, tangos and castanets—these pictures will be conjured tonight by the General Motors Family Party in a program of Spanish vein featuring Countess Olga Albani, soprano.

The Countess a native of Barcelona, Spain, will do three numbers. The first "Princessita" is a love song by Padilla, also the composer of "Valencia." Her second number is "Seguidilla" by Manuel DeFalla, most distinguished of living Spanish musicians.

A selection avoided by most singers because of its unusually fast tempo, "Valverde's" "Calveltos" "Carnations" will be her final song. A Spanish program would hardly be complete without "LaPaloma" which will be played by the Marimba group.

"Drink to Me Only With Thine Eyes," "In a Monastery Garden" and "The Morning of Love" are magnets of the Columbia Male Chorus on WJAS at 10.

"On Lucindy" and "When I'm Looking at You" will be sung by Wendell Hall for Sign of the Shell, WCAE at 10:30. "Should I" will be a piano duo.

Jesse Crawford's program on WJAS at 10:30 is scheduled to open with "Poet and Peasant Overture."

Pittsburgh educators are said to be studying the centralized radio systems installed in high schools at Scranton, Wilkes-Barre and Allentown. The Scranton system is the largest in the United States with loud-speakers in 78 classrooms.

SPICY

A literal butler introduced Earl Spicer at a big reception in London as the "Earl of Spicer."

Emilie W. Sturtevant, subbing for "Miss Elsie" at KDKA, started in radio taking notes for the bosses at WBZ, later turned the tables and dictated notes as program manager.

Clinton A. Cornelle, the veteran "Uncle Toby" of Ringling's, will desert the big tent long enough to speak on Glenn Rigg's "Morning Parade" over KDKA tomorrow at 9 a. m. His subject, "Back Stage."

* * *

Although radio has made him wealthy, Wendell Hall still likes to tinker at his automobile in overalls. His wife, Marion Martin, former girl reporter on a Chicago newspaper, handles his publicity.

VOILA!

Two downtown announcers who had the habit of exchanging pleasantries in French and Spanish so that their roguish conversation could not be understood by other employes, have become ardent students of German. All because a demure little stenog entered the conversation the other day in both languages—almost as if she were absent-mindedly commenting on the weather.

The getting of Mrs. Waltz down to bring Billings from Australia and the subsequent efforts spent trying Elmer Thumbscrew will be the drama.

Elmer's finger nails are prominent requisite every day, he has used an entire bottle of varnish on his nail and in lieu of a more romantic instrument has taken to piking sentimental ballads on his mouth organ.

Grand Tarot is found and disgusted at this exhibition of susceptibility in his pal. Aunt Martha is throwing over Elmer's improved appearance while Uncle Matt laughs the whole affair off as puppy love. Private Eisner's dog, however, feels neglected for the first time in his life.

GRIGSBY RAKES RADIO 'TRUST,

CHICAGO, June 16.—(AP.)—Charging that the Radio Corporation of America and certain associated companies are "engaged in establishing a monopoly of every phase of the radio art," B. J. Grigsby, chairman of the board of the Grigsby-Grunow Company, yesterday announced that his company had resigned as a member of the Radio Manufacturers' Association.

The announcement was made in a formal statement in which Grigsby also charged that the Radio Corporation and "associated companies" are preventing an active stand by the association on issues vital to the radio industry.

Declaring that the United States attorney general has filed a petition asking for a dissolution of the radio trust, Grigsby said that the Radio Manufacturers' Association takes the position that it cannot do anything which would interfere with its members, which he charges are establishing a monopoly.

The Radio Manufacturers' Association has a membership of about 250, consisting of manufacturers of radio sets and radio parts. The Grigsby-Grunow Company is one of the large manufacturers of complete radio sets.

In a sea captain it's Vigilance

in a cigarette it's Taste

ETERNAL VIGILANCE—taking nothing for granted . . . leaving nothing undone—that's the mandate of the sea. Exacting laboratory research, rigid production standards . . . endless care—that's Chesterfield's watchword.

MILD, AROMATIC TOBACCOS, patiently aged, are the basis of Chesterfield's wholesome goodness. Chesterfield's blend and cross-blend retains and rounds out their appetizing spice and flavor.

CHANCE PLAYS NO PART in keeping them true to their course—the safe, satisfying course of . . . "TASTE above everything".

We state it as our honest belief that the tobaccos used in Chesterfield cigarettes are of finer quality and hence of better taste than in any other cigarette at the price.

MISSIONS CALL 'IDEAL GIRL'

EAST ROCHESTER, N. H., June 16.—(AP.)—The "ideal American girl" intends to enter the missionary field in India because "it affords the greatest opportunity for service to those who wish to help others."

Alice M. Thompson, 22, daughter of the Rev. Roger E. Thompson, pastor of Bethany Methodist Episcopal Church here, was given the title at the Sesquicentennial celebration at Philadelphia. Spurning all offers to commercialize her fame, she completed her education at Ohio Wesleyan University, from which she was graduated last week.

She has taken up her new duties as secretary and director of religious education in the Oak Lane M. E. Church, Philadelphia. Her goal, she said, was the foreign missionary field, particularly India.

A brother, the Rev. E. W. Thompson, has preceded her in the missionary field, being stationed in Japan.

Franklin Youth Wins Dual Honor at Yale

NEW HAVEN, Conn., June 16.—(AP.)—Arthur Edward Palmer, Jr., of Morristown, N. J., was accorded the major honors in the senior class vote of Yale College.

The New Jersey youth, a letter man in football and rowing, was voted the most versatile man in his class, the most admired, and the best all-round athlete. The senior class of the Sheffield Scientific School named Samuel Plumer McCalmont, III, of Franklin, Pa., varsity oarsman, who was designated as the man who has done more for Yale and as the hardest worker.

"KONJOLA DID ME MORE GOOD THAN I HOPED FOR"

Man Tells How Rheumatism, Neuritis and Stomach Ailments Were Banished Through Power of New Medicine.

Though it may often appear strange, it is still true that Konjola, the most highly praised American medicine, has won many of its outstanding triumphs over the ailments of the aged. Ailments that had hung on year after year, defying and resisting all measures taken for relief. Yet this does not appear so remarkable after all, when one considers that Konjola is a scientifically blended compound of 32 ingredients, 22 of which are the juices of roots and herbs long known for their medicinal value.

MR. FIRMON J. JONES

A real test of Konjola in stubborn cases should consist of a treatment over a period of from six to eight weeks. The first bottle should begin the work of cleansing the system. As the treatment is continued, the poisons responsible for rheumatism and neuritis are eliminated and Nature is free to begin her work of restoring abundant health. The case of Mr. Firmon J. Jones, Scenery Hill, Washington, near Pittsburgh, clearly illustrates this point. The Konjola Man at the Dow Drug Store, Penn Avenue and Sixth Street, Pittsburgh, knows of many such cases. See him today and get the whole story. Here is the experience of Mr. Jones:

"I am 71 years of age, married, and have lived at Scenery Hill for the past seven years. I read the statements in the newspapers of the good results people were getting from Konjola. I suffered from stomach trouble, rheumatism and neuritis, on and off, for twenty years. Konjola did me more good than anything that I have ever taken. My stomach bloated and filled with gas after each meal, and I had smothering spells at times. The rheumatism was mostly in my arms and shoulders, although it seemed to be all over my body at times. A ten-day treatment of Konjola last fall gave me wonderful results. It removed the gas and bloating and drove the pains of rheumatism from my system. I have told many people about Konjola and I cannot say enough good about it."

And so it goes—Konjola contains no alcohol, no nerve-deadening drugs, no heart-depressing chemicals; it is all pure medicine and every drop works.

Eaton Suspects That Anne Thinks of Marriage

CHAPTER X.

A day or so later Eaton, at his desk, heard someone enter Anne's office and found himself listening shamelessly when the sound of a vibrant masculine voice reached his ears through the half-open door.

"Is the chief available, Anne?"

"No," Anne replied, "not until after lunch. He has an appointment presently and isn't to be disturbed until then."

"All right, it doesn't matter. I'll see Mr. Sanders. The voice lowered a little and Eaton discovered that he was straining his ears to hear. Are you going with me to the Lindstrom party tonight?"

"No, I'm sorry, Ted. I'm going to work."

"You always have an excuse! I never see you any more, Anne. I'm sure I don't know why I waste my breath asking you," marveled Ted gloomily, "as I'm practically certain to get the air."

"Why not take Polly?" suggested Anne, and chuckled faintly—so faintly that Eaton did not hear, but O'Hara did.

"Well, why not?" was Ted's defiant reply. "It's an elegant idea. She likes to go out and she's darned good company."

"Meaning that I am not?"

"Anne, you know how I feel—as if anyone could take your—"

"Oh, run along," Anne told him. "I was only joking. Go on there's a boy. Tell the Lindstroms I'm awfully sorry, but I've promised to stay here this evening."

There were sounds of departure, but presently the voice spoke again, this time from the door, Eaton judged.

"Sure you won't reconsider?"

"Perfectly. Go ahead and have a good time, Teddy."

"But, Anne—there was a note of pleading in the voice—am I never to see you?"

"You see me now, don't you? and I'm awfully busy." Then she added: "Don't look so crushed, and come to dinner Sunday night."

Eaton Summons Anne

Somehow, Eaton could visualize her warm smile as she spoke and knew a curious resentment. Ted's voice reached him again, no longer overcast.

"I'll be there. Don't you dare call it off!"

A few minutes later Eaton called Anne from her work. When she appeared:

"Someone to see me just now, Miss Murdock?" he inquired guilelessly.

"Mr. O'Hara. I told him you were busy. He's gone in to Mr. Sanders. Something about the Parker copy, I believe."

"I see. He's a clever lad," Eaton mused aloud. Then he looked at his secretary and smiled. "I'm sorry. I couldn't help overhearing. I'm afraid I spoiled your evening."

"No," Anne assured him. "It's quite all right. I the Lindstroms give lots of parties. I can always go."

"Well, I suppose I'm a selfish brute. I never stop to think what your plans may be." Suddenly he asked, taking her completely by surprise as he had intended, "You and O'Hara are pretty good friends, aren't you?"

Anne nodded. She was furious with herself because she could not control the hot tide of color that flushed her cheeks to scarlet. That childish trick of blushing when off her guard was the bane of her existence. And she could not know how attractive it was to the man who watched her intently.

"We—I've known him ever since I came to the agency," she explained.

"I see. Next time when I ask you to stay don't hesitate to tell me if you have an engagement," he told her, and dismissed her with a smile.

Afraid of Losing Anne

But he did not forget. And during the afternoon, happening to be with Sanders, he spoke of the young man.

"O'Hara's coming on well, Sandy?"

"Sure. Why not? He's a good kid and a hard worker."

"He was in Miss Murdock's office this morning. They seem to know each other rather well," suggested Eaton.

"Oh, that? He's been crazy about the girl ever since she first caught his Irish eye," Sanders answered indifferently.

"Oh! Well, one can't blame him," Eaton answered, and went out, leaving Sanders to stare after him thoughtfully.

Back at his desk Eaton swore silently. It was as Jameson had warned him, apparently. He wouldn't be able to keep Anne with him much longer. If it wasn't O'Hara it would be some one else. That was the worst of women secretaries—the good-looking ones! No sooner were they trained to satisfaction than they exchanged the typewriter for the mixing spoon. Things were arranged most unfairly in the business man's world.

He had planned for some time to delegate to the efficient Miss Murdock more important duties. But why bother now? Perhaps, after all, a man secretary or an older woman whose time wouldn't be taken up by the interruptions of love-sick boys.

He knew that he was unjust. It could not be said that Anne had encouraged O'Hara to "hang around her desk," as Eaton put it mentally. But unjust or not, the fact remained that he had hung around this morning, and perhaps on previous mornings, not to mention the likelihood of mornings to come.

There was no harm, thought Eaton, wondering why he was so disturbed, in keeping an eye open for interesting likely people just in case.

He could return Anne to Sanders' office on her present salary, of course. And then it would be Sanders who would have the pleasure of wishing her godspeed when she decided to change a business career for one of domesticity.

The remainder of the day went so badly that at closing time he told Anne he had decided not to work that evening and added that he hoped she could rearrange her plans.

Strange Visitor

She said coolly that she could, conscious of an unspoken challenge in his regard. However she made no attempt to telephone O'Hara but went home instead to wonder what had happened to her employer's usually even temper.

A few days later a well-dressed, good-looking young man marched into her office.

"Richmond is my name," he announced. "I have an appointment with Mr. Eaton at 10:30."

Anne looked at her pad. The hour had been left blank. She was aware of no such appointment. Nevertheless she rose and went into Eaton's office.

"A Mr. Richmond to see you, Mr. Eaton. He says he has an appointment."

"Quite so," Eaton answered. "send him in."

And Anne, returning, ushered the mysterious stranger into the office.

"Miss Mackaye sent me——" began Richmond at once.

"Sit down," Eaton interrupted hastily, and Anne turned back to her office and proceeded to ponder.

The plot thickened. Miss Mackaye? Of the Secretarial Employment Agency?

A little later, as Richmond passed through on his way out, she heard Eaton's parting words:

"Nothing yet, you understand. Miss Mackaye told me that you were comparatively satisfied with things at present. However I'll let you know."

It occurred to Anne that her employer sounded relieved, as if Mr. Richmond had been too brisk and self-assured.

Fears Losing Position

During the course of the next week various other strangers wandered through Anne's office, more alert young men, a middle-aged gentleman and one elderly woman. It therefore became apparent to Anne that Eaton was interviewing possible secretaries.

She was angry and she was amazingly hurt, as well. If he was not satisfied with her, why didn't he tell her? Why resort to this underhand—yes, it was underhand!—method of replacing her? What sins of omission or commission had been hers? It wasn't fair, she thought, her mind aching with speculations, her heart heavy with fear and a sense of betrayal.

Perhaps, she thought wearily, it had been too easy—the years of congenial work, the eventual, apparently logical reaching of the goal ambition had set her.

She was abstracted at home, cool to Ted when he came to see her and unwontedly sharp with Kathleen, who had taken to borrowing money from her. "I must dress, Anne. I can't get ahead unless I have proper clothes. I have to be seen about town with Lola and her crowd. I can't look shabby."

When Anne gave her sister money for the third time in as many weeks she was not sympathetic.

"I'm awfully sorry to keep touching you," Kathleen told her with fleeting compunction, "but it isn't as if you hadn't something put away."

"I know I have. But I'd like to keep it," Anne informed her. "There's nothing to this business of living up to every cent you earn. I've managed to save my rise and buy clothes and incidentals and give mother what's due her."

"But she doesn't demand it," Kathleen said. "She and dad get along beautifully. It isn't as if you had to help."

"It's just because she doesn't demand it that I want to," Anne replied. "I like her to have something extra. I wish she'd spend it on herself. If I weren't living at home, Kathleen, I'd be paying rent somewhere."

She drew a deep breath. She—oh, she didn't want to desert her people, of course, but to have a place of her own, a small place with a little beauty in it, a quiet place, seemed more than ever a dream of heaven.

Now, faced with the fear of losing her position with Eaton she was unhappier than she had ever been in her life. If she had gained the promotion merely to lose it again, she might as well never have left Sanders'. He'd liked her work and said so, and she might have stayed with him forever.

Gets a Present

Apparently, for a little added prestige, more exciting surroundings and a ten-dollar rise she had imperiled her present and future safety.

But the thing that cut was Eaton's attitude. He might have told me, she kept repeating to herself. "It isn't like him. He might have told me."

On Christmas Eve day Anne found a box of candy on her desk with Eaton's card slipped into the bow. She looked at it dully, her eyes filling with tears.

A box of candy! It represented so many pounds of cold poison if he had given it to her knowing that in the course of time—tomorrow, next week, a month hence—he intended letting her go.

Just before the luncheon hour Eaton called her to him, and she found him frowning at a scribbled slip of paper.

"Miss Murdock, I wonder if you could help me out here?" he said, and flicked a finger at the slip.

She looked at the slip, a scrambled affair. Names and addresses written in a firm hand, with penciled notes after each, wavering and question-marked.

"Christmas gifts," explained Eaton with a groan. "Mrs. Eaton attends to our mutual friends and the servants, but these are acquaintances, business associates and the like to whom I give personally. I've made some suggestions but you needn't follow them. Here's a list of the shops in which I have accounts. Could you take this afternoon to buy the things and see that they're sent by special messenger?"

"I'd be glad to," she said, but her tone was cool and he looked up ruefully.

"I'm sorry I always do things like this at the last minute," he said and then asked with the first note of personal interest in his voice that she had heard for some time: "Get your own shopping done all right Saturday?"

"Yes, thank you." Annie answered, thinking of the crowds and the press and the weariness of that afternoon.

Then she picked up the list: candy, flowers, books and hosiery for the few women on it. Ties and socks, cigarettes and cigars for the men.

"I'll go right from lunch," she told him. "It needn't take long."

"I don't know what I'd do without you," he commented, forgetting he had been planning to do without her for all time.

"Mrs. Eaton has so much to do for Christmas. I can't burden her with this, and I can't get away myself. Miss Andrews has attended to it for some years."

He looked at her and smiled and drew a breath as if a load had dropped from his shoulders.

"I don't know how I'd get along," he said again.

With this for encouragement Anne took her business life in her hands. It might not be ethics, but her future was too important for her not to take the risk. She asked quietly:

"Mr. Eaton has my work been satisfactorily?"

"Perfectly," he replied and looked at her first in astonishment, and then in misgiving.

Eaton Embarrassed

"I suppose I shouldn't say anything"—Anne twisted her hands together with sudden nervousness — "but I couldn't help knowing that you have interviewed secretaries lately. One—a woman—asked me things. And I thought if my work wasn't satisfactory, perhaps you'd tell me now before you—"

He was as embarrassed as she was, and interrupted quickly: "I didn't go about it very well did I?"

There was something so absurdly crestfallen in this question that she had to smile, and Eaton smiled back and went on:

"Your work has been splendid, Miss Murdock. I couldn't ask for better. But frankly, I understand you were thinking of making a change yourself, and so I thought—"

He broke off. He couldn't say, "It was gossip, perhaps, but forewarned is forearmed." Nor could he tell her honestly: "You're much too pretty to waste your youth in an office."

"I? A change? asked Anne in astonishment.

"Thinking of getting married," he explained. "Of course it was to be expected. You're young and"—before he was aware of the indiscretion, the truth had slipped out—"so very pretty," he ended and halted, annoyed at himself as he waited between fear and hope for her answer.

"But I haven't the least idea of getting married!" repudiated Anne, wanting to laugh, feeling her heart lighten to a featherweight, wanting to remember what he had said. "And so very pretty," he said.

"You're not—engaged or anything?"

"Of course not. I—I shan't get married, ever!" announced Anne extravagantly.

Eaton drew a tremendous breath of relief and found himself able to laugh at her, to tell her: "Come, you don't mean that!"

"Yes, I do. Why, I like my work, Mr. Eaton," Anne told him, breathless with earnestness. "I'm an idiot over it. I like it so much, and I wouldn't exchange it and my independence for any man living!" she cried. "I can't imagine why you'd think such a thing!"

"Oh," said Eaton, "that's an old challenge! Still, if you assure me that marriage isn't in the immediate future for you I'll have to let the challenge go unargued."

"Well," Anne told him, "if I ever go crazy and change my mind I'll tell you first 'way ahead of time."

"Good!" he said heartily.

It was their first purely personal conversation. Each was aware of it. Anne rather tremulously. Eaton with a sense of mounting excitement, or was it just—business interest?

Anne Sees Ted

After a moment he told her: "I am selfishly glad, of course. Please forgive my leaping at conclusions, won't you? And in turn I promise there won't be any more interviews. I couldn't stand any of 'em, anyway," he confided youthfully, experiencing a sense of happiness which transcended his natural relief at not losing a good secretary.

Anne went back to her work. It had been office gossip. A foolish mistake—a canard. He liked her work; he wasn't going to let her out. Suddenly Christmas was really Christmas and not just another holiday.

At luncheon time she put on her things and sailed forth to snatch a sandwich and a glass of milk, and to do the chief's shopping. She accomplished this accurately and swiftly, and was amused to admit to herself that it gave her a definite kick to sail into the shops, place her orders, demand special service and instruct the salesman to "charge it, please."

But she didn't forget the source of her worry and misgiving, and she reminded herself that she must speak to Ted. He came to her home for Christmas dinner, but she had no opportunity to speak to him alone. But several evenings later, when they were at the theater, that opportunity arrived.

"Ted, you'll have to stop coming to my office except for honest-to-heaven business reasons."

"Now why that edict, Anne?" he demanded.

"People are talking. I won't have talk. I hate it. And besides, you interrupt my work."

"Anne, you're darned hard on a fellow!"

"No, I'm not—and if I am," she said inconsistently, "I can't help it. I won't have people gossiping about us, Ted. Now don't start a discussion. The curtain's going up."

Time Heals Every Tragedy but Death of Loved Ones, Says Fay King

IF YOU CAN JUST PULL THROUGH THE TOUGH BREAKS, YOU'LL LIVE TO LAUGH OVER THEM SOMEDAY!
"HA, HA, HA! I DON'T BLAME YOU!
EVERY TIME I THINK OF IT NOW, I HAVE TO LAUGH!
TIME IS THE GREAT CURE-ALL THAT TURNS TEARS TO LAUGHTER!
FAY-KING

By FAY KING.

WHENEVER an old gang gets together, the talk naturally turns to old times.

And what a lot of uproarious laughter there is as one incident recalls another.

The funny part of it is that the telling, which is greeted with hilarious laughter, is often something that at the time it happened was considered somewhat of a tragedy.

The despair of being fired from one's first job, which turned out to be really the first step toward one's ultimate success.

The heartache of one's first love that seems so comical now. That's what time does.

And so it is with things that worry us now.

Nothing—except the death of dear ones—matters as much as we make it matter at the time.

Love's Reawakening

Continuation of Loves Awakening

Court-Martial of Junior Is Interrupted by William

I halted abruptly on my way to the door with Junior as I caught the look of frightened horror in the eyes of the two older Harrison boys. I could not in the least understand it.

The answer to my question was not left to my imagination. At my halt, William sprang toward me.

"You're—you're not going to punish the way my mother used to are you?" he demanded. "She—she never did—that to—Roderick. He—doesn't know—and you shan't—you shan't—"

What do you mean, you young—" my husband was beginning but I interrupted him decidedly.

"Please keep Junior here for a minute or two," I said decidedly. "I know what this means, and I must see William alone."

"You need not be afraid, William," I said softly. "Come into the library with me, and I will explain everything to you at once."

But even as I put my hand upon the door knob, it rattled from the other side and the door swung open, disclosing my mother-in-law's distinctly wrathful figure.

"What is going on here, and why did you not come back to tell me of it?" she demanded, but this time I dared not wait to placate her, and basely deserting my husband, I murmured, "Dicky will tell you," and drew William hastily past her, not stopping until we were in the library with the door closed upon us. From the living room door I had heard my mother-in-law's voice intoning "Richard!" in her most august tones, and knew that my hapless husband would have his work cut out for him. But I also knew the desperate need of quick reassurance to the trembling boy for whom I just had pushed forward a chair.

For a sudden rush of memory had brought to me the meaning of William's brain storm. Again I saw the terrified faces of Mary and her brothers when upon the occasion of Elizabeth Harrison's only visit to the farmhouse, Dickey's sister bade her little daughter come with her for "a talk." Upon the surface it had seemed an eminently reasonable command, but my mother-in-law added to my amazement at the children's patent terror when she forbade Mary to go, and informed her daughter that if "there was any more of this," she was going to talk to William." The threat was evidently a potent one, for Mrs. Harrison at once rescinded her command,—but cut short her visit to the secret relief of all of them.

At first I had been completely bewildered by the incident, for Mrs. Harrison frequently had announced her belief in the theory that children should never be punished, but should work out their own individuality. This theory she carried out as far as any annoyances to the rest of the family were concerned, but I had noticed vaguely that her own comfort and belongings were never disturbed by her children.

I never had been certain of the explanation, but from my mother-in-law's shamed half-confidence and my own observation I had guessed that Elizabeth Harrison was cursed with a love of cruelty which had brought her perilously near to insanity.

The Marry-Go-Round

By HELEN ROWLAND.

Running True to Type

Love and marriage are two things in which few women and almost no men ever profit by experience.

* * *

"If I had it all to do over again, I'd never marry!" Or, "I'd never marry a blonde—or a dumb-bell! Or a playboy, or a woman-hater—or a poor man!" These are the refrains we constantly hear from those who are having love-trouble.

Oh, yes, you WOULD! You'd do precisely what you did before! And, if you get out of this scrape, you'll promptly get into another, exactly like it.

We love according to type. A strong, self-reliant woman marries a handsome, worthless weakling, not by accident, but just because she prefers a decoration to something useful—something easy to something strong and independent. She divorces a heart-collector, only to marry a dancing toy, or a chair-warmer, or a spoiled "mother's darling."

A fine, sensitive man marries a frivolous little dimwit—and if he ever escapes from her, he straightway marries another lightweight, or a mollusc or a gold-digger, who bores him or two-times him.

And then they blame it on "Fate"!

Recently, a writer told a tear-jerking story of a serious, charming man with high, romantic ideals, who was "wrecked" by three women in succession. The first, a dancer, who double-crossed him; the second, an artist's model, who deserted him; and the third, a prize-winning beauty, who threw him over. And, all the time, he was loved devotedly by a square little thing, who stood by him, but whom he just couldn't SEE. She wasn't his TYPE!

"Fate?" Of course, it's fate! Your fate is decided at your birth, by your common sense and your romantic preferences. By your instincts and tastes. If you're born to be stung, you'll never be happily married.

* * *

A man's taste in women and a woman's preference in men are, like genius or a short nose or a club foot, something with which that man or that woman is born, and which can never be changed.

Reducing the Arms

Massage for reducing the arms does no good if it is surface treatment. It must be heavy enough to break down fat cells, and to so stimulate the blood streams that they will pick up the corpses of the fat cells and carry them away. The object of all kinds of exercise is to increase the blood supply, to encourage it to carry on.

Tell It to Sally

By SALLY MARTIN

Does Marriage Any Longer Exist After Love Has Gone?

She knows that her husband doesn't love her anymore.

She not only knows that—she is aware that he loves another woman. It isn't one of those furtive, lying affairs. He and his wife were at outs before he ever met the other woman. And he and the other woman have tried repeatedly to leave each other. And he has frankly told his wife of the whole situation. But still she hangs on, like a terrier to an old shoe—and has hung on, for five humiliating years, refusing to give him his freedom.

He has offered to provide handsome alimony and to see that she and their children want for nothing. Even her own mother has advised her to let him go. But her constant answer is—"NO! If I can't have him, no other woman shall."

Would that be your answer, if you were in her shoes?

It's an amazing letter—for the story is told by the Other Woman — and through her frank, miserable words, one sees the whole stark tragedy of thwarted love and bitter, bitter hate.

"Dear Sally:

"Won't you please give your opinion of my problem? There are three of us in particular, who are deeply interested in what you have to say, and I have an idea that a lot of other people will be interested, too.

LOVES MARRIED MAN

"I am 25 years old, and I am deeply in love with a man who is married. It is just the same sort of case that you have heard about hundreds of other times, I suppose. I have been going with him for five years now. I didn't want to fall in love with him in the first place, although I did know that he and his wife were at outs with each other even before I knew him.

"I've tried to keep away from him, but it really seems to be the real thing with both of us, and I just can't bear it to be without him, and he feels the same way about me.

"His wife knows all about us, but although she didn't have any use for him before he knew me, she positively refuses to give him up . . . that is, to give him a divorce. He has offered to give her all his money and wants to put their two children in a boarding school to receive a proper education, but his wife refuses to consent to what he wants to do.

TOLD SHE IS FOOLISH

"He has tried to use both fair means and foul to get her to give him a divorce, but there is no reasoning with her. Her own mother told her she was foolish and urged her to free him, but no one can budge her or change her way of thinking, it seems. She even attempted to commit suicide to try to force Howard to love her. And when she failed in that she even went so far as to be mean to their children to force him back to her that way.

"What shall I do? I love him, and I can honestly say that we've both tried to separate, dozens of times, but failed.

"It has been terribly hard on all three of us, and there just seems to be no solution to the problem. I hope you will answer this, as she, as well as he and I, are anxious to see your reply. So won't you please help us? Give us your opinion? Do you think she should hold onto him like that? And what can I do?

"Katherine."

LOVE TRAGEDY

A miserably tragedy—you've probably seen the like a dozen times, in your own life. Is that tragedy helped by this wife's refusal to give this man his freedom?

I'm asking you. I want your opinion. This time you're going to give the verdict, not Sally.

Does marriage any longer exist when love has gone?

Is there any sacredness, any dignity, any decency, in such an unwilling bondage?

Is it good for the woman, or the man, or the children? Is it good for the nation, which allows a woman to hold a man against his will? Is it any better, or any different, than actual slavery?

No, I'm not defending the other woman. This problem exists in thousands of cases where no other woman is involved. It isn't a question of a man liking someone else better than his wife—it's a question of whether one human being has the right to hold another human being in unwilling wedlock.

Perhaps you're a wife. Then you're probably strong for this wife's "rights." But suppose the case were reversed. Suppose this husband were trying to hold a wife whose love had died? Would you still believe in compulsory marriage?

Send in your votes—and let's see whether the world agrees with you.

Tomorrow's Horoscope

Tuesday, June 17.

A rather adverse state of affairs may be presaged from the conflicting lunar and mutual aspects, although this does not apply to personal conditions, which are under a benefic rulership. There is a menace of subtlety, slander, or sharp practice. Care should be taken with all writings and contracts and new undertakings practically safeguarded.

Those whose birthday it is may enjoy a pleasant and substantially prosperous personal life, during the year, but business is beset by the menace of slander, intrigue and trickery.

A child born on this day may not have any liking for conspicuous achievements, and may incline to be subtle and crafty.

BELGIANS PLAN SALOON PARTY

BRUSSELS, June 16.—(Universal)—Because their politicians "drink wet but vote dry," Belgium's saloonkeepers have decided to organize a party of their own.

Unless an eleventh-hour decree of the government irons out the harshness of Belgium's dry law, 100,000 saloonkeepers say they will elect colleagues at the next general elections.

The Saloonkeepers' League sent open letters to this effect to all party chiefs in an effort to gain the adoption of an anti-dry amendment in Parliament.

Although light wines and beers are not banned, distilled liquors like whisky, brandy and gin may be consumed only in privacy and must be bought in quantities of two quarts or more. Hard drinking has been conquered, it is held by adherents of the dry law.

While Belgium, partly dry since 1919, has lost 50 per cent of its saloons, the dry law has given birth to a new and harmful species, the "private club," akin to America's "blind pigs" and "speakeasies."

Fascist Leader Leaves Vienna

VIENNA, June 16.—(AP.)—Maj. Waldemar Pabst, leader of the Austrian Fascist Heimwehr, has appealed against the government order which expelled him as an undesirable, but his plea was rejected. He was released from police custody, however, and left in an airplane with his destination announced as Venice.

Pabst was a leader in the Kapp Putsch of 1920, which overthrew the Ebert government in Germany.

EXPERTS START CANCER STUDY

BALTIMORE, June 16.—(AP.)—Armed with microscopes and prepared for a three-day review of cancer research at Johns Hopkins University, 50 pathologists from 35 states met here today.

Dr. Joseph Colt Bloodgood, internationally known cancer authority, in discussing the meeting, said necessity for training pathologists so they may recognize cancerous tissue under the microscope, and the need for a stain that will make cancerous tissue indubitably identifiable will be the two principal themes of the meetings.

Pennsylvania has the largest representation at the meeting.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Normal Expectation of Life Should Be Yours

Conditions of city life today are directly related to the health of the people. The stress and strain of business life, overwork, fatigue, worry, these are factors that have direct bearing on the development of certain diseases. One of these is commonly called "arteriosclerosis."

DR. COPELAND

This is a disease in which the outer walls of the arteries become hardened. There is an increased growth of the connective tissues which hold the cells together. This tends to stiffen the walls of the arteries. Or the absorption of salts of lime make rigid or stiff the walls of the arteries, diminishing their elasticity.

There may be softening of the inside walls of the arteries. Then any unusual strain may cause a break or tear, and a hemorrhage may follow.

The arteries of the extremities, especially the toes, may be involved. The arteries of the brain may be the seat of trouble. After some unusual strain a break occurs, and a hemorrhage or apoplexy follows. This often occurs among the aged.

The pronounced symptoms are fatigue, nervousness, loss of hearing, defective vision, difficulty in breathing, swelling of the legs, or headache. Failure of mental powers is noticed, as well as irritability.

Arteriosclerosis is often accompanied by high blood pressure. Overeating is one of the chief causes of ill health. Temperance in eating will do a great deal to diminish the blood pressure.

Why is it that so many people fear dreadful things just because they have been told they have high blood pressure? It may or may not mean a thing.

A blood pressure of between 120 and 150 is looked upon as "normal." As a matter of fact, there are many persons past fifty who sometimes run a pressure of 150 to 160, and are still considered "normal." Even if your blood pressure goes up to 200, it does not mean that your case is hopeless.

Careful living, a limited diet, temperance in drinking, attention to bowel elimination, gentle exercise and cheerfulness of mind, will surely have their good effects on the health. These are the factors of right living that will enable you to live out the normal expectation.

I have no question that physical neglect is a great factor in these cases. But teeth and tonsils, as well as other infections, may end in hardening of the arteries. You must give heed to early symptoms of local or general ill health.

Early attention will reduce the dangers and chances of arteriosclerosis. It pays to be careful.

Answers to Health Queries

C. V. B. Q.—What causes dizziness?

A.—Dizziness may be due to a circulatory disturbance, to an eye or ear condition or to some intestinal disturbance. An examination will determine the exact cause and then definite treatment can be prescribed.

T. E. S. Q.—I sleep without a pillow, yet find that I sleep with my mouth open, which causes sore throat. What would you advise?

A.—Your trouble may be due to enlarged tonsils or to a possible obstruction in the nose. Have an examination so that definite advice may be outlined.

ALICE B. Q.—I am a girl of 20 and have noticed that my eyes have a tired, puffy look for the last year or so. I usually have eight hours' sleep every night and drink plenty of water during the day. What would you suggest?

2.—Is it harmful to eat just before retiring.

A.—This may be due to a number of conditions. Have your kidneys examined to make sure they have no bearing on the trouble. Also keep your bowels open.

2—Yes.

MRS. O. H. B. Q—My husband is fond of hot peppers. Are they injurious or harmful in any way?

A.—Highly seasoned foods or condiments are injurious to the stomach and indigestible in most cases.

Auto Purchases On Credit Gain

WASHINGTON, June 16.—(AP.)—Installment selling of automobiles in the United States continues to hold up in volume during this year better than do sales on outright payment. Commerce Department returns from finance companies assisting such transactions show that credit sales of used cars during April, amounting to 161,604 machines actually exceeded the 154,843 cars sold in similar fashion during the same month last year.

SLEUTHS CRIME POSE TRAPS 4

PHILADELPHIA, June 16.—(AP.)—Posing as visiting holdup men looking for "triggermen" to help in a proposed bank robbery, four city detectives lured four alleged members of a bandit gang into a trap and arrested them after obtatining purported confessions of recent robberies and one murder.

The prisoners gave their names as Richard Kay, 39; Herman Zussman, 21, and his brother, Alexander, 18, and Norman Murdock, 31.

From Herman Zussman, police said, they obtained the confession of the recent killing of Miss Anna Thumm, slain in her store and robbed of $35.

For days, the detectives said, they mingled with suspected men and heard their boasts. When they told Kay of their desire to hire gunmen, they reported, he took them to Murdock, who recommended the Zussman brothers for the job.

Fractured Ankle Set, Patient Walks Away

Cleveland, O., June 16.—(AP)—Forty-five minutes after Dr. Lorenz Boehler, director of the Vienna Accidents Hospital, Austria, started to set a fracture dislocation of the ankle under local anesthetic, the patient could walk across the room and up and down three flights of stairs.

The demonstration of this unusual surgical operation was made at Mount Sinai Hospital here at a fracture clinic. If the patient had been treated by the usual methods of employing a general anesthetic he would not have been able to walk within three months, it was said.

Dr. Boehler injected novocaine between the fractured ends, set the bones, took an X-ray view, placed the foot in a plaster cast and the patient walked away.

WAYNESBURG, Pa., June 16.—The county convention of Christian Endeavor societies has been postponed until June 24-25, it was announced here.

ARABS PROTEST EXECUTIONS

JERUSALEM, June 16.—(AP.)—Some Christian and nearly all Moslem shops closed yesterday following the Arab executive's proclamation of a strike to protest the execution of three Arabs next Tuesday for their part in the Arab-Jewish riots last summer.

Nearly all denominations in Palestine have joined the Arab appeal, and it is understood that a last minute effort has been made to get the Zionist executive to move for a reprieve.

An Arab paper at Haifa says that if the execution is carried out "June 17 will become a day on which a spark will be kindled not only in Palestine but throughout all Arab countries. We do not say this as a phrase but as advice to the government in avoiding disturbances."

HOLLYWOOD AND BROADWAY GOSSIP; ALSO REVIEW OF NEW TALKIE

Movies Offer Spectacle Of Ruth Chatterton In Actress Role

By HARRISON CARROLL.

(Copyright 1930, by Premier Syndicate.)

HOLLYWOOD, June 16.

THE SPECTACLE of one of America's finest actresses portraying another should put plenty of punch into a film.

This is on schedule when Ruth Chatterton goes East to do "The Royal Family" for Paramount. As anyone can tell you, this play is a thinly disguised take-off on certain members of the Barrymore clan. Ruth will play "Julie," and Fredric March is to do "Tony." Of course, these are the names of comedy's characters.

March was seen here in the stage play. In fact, it was his performance in the role that set the movie producers after him in full cry.

Miss Chatterton

At the moment, it looks as if "The Royal Family" will not be photographed until September and then at the Paramount Long Island Studio. Ruth Chatterton is appearing currently in "The Better Wife," under the direction of the screen's foremost woman director, Dorothy Arzner. Due to an attack of influenza before the picture started, Miss Chatterton has been working and resting alternately. When I was on the set the other day she was wearing a blonde, tight-fitting wig and looked mighty charming. Husband Ralph Forbes was in attendance, having dropped in for a chat between shots.

BEFITTING JOKES

The irrepressible Eddie Cantor (a column-writer's blessing upon him) says that he has been congratulated on his appearance as master of ceremonies at the opening of Marion Davies' new talkie, "The Florodora Girl."

"The picture was about the Gay Nineties,' explains Eddie, "and everybody said my jokes fitted the period perfectly.'

OLD TIMERS GATHER

Next Wednesday morning at the Breakfast Club, which is a Los Angeles institution dedicated to early morning ham and eggs and to the entertainment of celebrities, there will be a reunion of many of the living members of the cast of "The Birth of a Nation," D. W. Griffith's famous epic of the screen.

These film folk of the early days will do honor to "D. W.", who is embarking on what some of us think is a hazardous task—the revision of the great picture to include sound and dialogue.

H. B. Walthall

AMONG THOSE PRESENT

Among those attending will be Mae Marsh (the little sister) who has quit the screen to devote her full time to being Mrs. Lee Arms. Mary Alden (the mulatto girl), Marion Cooper (Flora Stoneman), who still appears in the films; Spottiswood Aitken (Colonel Cameron), now an invalid in a Pasadena sanitarium; Donald Crisp (General Grant), who's become a director; Joseph Henaberry (Abraham Lincoln), now a producer-director; Henry B. Walthall (the little colonel), who is working in the talkie; Walter Long (Gus, the colored soldier), also a talkie actor; Ralph Lewis (the elder Stoneman, father of Elsie), who's in a Paramount picture, and Elmer Clifton (Young Stoneman), a director.

THREE HAVE GONE

Three famous members of the cast, Wallace Reid (the blacksmith); George Seigmann (Lynch, the mob leader), and Robert Harrow, have died.

Whatever sentimental memories may be violated by tampering with the film there is no question of it's being a financial success. Last year Marion Davies sponsored the revival of silent pictures here as a charity benefit. Helped put these pictures on, and I can vouch for the fact that crowds packed the theater to see "The Birth of a Nation." They still cheered the ride of the Clansmen, which was the most stirring chase scene of its day. Some people drove all the way down from Sacramento to get another glimpse of the film.

The only picture that drew an equal crowd was Rudolph Valentino's "The Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse."

PUPPETS OF STARS

Down on Olivera street, a narrow lane leading off the old Los Angeles Plaza, a group of young men called the Yale Puppeteers are attracting a large patronage from the film colony. They call their miniature showhouse the Teatro Torito, and they give performances with puppets.

Several nights ago, I saw Colleen Moore, Ben Bard, Ruth Roland, Theda Bara, Elsie Janis, John Loder and Leatrice Joy in the audience.

In the intermissions, the young producers devised a number of rhymes about the stars out front. As a special attraction, they had puppet images of the film folk come out and recite. A replica of George Arliss in Disraeli was master of ceremonies. Colleen Moore's tiny double sang a song, also Leatrice Joy. There were imitations of Greta Garbo, huskily thanking Eugene O'Neill for giving her a fine screen vehicle in "Anna Christie," and Jetta Goudal.

The Teatro Torito is only one of the establishments on Olivera street that the film people like to visit. There is a new Spanish restaurant where you get the hottest tamale ever dished out, and where you can see the biggest stars in Hollywood take a bite and reach for a glass of water. The whole street is a colorful fragment of old Mexico, sidewalk markets and all. It is one of the most picturesque spots in this city.

WALTER WINCHELL On Broadway

Things I Never Knew Till Now

That the holes and other designs in Swiss cheese are produced by the liberation of gases generated by bacterial action during the process of fermentation. Whew!

That champagne is best after eight years (up to fifteen), but is seldom good after two decades.

That the late Jake (Chicago Trib) Lingle was the admitted original of the police reporter in Maurine Watkins' play, "Chicago," and that he abetted La Watkins in the concoction of that hit.

That most of the pins are made in England. Birmingham alone has an output of 40 million daily.

That Yonkers is where there once was an old tavern known as "The Sign of the Cock's Tail," and that it was there they first prepared a blend of wines which in varied form has been known as a "cocktail" to successive generations the world over.

That Col. Adler has forbidden his female employes to smoke in the N. Y. Times restaurant, but the outsiders may still blow smoke at 'em.

That bananas are much more digestible when cooked.

That on the odd numbered side of Broadway, near Chambers street, a sign on a new bldg. states it will be 270 Bway.

That the now popular neon lights are the exact idea that Edison used in his first electric bulb.

That Mae West is a sissy compared to "Lysistrata."

That you can walk along a third rail without being electrocuted, but don't let anyone shake hands with you.

That the Chicago theater box-office treasurers are unionized and Chicago has no ticket problem.

That nearly every club in New York is "in the red" and their executives are wondering how to remedy matters.

That one of the famous femme authors and book reviewers was once a waitress and chambermaid in the hinterland.

That at least seven well-known magazines are for sale and we don't mean on the newsstands, you dope.

That Sharkey, who had the worst sort of "breaks" the other night, wears a small solid gold boxing glove on his watch chain for "good luck." It was given to him by Dartmouth students.

That there actually is a Scot named Bill Miser.

That Amos 'n' Andy were offered three million dollars by a movie firm "to stay off the air for one year." Which was snubbed, however.

That when you take out rain insurance, you only collect the expenses incurred, not what you might have profited.

That a Spanish monk who went to Mexico discovered that the Aztec women were the first gum-chewers—using chicle which came from the sapota tree, in Mexico, Venezuela and British Honduras.

That when a Broadway bad man says "he's on the Erie," he means that there is an eavesdropper near.

That Judge Shane says that the flood of books called "Ex-Something-or-other" is topped by Bill Hanomann's "Ex-Book," which "puts the bee on the ham and ex racket."

That not one witch was ever burned to death at Salem. Most of the witch craze victims were hanged or jailed.

That one day a few weeks ago not a single piano was sold in any store in Manhattan.

That the letters SOS are the international radio distress signal, but they have no verbal significance. There is a popular but erroneous notion that these letters mean "Save Our Souls," "Stop Other Signals," "Send On Succor" or "Save Our Ship."

That it costs Vincent Astor $1,600 daily to run his yacht, which is a little more than you make in a week.

That Ewing Herbert, publisher of the Hiawatha (Kan.) World, and a columnist of 40 years' experience, says: "The column in which the writer is given free rein in saying what he thinks is the safety valve of journalism. Such a column gives the average newspaper a chance to avoid responsibility for many things it would like to notice which are prohibited by policy from use in the regular columns.

"There is a lot of vanity in columning, however—the columnist is the peacock of journalism. He struts and preens and continually is swishing his tail in the face of his readers. But, like baseball teams, columnists have their slumps and cannot ring the bell every day."

Swish! And ting-a-ling!

Westinghouse Man Transferred East

R. L. Davis, engineer in charge of radio development at the East Pittsburgh plant of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company, has been named manager of the radio engineering department of the Westinghouse Chicopee Falls, (Mass.) plant, it is announced. E. Trouant has been appointed to the radio engineering position at East Pittsburgh made vacant by the transfer of Mr. Davis.

WELCOME HOME!

Louis Mann and Clara Blandick welcome back their screen son, Elliot Nugent, in this scene from "The Richest Man in the World," a new talkie soon to be released.

VOLCANO NEAR ERUPTION

MEXICO CITY, June 16.—(Universal.)—Popocatepetl, Mexico's tongue-twisting volcano, is on the verge of a fresh eruption today, scientists have disclosed.

The seismologists base their assumption on investigations of the recent crater activity of the volcano. While they attach no danger to the expected activity, they believe the volcano is now reawakening and may again become quite active.

Important changes have taken place in the crater bed of Popocatepetl, it was established by investigators and excellent airplane photography.

Danger is slight, seismologists say, because the crater is not of the kind easily choked.

Wilkinsburg Post Prepares for Fourth

Captain John M. Clark Post, No. 305, American Legion, has launched plans for its third annual Fourth of July celebration to be held in Wilkinsburg. Beginning next week, members of the post will call on citizens of the borough for subscriptions to aid the event. An extraordinary program is promised for the event.

W. C. T. U. to Hold All-Day Meeting

The W. C. T. U. of Wilkinsburg will hold its annual all-day meeting in the First Presbyterian Church Wednesday with the president, Mrs. H. P. Meeds, presiding. Reports will be heard in the morning and a memorial service will be held during the afternoon. The election of officers also will take place.

P. & L. E. Holds Eye, Ear Tests

The biennial ear and eye examination of the Pittsburgh and Lake Erie division is under way and employes of the shops at McKees Rocks are undergoing the tests. Two special cars have been placed in the yards for the examinations.

Forbes School Holds Annual Picnic Today

Pupils of the Forbes School, their teachers and parents were scheduled to hold their annual outing at Kennywood Park today, with free tickets, transportation and refreshments. DENNY TRAMPS INTO CHAUFFEUR'S JOB IN HARRIS

By CLARENCE E. GRUNDISH

"What a Man," is the new talkie in the Harris. And Reeginald Denny is the man.

The picture has a millionaire's wife with a hobby of collecting hoboes and thereon hangs much of the story.

Denny starts out by riding on a train. Then he follows the Open Road as a tramp for about 300 feet of film. The rest of the time—or most of it—he appears as a chauffeur. And the finale finds him in the arms of his wealthy employer's daughter. And he isn't really a chauffeur after all.

The production, based on E. J. Rath's novel, is comedy romance. It is fair entertainment.

Miriam Seegar is the heroine. A number of other satisfactory players are on hand. These include Harvey Clark, Lucille Ward, Charles Coleman, Carlye Moore and Anita Louise.

Victor Graff and Ralph Harrison's RKOlians furnish the stage entertainment. Screen shorts and an organlogue complete the program.

Former Convict Freed in Slaying

GENEVA, Ala., June 16.—(AP.)—Lee Phillips was acquitted yesterday by a jury of a charge of murder in connection with the death of Prof. Claude Avant, of Slocomb, in September, 1928. The jury deliberated 22 hours.

Phillips, a former convict, was indicted with four others, including the late Dr. G. W. Smith. A short time after he was indicted, Dr. Smith died. The state contended Avant was slain at the behest of Dr. Smith, who owed the principal money.

Arizona Pioneer, Noted Author, Dies

FLAGSTAFF, Ariz., June 16.—(AP.)—Harrison Conrad, 59, pioneer of Coconino County and author of poems and stories dealing with the Old West, died in a hospital here yesterday of heart disease. Many of his short stories have been used in motion pictures. He was born in Cincinnati and graduated from St. Xavier College there.

Lone Sailor Heads Across Sea in 16-Foot Boat

PHILADELPHIA, June 16.—(AP.)—A lone Greek sailor, Nicholas George Gongopolos, set out from here in his 16-foot catboat Ulysses in an attempt to sail to Athens.

Gongopolos, whose trip is sponsored by the Greco-American Order of Ahepa, started May 1 from Miami, Fla., where the boat was built. Two weeks out he was stricken with ptomaine poisoning and was towed by an oil tanker to this port.

The Ulysses is stocked with 100 gallons of water and concentrated food to last four months. Gongopolos said he expected to reach Athens in 52 days.

PAYMENTS DUE ON INCOME TAX

WASHINGTON, June 16.—(INS.)—Federal taxpayers have until midnight to pay their June installment of taxes on incomes of 1929.

Treasury experts estimate the installment will amount to over $500,000,000, possibly as high as $520,000,000 or more, which would bring the tax collection for the fiscal year to approximately $2,400,000,000, the amount estimated six months ago.

This would represent a gain of $70,000,000 over the collection during the 1929 fiscal year, in spite of the one per cent reduction in the corporation and the normal income tax rate. This cut was estimated to reduce the 1930 collection by $80,000,000, but the stock market losses, so far as Federal taxes were concerned, were not as heavy as anticipated, and the aggregate loss for the fiscal year probably will not exceed $60,000,000.

Blackheads, Pores —how Awful!

There's no use trying to hide large pores, blackheads and oily skin behind make-up. You only fool yourself.

Out in Hollywood they have the recipe for a lotion that quickly removes flaws and makes the skin beautiful and soft. Get 3 ounces of Orchard White from the druggist and mix it with the juice of 3 lemons. You have a full quarter-pint of the finest lotion.

The very minute you pat this cooling, reviving lotion on the face it gets down deep into the skin and cleans out the dirt that settles in large pores. It removes blackheads, closes the pores and quickly makes the skin smooth, good-looking and youthfully fresh.

You'll notice, too, that the skin is no longer oily and perspiration doesn't bother you any more.

Now if you want a smooth, soft, beautiful skin—just get 3 ounces of Orchard White from any druggist, mix it with the juice of 2 lemons and you have the new Hollywood beauty lotion.

Note: In the summer this lotion keeps the skin free from freckles and guards against that leathery look caused by wind and sun.

GIRL UNAFRAID

Tom Is Informed of Cecile's Connection With Spy

CHAPTER LVIII.

Down in the city the affair created a large ripple of excited gossip. The Spy seized upon it eagerly and carried an insinuating article bristling with innuendos.

Cecile was furious with anger. She did not love Ken, but she had no intention that another woman should have him. She put on the role of the outraged wife and spite sharpened her tongue.

"That is the woman who ruined my married life," she stated dramatically, her green-blue eyes flashing hatred. Ken has been carrying on this affair all these years that is really why I left him."

From lip to lip it went repeated avidly, hurting those who loved the girl. Hurting loyal Tom and Mary, making little Ah Ling's black eyes flash with rage.

Ah Ling—that curious link in the chain of circumstances. The link Cecile had never considered. And Cecile had forgotten, too, that when a link is worn too thin it will snap.

Upon Tom had fallen the task of closing the shop and selling the stock which still remained. The small store was haunted with memories for him. Memories of quiet evenings when he had called on Ardeth remembering the sunlight on her hair that first day when she had bought the shop from Jeanette. The memory of that first day when he had come in here with Ken and had seen her a vivid and lovely child in black.

As though someone had died—working here in this still place, which would never know Ardeth again. What would life do to her, he wondered, now that she had so carelessly defied it? Sombre days when he dismantled the place, quietly helped by little Ah Ling.

Mental Battle

Had Tom been less concerned with his own unhappy thoughts he would have seen that the little Chinese girl was fighting a mental battle.

But not until the last day when Tom was checking over the last of the accounts, was Ah Ling's battle lost—or won.

On that day the spiteful article in The Spy appeared and the Chinese girl had learned of it by the curious wireless by which scandal travels.

Tom was sitting at the cash desk, figuring, when he heard his name called. Ah Ling stood before him, a small figurine of jade in her green brocaded trousers and coat, and she was laboring under intense excitement. She shook a copy of The Spy at Tom.

"Have you seen this? What they dare to write about Miss Carroll?"

The man's face darkened. "Well . . . never mind, Ah Ling. There are always rats in the world, you know."

The slant black eyes flashed. "There should be rat catchers to catch those rats." She caught her breath, suddenly blurted out, "Do you know—who is this spy?"

Tom's eyes went wide with amazement at what he read in her face. "You know?"

"Cyril Underhill!"

Tom's hand was lying on the desk and it crumpled into a broad, freckled fist.

"How do you know that, Ah Ling?"

Ah Ling's Story

"My cousin Lee, he is the cook for Mr. Underhill. He knows much of the private affairs of this—gentleman." Ah Ling's lip curled. "Did you notice this—this sort of hatred with which he writes? Do you wonder why that hatred is there, Mr. Corbett?" The words were pouring from her lips in a frightened torrent. "I will tell you. It is because Mrs. Gleason hates Miss Carroll. She has great influence with The Spy—has Mrs. Gleason. She is often a visitor at Mr. Underhill's apartment. A very favorite visitor"—she finished, insinuatingly.

"You mean——"

Rosie Ling's face was red, but she was valiant.

"A Chinese boy about an apartment sees much, Mr. Corbell. And Chinese tell little to white people. But I know—much—that Mrs. Gleason does not think I know. Much that it would worry her to guess I know. And Miss Carroll was always kind to me."

Tom's face was very serious. He got up and walked over to the girl to stand looking down in the small, intense face.

"You mean, Ah Ling, that—that you want me to believe that Mrs. Gleason has been paying indiscreet visits to Mr. Underhill's apartment?" Tom's conventional tongue found difficulty in finding fitting words.

Ah Ling looked frightened, but she stuck stoutly by her guns. Her face was poppy red.

Would you call a visit of—of several days when she is supposed to be down South—indiscreet, Mr. Corbett?"

Tom Is Angry

My gosh!" breathed Tom reverently. Then, with mounting anger: "And the dirty little cat had the indecency to speak that way of Ardeth!"

That's why I tell you." Ah Ling's voice broke and her face was working. "She has always been so good to me. Miss Carroll has. So gentle. And they—they tear her to pieces now!"

Bully for you!" Tom exploded.

I do not like to make trouble." Ah Ling explained earnestly. "My Cousin Lee will be very angry that I have—have spilled the beans. But there are times when one must spill the beans. Isn't that right, Mr. Corbett?"

Right as rain!"

And—" the girl went on breathlessly. "Mrs. Gleason is bad at heart and Miss Carroll is always kind. It is not good that the good should suffer for the bad. And I am telling this to you because you will know what to do. I will stick to it, Mr. Corbett. And if you make him, my Cousin Lee, he will have to tell the truth, even though he will be very angry at me. But I'm doing it for Miss Carroll. I don't care if it will help her—"

Ah Ling Cries

Ah Ling had begun to cry. She pulled her beret hard down on her head and groped her way out of the front door.

Tom was overwhelmed by the knowledge so astonishingly handed to him. His first feeling was blind rage at Cecile and Cyril Underhill. In his fancy he was crashing his fist full into the sneering face of the man.

But his usual cool judgment quickly followed on the heels of this. Wouldn't do just to raise a row. . . . Get the thing into the daily papers. . . . That wouldn't be so clever. Ah Ling had placed a powerful weapon in his hands. He must use it to the best advantage when he struck for Ardeth.

A few moments of deep thought then Tom put on his hat and left, locking the front door of the little shop.

U. S. ANALYSES LIVING COSTS

WASHINGTON, June 16.—(AP)—Henry Ford's desire to have his employes at factories in Great Britain and Europe enjoy the same economic advantages as the workers at his Detroit plants has led to a detailed analysis of the Detroit standard of living by the Department of Labor.

Because the international labor office at Geneva was unable to say just how well a man working for $7 a day, in Detroit, could live, they requested the Department of Labor statistics service to reduce the purchasing power of the $7 to quantity and quality of food, clothing, luxuries, etc.

In order to compare American food to that of other nations the statisticians reduced it to a calory unity. Men working not less than 250 days at $7, and supporting two or three children with no outside responsibilities were chosen to make up the average standard. The results have been transmitted to Geneva but the work of figuring a corresponding standard of living in terms of European wages and conditions has not yet been done.

Fearing Dog, Youth Climbs Tree; Loses Life

OIL CITY, Pa., June 16.—(AP)—Frank Boyle, Jr., 16, was afraid of dogs and that fear indirectly cost him his life.

Frank was hunting with his brother, Lewis, 18, on the farm of Glen Reighard near Brookville. Upon seeing a dog, Frank placed his gun against a tree and climbed up the tree to safety.

After Reighard called off the dog, Frank, while climbing down, in some way caused the gun to discharge. He died of his wounds in a Brookville hospital. The brothers lived at Shattanville, Clarion County.

MAN FOR BENN'S JOB ASSAILED

WASHINGTON, June 16.—(AP)—An investigation of Charles E. Allen, recently nominated by President Hoover as United States marshal for the western district of Washington, by the Senate Judiciary Committee was urged today in a letter addressed to Senator Norris (Rep.) of Nebraska, chairman of the group, by Representative LaGuardia (Rep.), New York.

Allen has been nominated to succeed E. B. Benn who LaGuardia said, "has been exposing conditions and seeking to have incompetent and dishonest officials removed from office."

LaGuardia wrote:

"I am reliably informed that the confirmation of Mr. Charles E. Allen at this time would be highly acceptable and most pleasing to some of the men who are responsible for the deplorable conditions in that district, and who are in one way or another connected with the men now under indictment."

LaGuardia said he was informed Allen "has been actively engaged from time to time as a lobbyist up in Alaska on behalf of the salmon and other fish canneries" and asked for an investigation into this charge.

None Jobless In Town Of 300

FRANKLIN, Pa., June 16.—A total of 1,167 Venango County residents were jobless April 1, according to official census figures, which show 467 idle in Oil City, 160 in Franklin, 101 in Cranberry Township and 109 in Rocky Grove and vicinity.

Utica, with a population of over 300, reported everyone employed. Clintonville, southern center of the Venango oil field, reported only two idle.

BLAST KILLS 2, STARTS FIRE

PERTH AMBOY, N. J., June 16. (AP)—Two women were killed and eight others were injured in an explosion which set fire to a row of buildings in the business section of the city.

The dead were Mrs. Agnes Kent and Mrs. Margaret Sourat, both of Perth Amboy.

The women were passing when the blast occurred. Several theories as to the cause were advanced, including one that a still had blown up. Damage to property was placed at $200,000.

The explosion was heard miles around and shattered plate glass windows for blocks.

The Anniversary's Six Best-Selling Suites

We PLANNED them to be best-sellers. We listened long and carefully to the preferences of our customers—noted their likes and dislikes—in coverings, frames, filling and size. Then we built these preferences into the suites pictured here. And just as we premised, they've been our "best-sellers" from the very opening day of the Anniversary. As for the savings—we'll let you be the judge and jury.

Extreme Values at

Two and Three Pieces

A—Charles of London, modeled to fit the average Pittsburgh home. In choice of ten shades of mohair and ten of tapestry. Greater comfort is almost unthinkable. And the construction means years of service.

B—Known as the "serpentine front" suite with "barrel" ends. Three pieces custom built in choice of eight shades of mohair (with linen frieze or moquette cushion tops) and in ten of our best-selling tapestries.

C—Sofa, arm and button-back chairs in channel-back, roll-arm effect, very handsomely carved. Spring cushions extend over the arms. Delivered in choice of eight shades of mohair (with linen frieze cushion tops), or in six patterns of tapestry.

D—Combining the simple, modern charm of the Lawson suite with the florid beauty of the Italian, this three-piece suite is both comfortable and distinctive. In ten shades of mohair (with linen frieze cushion tops). Frame of solid mahogany.

E—Here's the old favorite, the "loose-pillow arm" suite. The large sofa, the button-back and arm chair—all are immensely comfortable. We'll cover them in long-lived mohairs (with linen-frieze and mohair cushion tops), also in tapestries and velours.

F—Filled with softest, fluffiest down are the pillows that form the back of this suite; and the covering is lovely silk-and-linen damask (or, if preferred, tapestry). The model is one of the most popular brought out in many years—patterned after an English lounge suite.

HOLDS DRY LAW RESPONSIBLE FOR CRIME

N. Y. Magistrate Says 18th Amendment Unpopular, Oppressive; Graft Grows

By RALPH TAYLOR.
Universal Service.

NEW YORK, June 16.—Unpopular and oppressive prohibition laws!

Lax and inadequate laws against perjury!

These, in the opinion of Joseph E. Corrigan, New York's new chief city magistrate, are at the root of our modern crime problem.

While Chief Magistrate Corrigan does not attempt to prescribe any cure-all for present conditions, he feels that repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment would be a big stride in the right direction. But none the less important, he says, is the subornation of perjury.

LAW IN DISREPUTE

Seated behind his well-ordered desk in his new office, Judge Corrigan outlined some of his views. He said:

"Prohibition has bred disrespect for law on the part of a large portion of the population. It also has overburdened the police departments and other agencies of law enforcement with matters with which they are not in a position to cope. It has impaired the efficiency of public servants by piling impossible tasks onto their shoulders.

"Under the cloud of confusion created by this unpopular and unenforceable law, criminal bands have grown to proportions never before heard of in this country. Corruption has been practised on a larger scale than in the past. Efforts to punish really serious crimes have been interfered with seriously."

PERJURY PROBLEMS

The trouble with our perjury laws, Magistrate Corrigan said, is that they are so bound around with technicalities that it is extremely difficult to obtain a conviction, and equally difficult to get that conviction upheld by the higher courts. This is due in a large measure to the rule that even though a person swears falsely in a court proceeding, that person cannot be punished for perjury unless it be proved that the particular subject regarding which the false swearing was done was relevant to the issue at trial.

SECRET SESSION IN 'RED' QUIZ

WASHINGTON, June 16.—(Universal.)—Delving deeper into its investigation of communistic activities in the United States, the House special committee, headed by Representative Hamilton Fish, was to meet today in executive session.

At this secret meeting, John P. Simmons, chief of the visa department of the State Department, will be the chief witness.

George Harris, assistant commissioner of immigration of the Labor Department, and Horace J. Donnelly, solicitor of the Postoffice Department, will also appear.

The committee's spotlight has been directed at activities of the Amtorg Trading Corporation, which represents the Soviet Union in business dealings in this country. Amtorg officials declare the investigation will prove Amtorg has in no way been connected with "red" propaganda in the United States.

40 Russ Refugees Drift 8 Days, Safe

SOFIA, Bulgaria, June 16.—(AP)—Exhausted after drifting eight days on the Black Sea, 40 refugees from Russia have arrived at the Bulgarian port of Varna, a dispatch received here said.

The party, which included 15 women and four children, said they had left Cherson, Russia, in a sailing boat. They lost their bearings during the voyage, which is between 300 and 400 miles. They refused to say why they had fled from Russia.

50,000 Attend Outdoor Service

HERSHEY, Pa., June 16.—(AP.)—A crowd estimated by park officials at 50,000 attended outdoor religious services conducted by the international conference of the Church of the Brethren. At a meeting before the services, Dr. Otho Winger, president of Manchester College, Manchester, Ind., was elected moderator.

FUND FOR PLANT FOOD STUDY

YELLOW SPRINGS, O., June 16.—(AP.)—C. F. Kettering, vice president of General Motors, has given $200,000 to study what many scientists regard as man's most interesting riddle — how plants make food and shelter.

The gift is made to Antioch College, here, for a 10-year research. The research seeks the secret of chlorophyll, the green coloring matter in plants, one of the world's commonest chemicals.

It is the material used by plants to change the sun's energy and the chemicals of the air into sugars, starches and cellulose. Chlorophyll stores the sunlight energy that comes from burning coal. Chemists never have been able to make chlorophyll. If they can make it they may have thereby a short cut to producing food.

Vermont to Award Mrs. Coolidge Degree

BURLINGTON, Vt., June 16.—(AP.)—Former President and Mrs. Calvin Coolidge arrived here yesterday to attend the one hundred and twenty-sixth commencement of the University of Vermont, Mrs. Coolidge's alma mater. The University will confer the degree of Doctor of Laws on Mrs. Coolidge tomorrow.

KAUFMANN'S 59th ANNIVERSARY

SIDE WALKS of PITTSBURGH

by WILLIAM PFARR

Our vacation ended, we weren't back in town an hour before we had learned more about the gold leaf letter situation. We learned that before the gold leaf man applies the gold leaves to the brush, he runs the brush through his hair, much as you push a comb. This provides an electrical attraction which encourages the gold leaves to stick to the brush, if not the glass. Maybe we shouldn't have come back.

Counsellor Kivie Wolfe, who lifts his nose from Blackstone only to bury his mashie in the rough, tells of his friend who took up golf.

Nonchalantly he stepped up to No. 1 tee at Schenley, teed his ball and swung a healthy swing. He missed the ball entirely.

He swung again. And missed again. A third swing. A third miss, after which he turned, disgusted, to Kivie and said:

"H'mmm, but it's a tell course!"

Sir:

I thought that you might be interested in the idiosyncracies of some of the great and near-great. That idiosyncracies is a good word. When I first heard it I thought it was something that was mounted in Carnegie Museum like a dinosaur. Anyhow, here is a little sidelight on R. V. Babcock, county commissioner, who has been city councilman and mayor in addition to head of a fair-sized lumber company. In fact he is what you would call a big shot in the lumber racket.

He abhors the use of the letter I. In any of his letters where the average man would start out "I regret," or "I enclose herewith," he leaves out the I. Any time he issues "the following statement" for publication he always leaves out I's. Not like you and I. For instance, I have used I in this brief note at least half a dozen times. Understand that the I key on columnists' typewriters is the only one that ever wears out.

E. P. O'B.

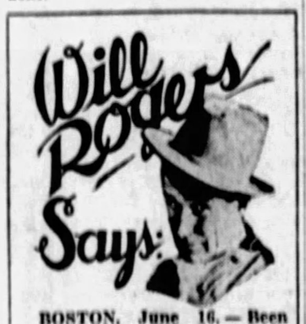
Vacation note: You take the train to Cambridge Springs and from the station an elderly horse, a proud Irishman and a buggy of your younger days escort you to the Bartlett Hotel. In an easy chair alongside a window in the lobby you see a clear-eyed gentleman of eighty-some years. He is the proprietor, B. F. Bartlett, known to many Pittsburghers, and on view near him are two of his possessions. One is an autograph of his good friend, Secretary A. W. Mellon, which hangs above him. The other is a bottle of mineral water which stands beside him. The water was put into the bottle 19 years ago. Very little sediment has collected. It is Mr. Bartlett's way of advertising that Cambridge Springs water is good, clear water.

Mt. Oliver Women To Hold Luncheon

The Mt. Oliver Women's Civic Club will hold its annual spring luncheon at the South Hills Country Club tomorrow. The guests of honor will be Mrs. Fred Huber, retiring president and Mrs. Catherine Freund, newly elected president.



BOSTON, June 16.—Been looking at the pictures in the papers of some woman that killed a lot of big game in India. I wish the Humane Society would take up one thing. After killing a poor dumb animal, you are allowed to sit on it to have your picture made. That's awful humiliating to a wild animal. I believe they got the same old stuffed lion and elephant and tiger over there that they all have their pictures taken on.

Yours,
WILL ROGERS.

TWO KILLED IN TRAFFIC ACCIDENTS

THE BIG HOUSE

Prison Terms Given Robber And Drunken Driver

(Adapted from the scenario by Frances Marion and George H. Hill.)
A Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer-Cosmopolitan Production.

CHAPTER I.

New Year's Eve! The town is tipsy before dinner, drunk by eleven, cockeyed when the maudlin din breaks through the unseen veil between the years, plastered as the hours rip snort on to punctuate and celebrate the dubious rejoicement that the world has made scrap of another calendar.

No place is hot enough now to hold the more restless roisterers. They have ants in their pants. They must go. Go where? Anywhere. Go places and do things. Go little places and do big things. They have paid and lied and wire-pulled and smeared to get reservations in one giddy cafe or effervescent cabaret. Now they must tour. And Dean Ward Kent has a mercurial souse on. Anne Marlowe, the virginal ash-blonde with him, half urges him to stay where they are with Art Manners and his girl-friend, Alda Hayfer, who filled the foursome required for a table that night at the Krazy Kamel. But Kent slobbers off and waves aside all protest.

"C'mon," he blithers, "'s New Yearsh—going to the Flaming Furnash—zippiesht jazz in 'e worl' . . . bugh-ho — le'sh GO!"

His sedan is parked a block-and-a-half away. They make it. Kent staggering.

"Think you can drive okay?" asks Manners.

Speeds Machine
Other Riders Made Nervous By Drunken Driver

"Huh! Who? Me? Shay, when I'm half cocked I'm the besht li'l driver at ever burned up the Rock'feller — tumble in, you shtewsh—when li'l ol' Kenty's at the wheel, you GET there."

He starts her up, all right. A lever grinds into gear, and off they go. No careening. Kent drives swiftly, but surely. Through the traffic-twisted blocks, past hundreds of other cars tooting horns, stepping. Into the park, for the Flaming Furnace is up in the black belt. Kent lets her out. He crosses several roads without misadventure.

Now on the main up-and-down parkway, he jams his foot against the accelerator.

"Not so fast, Dean," whispers Anne, as she places a hand on his arm.

"Don' worry, woman," he laughs. "Kenty knowsh besht—"

He turns his head to poke a kiss at her cheek. He laughs clownishly the while.

"Look out!" yells Art piercingly.

Kent throws up his face. With a mad grab he yanks back the emergency brake.

"Oh, my God!" breathes Anne.

Kent's car hits a heavy limousine a sideswipe blow as it tries to stand on its nose and half skids into the rear end of the other machine, which has swerved past Kent's radiator to turn up a road to the left. There is a crash, and then a grinding, ripping, tearing, splintering rasp. The limousine teeters on one wheel for an instant, then goes over on its side in a pandemonium of shattering glass and crunching, cracking metal.

The four are pitched forward, Anne into the windshield, Kent against the wheel with his chest caved in. Manners, alone, is practically uninjured. He reaches first for Alda. The torn side of the car is bent half around her. She is in a limp heap, all blood, unconscious. She got the brunt of the smash.

The jury files it, after deliberating for eleven heart-wrenching hours. Kent jerks up spasmodically. Anne, seated back in the spectators' section, strains forward. Her face still bears the unhealed evidences of what the jury has been weighing. Beside her, Art Manners, who can never forgive the death of his sweetheart, mutters something. Anne puts her hand on his, lightly, and whispers:

"What good can that do? It won't bring Alda back. He didn't mean—"

"Gentlemen," says the court, "have you arrived at a verdict?"

The foreman, a retail shoe-dealer, honest, earnest and shaking under the tension of what he has had to do and what he has yet to do, clears his throat and answers:

"We have, your honor—we—"

"Have you found a verdict?"

"We have, your honor."

"Pronounce it."

The blood-shot eyes of Dean Kent are burning him.

"Guilty!", he says, loud and clear, "of manslaughter."

Kent chokes back a sob. He hangs to the arms of his maplewood chair. His lawyer is up on his feet. He is making a motion. The judge scarcely hears him out.

"Denied," he says, without a down glance. Turning to the jury, he says, "Thank you. You are dismissed." To the lawyer he says, "I will entertain a motion for appeal after sentence—let me see—(he consults his schedule, on a form) next Tuesday morning at eleven . . . clerk, bond canceled on the defendant, bailiff, take him in custody and confine him in jail . . . court adjourned."

Tears trickle down Anne's cheeks.

She has never deeply loved Kent. But now she sympathizes with him profoundly. She cannot bring herself to see him as a criminal, she who almost paid with her life for his drunken recklessness, she who had urged him against it. That is all over now. He is still a boy, in his early 20's. He should be punished, yes—but not—not as she hears the judge, on that next Tuesday morning pronounce the judgment of the state:

The Penalty
Sentenced to Seven Years In Penitentiary

"Stand up, young man . . . you have been found guilty of a heinous felony. By your rash act, you have caused the death of two persons and dangerously hurt five others . . . it was not your intent, I am sure . . . but it is an ancient principle of the law that drunkenness is no excuse for breaking the law, in fact it is now breaking the law to be drunk . . . human life and limbs are as precious on New Year's eve as at any other time . . . there has been an epidemic of criminal driving by intoxicated persons in this community . . . it can be halted only by severe penalties . . . yours is an especially atrocious example, you, an intelligent, well-bred, successful young man, a college graduate and gifted with so many of this world's blessings . . . in accord with the verdict of the jury, a just and sound finding, I therefore sentence you to seven year's imprisonment in the state penitentiary."

And that was how and why, his flimsy appeal scornfully thrown out by the higher jurisdiction, Dean Ward Kent arrived at the big house with a "natural" staring him in the face, for that is what the crap-shooting inmates call a seven-year "stretch."

One evening, some 28 months before the penitentiary gates opened before and closed behind Dean Ward Kent, there was admitted a good-looking young chap whose darkly passionate nature betrayed itself in the full, low tones of his voice and deep-set, brooding eyes; one who could be generous or vicious, just or cruel, capable of loyalty, larceny, lechery or treachery. He said his name was Duncan Morgan.

Morgan had "tripped" up the

WILLS $20,000 TO CHILDREN

So long as they remain unmarried, three daughters and a son of Joseph F. Yester, of 1203 Locust street, McKeesport, are to have the homestead, the father provides in his will, disposing of a $20,000 estate, filed for probate today.

In event of the marriage of the daughters, Elizabeth, Emma and Marie, and the son, William, the home is to become part of the estate and be divided among the children, share and share alike.

All property which the testator received from his mother is left to his children. Insurance received from the United States government, sum not stated, goes to St. Mary's Catholic Church, McKeesport. His sons, William J. and George J. Yester, are named executors.

ASSAILS WIFE'S HOME, FINED

Fortified with several drinks of moonshine liquor, according to police, Lawrence Franklin, 33 of 532 Pressley street, attempted to force his way into the home of his wife, from whom he is separated, in order to see his 4-year-old son, Earl, who is sick. The wife met Franklin with a pistol at the door of her home, 607 North Jackson street, and barred his way, police report. Then he attempted to climb in a window at the side. Police were summoned and arrested Franklin.

He was fined $5 by Magistrate John J. Sweeney today in North Side Police Court on a charge of disorderly conduct.

Ordained But Week, Now Aid to Rector

Within a week of his ordination to the ministry, the Rev. William B. Carns, formerly of Philadelphia, yesterday began his duties as assistant to the Rev. Dr. John Dows Hills, veteran rector of the Episcopal Church of the Epiphany, Bellevue. He is a graduate of Lehigh University, class of 1927, and of the Divinity School, Philadelphia. He was ordained last Monday.

Woman Recovers After Taking Poison

Mrs. Hanna Volker, 33, of 1115 Gerst way, was recovering today in the Allegheny General Hospital from the effects of poison swallowed, police said, in a suicide attempt in her home yesterday. Relatives who found her lying on the floor could ascribe no motive for her act.

Musical Garden Party Arranged

A musical garden party will be given tomorrow evening in the home of Mrs. W. C. Young, Hill avenue, by the Lois Thomas Bible Class of the South Avenue Methodist Church. A number of well known Pittsburgh musical artists will appear on the program.

Typothetae Plans Conference Here

The ninth annual conference on printing education will open June 23 at Carnegie Institute of Technology, sponsored by the United Typothetae of America. The conference will last two days with teachers of graphic arts from leading institutions of the East in attendance.

Leaders in printing and education will be the speakers at the seven sessions of the conference. Thirty-five addresses on topics relating to art, printing, teacher, background, educational and industrial contracts will be delivered. There also will be exhibits of devices used in printing.

2 ELUDE POLICE IN GUN BATTLE

Police today were searching for two men who escaped arrest by returning fire of McKees Rocks police in the River road early today. The men eluded capture by driving their automobile through the lowered gates of the Pittsburgh and Lake Erie Railroad at the River road crossing, a few feet ahead of a light engine which had been halted at the crossing. Two gates were torn down.

Motorcycle Patrolman Victor Judnak and Patrolmen Carl Ross and Ralph Golling attempted to stop the speeding machine when they became suspicious of the strangers' actions.

Instead of obeying a command to halt, the men speeded up their machine. Police opened fire, and several bullets were exchanged, police said. No person was wounded, according to a police report.

GIRL PREVENTS MAN'S SUICIDE

Weary and out of work, a man decided to end his life, he told the Rev. Thomas Harnyak, pastor of St. Gabriel's Church, California and Superior avenues. That's why he climbed over the railing of the Superior Avenue Bridge spanning the Pennsylvania Railroad tracks and prepared to leap down into the path of an approaching train.

Miss Olive Ellen Mills, 18, of 141 Mead street, Bellevue, crossing the bridge on her way home, saw him, and ran to his side. Grabbing his arm, she pulled him back, talked to him a few minutes and persuaded him to go with her to the church, where they consulted Father Harnyak.

In the church the man who had wanted to die knelt before the girl who had saved him and thanked her. He promised the priest he would not repeat his action.

"He must have been very, very tired," mused Miss Mills, in relating the story. "I'm so glad I happened that way."

1 DIES UNDER STOLEN AUTO

Angry Motorist Attacks Driver, Thrown to Death As Machine Hits Plug

Two men were killed, one an alleged car thief, in automobile accidents here over the week-end. The second fatality occurred to an angry motorist who leaped to the running board of another automobile and struck the driver, sending the car crashing against a fire plug. A score of others were injured.

Joseph Kroniser, 42, of 1641 Broadhead street, was to be turned over to the coroner today in connection with the death of Jacob Goldenberg, 44, of 1241 Chislett street. Police say Kroniser's car sideswiped Goldenberg's machine in North Negley avenue near Hays street.

Goldenberg, enraged, police say, leaped onto the running board of Kroniser's machine and struck him in the face. Kroniser lost control of the machine which struck a fire plug and upset. Goldenberg suffered a fractured skull and died in the Homeopathic Hospital several hours after the accident.

UPSET FATAL

An unidentified man, aged about 30, believed to be an automobile thief, was killed when his machine upset while rounding a curve in Brownsville road, Brentwood, this morning. Three persons, one a woman, were injured when their car struck the overturned machine a few minutes later. The victim's body was removed to the morgue, where efforts are being made to identify it. Police say the overturned machine had been stolen last night.

Mrs. Julia Maliszewski, 30, her husband, Kontanze, 34, and John Marsylak, 28, all of 305 Renova street, were riding in Maliszewski's machine when it struck the overturned automobile. Mrs. Maliszewski was injured seriously and is in St. Joseph's Hospital. Her companions were able to go home.

FOUR CHILDREN HURT

Eight persons, four of them children, were injured when the machine of Charles Sells, 40, of 300 Bothwell street, overturned on a curve in the Evergreen road, Millvale. Sells and Chester Sutnia, 29, of 312 Bothwell street, were reported in serious condition in the Allegheny General Hospital. The others, treated and taken home, are: James Guarrillo, 49, 312 Bothwell street; William Grant, 63, of 322 Bothwell street; Evelyn Celotto, 8, and her sisters, Norma, 6, and Loraine, 4, and Rose Sillis, 10, of 300 Bothwell street.

Struck by an automobile in the Boulevard of the Allies at Craft avenue yesterday, Michael Baulfield, 59, of 5820 Pierce street, was cut and bruised. Police arrested Clarence Bickinson, of Coraopolis, as the driver.

Two Springdale children are in the Citizens General Hospital, New Kensington, today, having been struck by automobiles last night. They are John Ladlabroth, 6, of 44 Pittsburgh street, and Anton Segs, 3, of 537 Grant street. The Segs boy suffered a fractured right leg and Ladlabroth a fracture of the left hip, bruises and lacerations.

BROTHERS INJURED

Five persons were injured when two machines collided at Hamilton and Dallas avenues late yesterday. Mary Henry, 9, a passenger in the machine of J. A. Seweiger, of 4223 Geneva street was bruised. Four brothers riding in the other machine also were cut and bruised. They are James A. Predmore, 22, and Paul, 19, both of 5821 Holden street; Joseph Predmore, 24, of 7115 Churchland street, and John Predmore, 21, of 522 Paulson avenue. They are treated at the Pittsburgh Hospital.

James G. Wilson, 81, of Veto and Sampson streets, was removed to the Presbyterian Hospital early today when hit by an automobile driven by Alexander Evans, 16, of 1311 Liverpool street. The accident occurred in North avenue near Federal street. Wilson was cut and bruised.

Witness Faces Contempt In Wilmerding Row

That James F. Richardson, former Wilmerding tax collector, will either be committed to jail for contempt of court or turned over to the district attorney for such action as he deems fit, was indicated in Quarter Sessions Court today by Judge Thomas J. Ford after a partial hearing.

Richardson is contesting the election of C. R. Shiring as tax collector in Wilmerding.

He has testified that he cannot remember any of the testimony he gave at a hearing in January. The hearing was adjourned until tomorrow morning to allow time for a transcript of the earlier evidence to be made.

Row Over Wife's Lottery Luck Costs Man $10 Fine

Peter Mallory, 35, of 11 Federal street, landed in the North Side Police Station yesterday for the disturbance he is said to have raised when his wife refused to split her winnings of $135 on the clearing house lottery.

Today, Magistrate Sweeney fined Mallory $10 and the husband said his wife could keep her winnings.

Mallory left his home Wednesday after an argument with his wife, he told police. He and his wife had been playing the "numbers" with an agreement to divide their winnings. The husband won several times and abided by the agreement, he said.

Yesterday Mallory learned of his wife "hitting" the pool for 25 cents, which entitled her to $135. He hurried home and demanded his share and trouble followed, Mallory continued.

WHITE LINES URGED TO CURB 'SNAKE DRIVING' IN TUBES

DORSEY FORBIDS WRONG SIDE PARKING

Auto Club Asks Armstrong For Action to Prevent Liberty Tunnel Speeding

In a letter to County Commissioner Joseph G. Armstrong today C. H. Roth, secretary of the Pittsburgh Motor Club suggested white lines to prevent speeding and "snake driving" in the Liberty Tubes.

In response to complaints against these driving antics in the tubes, the highway safety committee of the club at a recent meeting ordered a petition to the county commissioners for relief. The white lines were suggested as a possible method of cutting down the dangerous practices.

Traffic Inspector Jacob Dorsey today launched a drive against automobile drivers parking their cars on the wrong side of the street. At a meeting of the Better Traffic Committee Saturday, Dorsey said:

"The parking of cars on the left side of the street must stop. When a car is being parked, or when it is leaving its parked place, there is an additional hazard to other motorists who are using the street for that mode of parking."

DIES AT LIQUOR PARTY, 3 HELD

Three men were turned over to the homicide squad for investigation today and one woman was fined $50 following the finding of Louis Kaminski, 50, dead in a house at 1116 River avenue.

Kaminski's body was found yesterday in the kitchen following a drinking party in which the three other men participated, according to police. An informer told police that the woman, Mrs. Frances Capuran, 31, of 1118 River avenue, had sold liquor to the men. Officers raided her home and confiscated two gallons of moonshine and six barrels of mash.

At the hearing today in North Side Police Station before Magistrate John J. Sweeney, the woman denied selling liquor, but was fined on a suspicious person charge. The three men turned over to the homicide squad for investigation were Carl Lukas and Steve Maneletsky, of 1116 River avenue, and John Cushon, of 1113 Saw Mill way.

Compromise Corner Plan Before Council

The agreement ordinance under which the Eleventh street intersection problems are hoped to be solved by a compromise plank was to reach Council today. The chief feature of the new plank is that it will permit a temporary treatment of the intersection in the vicinity of the grade.

river on a "garter," which means he was serving a third conviction under an indeterminate sentence. Five to fifteen years, the judge had decreed—a "stretch" that the convicts call a "taxi," because most New York cabs bear conspicuously their rates, and are known as "fifteen-and-fives." What portion of it Morgan would "do" depended on many factors: good behavior, outside drag, restoration of stolen money, how the judge and the prosecutor felt disposed on the day when they would be asked to sign an agreement for parole, and how the Prison Board of Pardons had enjoyed breakfast on the day when the petition reached them for decision and action.

Morgan was a robber. He had once been a bank clerk. At $55 a month, with snappy habits and easy ways with women, he had need for quick cash. Beside him, in his cage, lay a loaded revolver. He had but to slip it into his pocket. His first "trick" was shamefully easy. A married man on his way home from a rendezvous with a girl—one step out of a dark doorway and the sharp bark, "Stick 'em up," has yielded Morgan several hundred dollars in currency.

Morgan was nailed a few months later. A flat-footed, round-headed "harness-bull"—a uniformed policeman—came upon him in the act and was too dumb to be afraid. They "settled" the young, gentlemanly chap lightly, as a first offender, and for attempted robbery, because he hadn't been given time to complete the deed. No former robberies were fixed against him. But he went up, and when he came down he was an ex-con, with a record, fingerprints and some advanced ideas.

He prospered until one of his gang, in a forbidden confidence to an infatuated dance-hall hostess sweetie, whispered in the night how clever and brave and wicked he was, and spilled the works. Of course, in time, he tired of her, and of course she told another girl; the other girl happened to be "stooling" for a police lieutenant, and Morgan and the whole "mob" were "rapped."

This time our handsome chap served more than two years. A clumsy skid on the first job he tried after he was out ran the machine smack into a milk wagon, and the pursuing police had him again. This organization had "connections," and thus Morgan's "five to fifteen" was soft. It might as well have been five to fifty—the minimum was what counted; it meant that he could be free in thirty-nine months, for it was politically "in the bag." The judge's pronouncement thundered and sounded harsh and severe; but there was a smile on Morgan's face. Thirty-nine months? He could do that standing on one foot. But Kent's sentence seemed overwhelming. He dreaded imprisonment.

4 EXTRA JUDGES ON BENCH HERE

Four visiting judges will assist the local jurists in the disposition of the calendar in Criminal Court this week, including the two murder trials and that of the defendants in the case against the "Show Boat." Two new panels of 120 jurors each were to start two weeks' jury duty this morning.

Adrian Anderson, Negro, was scheduled to go on trial today for the death of Edward Boswell, Negro, of Liberty avenue, last May 11. Boswell was fatally stabbed at a labor camp. Mrs. Catherine Ward, now a patient at Dixmont, will go on trial Wednesday for the death of her two children, who were strangled to death in their home.

On Tuesday, F. T. Graham, Louis Markowitz and Milton Jaffe will be called for trial on charges of keeping a gambling house in connection with the "Show Boat" raid. Graham has not yet been arrested.

NEW MARVELS SHOWN BY CIRCUS

Ringling-Barnum Pitch Tents at Point Breeze; Special Show for Children

Under the big top at Penn and Fifth avenues, Point Breeze, the Ringling Brothers-Barnum & Bailey circus today exhibited the amusement wonders of the world. They came to town in three long trains.

The most complete menageries in the world—lions, tigers, elephants, camels, monkeys and hundreds of other animals too numerous to mention was there for the youngsters—or oldsters, too, for that matter. There were far more of the latter on hand to greet the circus yesterday.

Traveling in a special car all by themselves is an aggregation of one of the most unusual races of human beings ever seen. They are the Ubangis—members of a tribe of African wild people, the women of which stretch their lips to almost unbelievable proportions.

BROUGHT FROM KONGO

These strange people, headed by Chief Nebia and his two rubber-lipped wives, were brought from the French Kongo by Dr. Eugene Bergonier, a French physician, who has spent many years in their midst on the Dark Continent.

These Ubangis even while on tour with the circus practice many of their strange customs, now taboo under French government rule. The women only go in for lip-stretching, which is begun at childhood.

The tribespeople live in a private car attached to the Ringling train, and keep very much to themselves, coming out in the open only during their especially arranged performances twice each day.

NEW MARVELS SHOWN

Under the big top this year are many new and marvelous exhibitions, according to the show managers and barkers, whose cries of "Already now—step up and get your tickets" rings out over the tented city at Point Breeze.

The clowns are more numerous and funnier than ever, they tell you.

The tumblers, trapeze artists, acrobatics, bareback equestriennes and all the others have tricks never before attempted.

HUGE SEA ELEPHANT

In the side shows are freaks of all kinds and topping all is "Goliath," a gigantic sea elephant, largest of the species in captivity.

Religious School Names Pastor Head

The Rev. Dr. James M. Ferguson, pastor of the Bellevue United Presbyterian Church, has been re-elected president of the board of directors, North Borough School of Religious Education. He has held this post continuously since the school was established nearly 10 years ago. Other officers chosen were: Vice president, Edward Snodgrass, Jr.; secretary, the Rev. Howard Rodgers; treasurer, Mrs. Nellie E. Robertson. Reports showed that 1,756 pupils had been enrolled in the last year.

The Camera Question Box

Today's question: A reader pleads: "What can be done about the screeching loudspeakers and other unnecessary noises in the downtown streets? Why are city ordinances covering such nuisances not enforced?" What is your suggestion for handling this problem:

SAM GOLDSTEIN, clerk, Oakland — What we consider noise is frequently what other people need for help in their business. Under those circumstances it really can't be helped nor can anything be done about it without injury to those people.

Sam Goldstein

MISS ESTHER GOODMAN, salesgirl, Pittsburgh — The noise from the loudspeakers wouldn't be such a nuisance if there could be better music. If the business people using this method of advertising would consider having better music there would probably be fewer complaints.

Miss Goodman

Tom Gold

TOM GOLD, salesmen, East End — I don't think these "noises," that annoy some people, are at all objectionable. They are decidedly musical at times and go a long way toward making work more pleasant.

MISS ANNETTE PINSKY, clerk, Squirrel Hill — I enjoy the music from the loudspeakers. It makes a nice after-lunch program that entertains you all along the street when you you're going back to work.

Miss Pinsky

Stanley Grant

STANLEY GRANT, salesman, Knoxville — The average store that uses these radio attachments does so to draw attention, and, if they were done away with, the stores would lose some of their strongest advertisements. They also help the persons working near them to hear important announcements or bits of news that they, otherwise, would miss.

MISS SARAH DRONES, clerk, East End — The noise on the streets can't be helped. If the radios were the only source of noise it would hardly be noticeable, but it is not a noise made by any individual, but a confusion of sounds—the people and traffic in the streets as well as the radios.

Miss Drones

POLICE HONORS FOR M'TIGHE

A police escort will follow the body of Traffic Patrolman Phil McTighe from St. Mary's of the Mount Catholic Church to Calvary tomorrow when the funeral services will be held. McTighe, a veteran patrolman, died Friday morning in his home at 226 Bigham street. His wife flew home from California after being notified of her husband's death. She reached home yesterday morning.

Mrs. McTighe's flight was the second emergency air trip within a month. Three weeks ago she flew to California when informed of the serious illness of her daughter, Mrs. Blanche Gwynn, in Los Angeles. Returning home Friday, the plane in which Mrs. McTighe flew, encountered a severe storm. Twice the pilot was forced to bring his plane to a low altitude to fly under the storm.

Assistant Supt. of Police Ben Marshall directed Traffic Patrolman John Fogarty to arrange for the police escort. Last night brother traffic officers visited the McTighe home and left a large wreath. Mayor Charles H. Kline also sent a basket of flowers.

McTighe's post, at Wood street and the Boulevard of the Allies, was marked today with a large wreath, placed there by business men of the district. He had been stationed at the intersection for several years.

Safe's Inner Door Foils Robbery Try

Safe-crackers failed in an attempt to open a safe in the office of the J. C. Buffum Company, at 1236 Voskamp street, yesterday. The yeggs had chiseled off the door, but were balked when they reached the inner one, police said. The box contained $500.

26 PRIESTS ORDAINED IN SERVICES AT ST. VINCENT'S

BIGGEST CLASS ADMITTED TO ORDERS

18 of New Clergymen From Pittsburgh Area; Deacons And Sub-Deacons Created

LATROBE, Pa., June 16.—Ordination services for 26 priests were held in St. Vincent Archabbey Church yesterday, the largest class ever admitted to holy orders at the Benedictine community at Beatty, near here. The Rt. Rev. Hugh C. Boyle, bishop of the Catholic Diocese of Pittsburgh, officiated.

In addition to the priests, five deacons and 31 sub-deacons were ordained. Eighteen of the priests are from the Pittsburgh diocese, the other eight being members of the Benedictine order. Of the 31 sub-deacons, 21 were from the Pittsburgh diocese.

The Pittsburgh priests ordained are the Rev. Francis X. Foley, the Rev. William D. Savage and the Rev. William P. Shaughenessy, of St. Mary's; the Rev. Francis R. Mullen, of St. Agnes'; the Rev. Thomas Lynch, St. Rosalie's; the Rev. Dom H. Stvka, St. Adelbert's; the Rev. Lawrence O'Connell, St. Kiernan's; the Rev. Joseph M. Maxwell, St. Raphael's; the Rev. Paul Gergerich, Sts. Peter and Paul; the Rev. Andrew Schneider, St. George's; the Rev. Edward Wuethorn, St. Joseph's; the Rev. Colman S. Carroll, Blessed Sacrament; the Rev. John A. Collins, St. Stephen's, and the Rev. Raymond Buechel, St. Bede's.

Other diocese priests ordained are the Rev. Joseph A. Keener, of St. Mary's, Ford City; the Rev. William J. Mullen, St. Peter's, McKeesport; the Rev. Raymond Lucas, St. John's, Coylesville, and the Rev. Thomas Reilly, Mother of Sorrow's, Johnstown.

BLIND, EXPERT AUTO TINKER

Clellen McMullen may be blind, but it's no handicap in doing all the automobile repairing in his small Donora shop—it's the collection of accounts that worry him.

Mr. McMullen, 43, lost his sight in an explosion at the American Steel and Wire plant in 1913. He had been assistant chief engineer. Four years later, the $12,500 settlement received from his employers was used to buy a home at 46 Kenric avenue. A two-car garage in the rear provided his repair shop.

Averaging two repair jobs a week, Mr. McMullen does all the work himself. By touch he can take the motor apart, regrind the valves, remove the wheels and replace hubbings, brakebands and any work required. Business isn't just as good as it could be, he admits, and he hopes to find a place back in the mill where blindness will not be a handicap. He says:

"Most customers come out of curiosity and though satisfied with the work seldom repeat. I can turn out work as fast as the average garage, too. But regardless of how much work comes, somehow I lose at least 25 per cent of my profits through bad accounts."

MELLON SILENT

By PENELOPE REDD

Leopold Seyffert, painter of America's great business men, was in town attending to the details of a duplicate portrait which he has just completed of one of our leading industrialists.

Penelope Redd

Mr. Seyffert has been painting John Bassett Moore and was enthusiastic on the subject of the contemporary great. He has painted the great jurists, industrialists, artists, and bankers.

"We are living in a day when every city has its local version of the Medici," said Mr. Seyffert. "The directors of the great American enterprises, conscious of their world significance, desire to immortalize their chief executives.

"The American corporations have passed beyond the stage where they are satisfied with enlarged photographs of their chief executives. They want portraits of their leaders worthy of their magnificent offices.

"Frequently, in one man is vested the leadership of many enterprises. Thus Andrew W. Mellon has been portrayed on eight different occasions.

"When Mr. Mellon sat for me, I was disturbed at first by his silence. It was apparent that he was preoccupied. As I knew him better, I found him very likeable. He talked less than any man I have ever painted.

"Women, by and large, are prone to be discouraged at the sight of the artist's first, rough sketch. They want to be painted as they were decades ago. American women should be painted, because the future may almost come to regard us as a womanless world so few in number are their portraits as compared with the number done of men."

PATRICIA PITT'S SPRIGHTLY COMMENT ON PITTSBURGH'S SOCIETY HAPPENINGS

Harriet Louise Provost Marrying Today at Home Ceremony

So many weddings has June already seen and the month only half over that everyone and everything must be lost in a drift of petals from lovely brides' bouquets.

I can tell you of another wedding to usher in this very first day of the week, and it is to be a home affair this evening at 8:30 o'clock.

The bride is Harriet Louise Provost, daughter of the George Watson Provosts of Beacon street, who is marrying a Mason Orme Dammon in the Provost home with the Rev. Dr. Carl Nye Hutchison, of the East Liberty Presbyterian Church, officiating.

The bride is wearing a princess gown of ivory satin, with close-fitting bodice, basque and quaint puff sleeves. Her tulle veil forms a cap effect around her head, with a face veil, and is carrying a shower of roses and lilies of the valley. Her two sisters, Mrs. Olive Boutwell Merrill, Jr., and Mary Jane Provost, who are her only attendants, are wearing similar gowns made of peach colored point d'esprit, with picture sleeves. Leghorn hats in matching colors complete their costume. Both of course they are carrying garden flowers. William Joseph Knox, Jr., is the best man, and the ushers include the bride's brother-in-law, Oliver Boutwell Merrill, Jr., John Clinton Daggett, of Niagara Falls, N. Y., Horace Carlile Wunch, of Buffalo, and the bride's brother, George Watson Provost, Jr.

After the ceremony there is to be a reception and dinner. The bridal table is centered with spring flowers, and there are smaller tables for the guests. About 75 guests are to be present.

After a wedding trip in the East the Dammons will make their home in Buffalo, N. Y.

At 3:30 o'clock this afternoon Betty Seibert, daughter of the Edward M. Seiberts of Lytton avenue, is becoming the bride of Raymond Lynn Patterson, of New York, in her home. Officiating is the Rev. James Graham, of St. Paul's Cathedral.

Home Wedding

The bride is wearing a gown of eggshell point d'alencon lace with a matching hat of lace. She is carrying a shower of sweet peas and sweet heart roses tied with streamers of eggshell ribbon. Her two sisters, who are her only attendants, are Mrs. John J. Isherwood and Mrs. William J. Aiken, Jr., who are wearing similar gowns of cream lace with skirts of cafe au lait chiffon and matching hats. Their bouquets are of garden flowers with streamers of blue ribbon.

William Hutchison Patterson is his brother's best man. And there is a buffet supper for the immediate families after the ceremony.

The Pattersons will leave immediately after the supper for New York and sail Wednesday on the Vulcania for a three-month tour of Europe. After September they will return to Pittsburgh temporarily.

Among the out-of-town guests at the wedding were the Cecil F. Wilsons, of Crawfordsville, and their daughters, Frances and Barbara Wilson.

This evening the senior class supper will be held by the members of the graduating class of Smith College. Nancy Hamilton, daughter of the Charles Lee Hamiltons of Sewickley, will be toastmistress.

Varied News

Anthony Wayne Smith, III, son of the junior A. W. Smiths, of Elwood street, will leave Wednesday for New Haven, where he'll be enrolled as a student in the Yale law school. He is a graduate of the University of Pittsburgh.

On Friday Mrs. Robert Van Lear Zahller, of Glen Osborne, entertained at a luncheon-bridge in her home for Ruth Martin, whose marriage to Richard Khuen, III, son of Richard Khuen, of Sewickley, will take place a week from tomorrow.

On Thursday Mrs. William Wasser entertained at a large luncheon in her home. Mauolias-Shields Tables were placed on the lawn and decorated with summer flowers.

Wednesday morning at 8 o'clock Miss Helen Handel, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Handel, of Swissvale, became the bride of William S. Dunn, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Dunn, of Swissvale, in St. Anselm's Roman Catholic Church in Swissvale with the Rev. Thomas Dunn, of Baden, uncle of the bridegroom, officiating.

Church Wedding

The bride given in marriage by her father wore a princess gown of white satin with a brief train. Her tulle veil was trimmed with lace with a lace cap held by a band of seed pearls. She carried calla lilies. Mrs. Howard Seamon, of Swissvale, as the matron of honor, wore orchid net over satin with a matching hat of horsehair and carried garden flowers. The bridesmaids were Miss Betty Fehrendach, wearing peach net over satin; Miss Betty Flynn, wearing orchid satin, and Miss Marie Mona, wearing yellow taffeta. They wore baku hats matching their gowns and carried garden flowers. Peggy Abel, small cousin of the bride, was the flower girl and wore marine green georgette over pink satin and carried a basket of white roses. In her hair she wore a huge bow of pink mailine.

Louis Dunn, of Swissvale, was his brother's best man, and the ushers included Howard Seamon, Gerald Dunn, Henry Abel and Charles Fehrendach. The bride's mother wore oyster white chiffon and a corsage of tea roses and the bridegroom's mother wore orchid chiffon with a corsage of sweetpeas. Miss Marie Beck and Bernard S. Birk sang, accompanied by Miss Mary Brannigan at the organ. After the ceremony there was a breakfast in the home of the bride's parents. Covers were laid for 50. The bride's table was centered with garden flowers.

Wedding Ushers

Mr. and Mrs. Dunn left for a motor trip to Detroit and will be at home after July 1 in Homestead street, Swissvale.

Mrs. Anna E. Roe, daughter of the Rev. James Law, became the bride of George J. Gutekunse, of Rippey street, on Thursday in the home of the bride's father, who solemnized the marriage at 6 o'clock in the evening.

The bride wore a gown of rose-beige chiffon and carried pink talisman roses. She was attended by her sister, Miss Vertha V. Law, who wore a gown of brown figured chiffon and lace and carried yellow roses. Robert Dronesfield, of Pittsburgh, was the best man. After the wedding there was a reception and dinner, and later Mr. and Mrs. Gutekunse left for a motor trip through Canada. Mrs. Frederick Marsh Gordon and Myles P. Law, of New York, daughter and son of the Rev. Law, were present at the ceremony.

On Saturday evening at 7:30 o'clock Miss Edith Amelia Holmes, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John B. Lambie, of Lyon avenue, Ben Avon, became the bride of Henry Swain, of Avalon, son of James B. Swain, of Roanoke, Va., in the home of the bride.

The bride wore a gown of eggshell satin and in her hair wore a wreath of orange blossoms, and carried Johanna Hill roses. Her sister, Miss Adelaide Lambie, who was the maid of honor, wore orchid satin, and the matron of honor was Mrs. William Kuhlman, Jr., wearing green satin. They both carried garden flowers.

James B. Swain, Jr., was his brother's best man, and after the ceremony there was a dinner and reception. After a wedding trip in Virginia, Mr. and Mrs. Swain will make their home in Avalon.

Mr. and Mrs. Sebastian Keehnle, of Meadowbrook Farms, are leaving soon for a Western tour, stopping at Denver, Col., to visit Mr. Keehnle's sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Geisert.

A shower honoring Miss Mary Andrews, of Winebiddle avenue, East End, was given Tuesday evening, June 10, in the home of Mrs. Mae H. Gardner, of Liberty avenue, East End. Miss Andrews will become the bride of William Edwards, of Graham street, East End, on Saturday afternoon, June 28, in the First Brethren Church of Pittsburgh. Following the ceremony a wedding supper will be served after which the bride and bridegroom will leave for a wedding trip.

* * *

Mr. and Mrs. William Frederick Whitney have issued invitations for the marriage of their daughter, Miss Josephine Thelma Whitney, to Olaf Alfred Dickman, which will take place on Saturday evening, June 28, at 6:30 o'clock in the Highland Presbyterian Church.

FEMININITY PLAYS A PART IN THE SPORTS OUTFIT

Sketched in Paris

Paris Bureau, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

PARIS, JUNE 16.—Even if you confine your sports activities to bridge, you are going to be intrigued by the new sports clothes that manage so cleverly to combine the practical with the pretty. There is a feminine note to the sports outfits shown in the current collections, that vividly demonstrates that the type of sports clothes so popular for many seasons, will be frowned upon for some time to come. Knees are not needed just now and skirts are of medium length with strategically placed pleats to attain ease of movement without having the skirt too wide. Pique is frequently used as trimming and silk shirting is a favorite fabric.

THE SEMI-SPORTS frock cannot be classified in any definite category, but it persists in turning up each season just the same. We would classify it as a frock perfectly at home in simple surroundings and an ideal garment for all-day activities, providing that said activities do not smack of the strictly formal. The busy woman is particularly addicted to the semi-sports frock, with it fills a very definite need.

* * *

SO THAT YOU may judge for yourself the looks and respective merits of the sports frock and the semi-sports dress we have secured a correct specimen of each for sketching purposes. The sports frock is by that master designer Patou and is of yellow silk shirting with a horizontal black line. Appliqued pieces, cut diagonally from the striped fabric, give an interesting effect, by varying the direction of the black lines. A crisp little bow of white pique trims the front of the bodice and the belt is of patent leather. The skirt is moderately long and laid in wide box-pleats in the front and back.

THE SEMI-SPORTS frock is from Maggy Rouff who used for it, butter colored crepe marocain and bordered it with dark blue crepe at the collars and cuffs. The buttons are of dark blue galalith to match the crepe borders. The skirt has a yoke which fasten to one side and below this side fastening is a patch pocket. Inverted box-pleats stitched part way down, give ample width to the straight skirt.

DAUGHTERS OF AMERICAN REVOLUTION HOLD FLAG DAY CELEBRATION AT SEWICKLEY

Pittsburgh Chapter Guest Of Mrs. J. B. Oliver at Estate in Shields

"American Ideals"—ideals of character, ideals of loyalty, of citizenship and democracy as represented by the American flag, were talked of by Judge Theodore George Risely, of Washington, at the Flag Day celebration of Pittsburgh Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, and urged as necessary in the education of the immigrant. Judge Risely, who is solicitor for the Federal Department of Labor, touched on the significance of the flag, and referred to the recent international conference on the codification of world law at which he was one of five American delegates.

This year the Daughters were the guests of Mrs. James B. Oliver at her home in Shields, one of the valley's most picturesque homes and ideal for such an occasion. The guests were seated on the lawn, the veranda to the annex serving as a rostrum from which Mrs. William D. Hamilton, retiring regent, presided. Miss Margaret B. Barnett, corresponding secretary general of the National Society, brought the greetings of the National Society and Mrs. John Brown Heron, past vice president general, was another honor guest. The ceremonials began with assembly singing of the "Star-Spangled Banner," led by Mrs. Anna Laura Cree; prayer by the Rev. H. R. Browne and the salute to the great flag flying high above the assemblage. To close the program, Mrs. Hamilton introduced her successor, Mrs. Henry Clay McEldowney, who made a brief inaugural address. A reception followed, the guests remaining for refreshments and to view the many beauties of Mrs. Oliver's estate.

DEAN PREACHES LAST SERMON

Dean Percy G. Kammerer, of Trinity Cathedral delivered his farewell sermon as head of the cathedral at services yesterday morning. A large attendance heard the final sermon. Dean Kammerer leaves Wednesday for Old Farms, Conn., where in the fall he will become provost of the Avon School for Boys. He has been at Trinity seven and one-half years.

The farewell sermon was delivered in conjunction with the communion service. Last night Dr. Kammerer assisted Canon Warner F. Gookin at the prayer meeting. A reception in honor of the dean and his family was held Friday night in Trinity house under the auspices of the Cathedral Service League, and a river excursion in their honor was given Saturday.

Millions Seek Heat Relief at Seashore

NEW YORK, June 16.—(INS.)—Showers and cooler weather were predicted for the East today following a day of heat which drove millions to the shore along the Atlantic seaboard.

Five persons were drowned in Boston as they sought relief in the sea when the mercury climbed to 91 degrees. One death from heat was reported in New York.

New Pastor Takes Charge at Avalon

The Rev. J. Norman Hunter recently called to the pastorate of the Avalon Presbyterian Church, preached his first sermon to his new charge yesterday morning. His topic was "God's Great Things." He came here from Blairsville, Pa., where he was minister for 10 years. He will reside at 234 Locust street, Avalon.

YANKS AMONG LEADERS IN BRITISH OPEN

SUN-TELEGRAPH SPORTS

Yanks Seek Golf Sweep. • Hot Race in American.
Strong in British Open. De Mar's Latest Feat.
Trade Favors Senators. Final Day for Deals.

SIX STRAIGHT WINS FOR UNCLE SAM

WITH the BRITISH amateur championship already captured by Bobby Jones and the British amateur title picked off by George Von Elm, Uncle Sam sets out today to try for a clean sweep of foreign golf honors by bagging the British open. If past performances count for anything, his chances for success must be rated as being unusually good, for American players have dominated this event through a number of campaigns. They have outclassed the opposing field to such an extent, in fact, that they have won the big title six years in succession and eight times in the last nine tournaments, the only defeat having been suffered by a single stroke.

Though Walter Hagen, the outstanding hero in that string of achievements, who won the crown himself four times and lost it on another occasion by only one shot, is not competing in this year's tourney, America presents a formidable array of seven stars among the 206 players entered for the qualifying rounds today and tomorrow. There are three amateurs in the peerless Jones, striving to be the first American to win both the British amateur and open titles, Von Elm and Don Moe, and four professionals in Jim Barnes, MacDonald Smith, Leo Diegel and Horton Smith.

Walter Hagen

THE LIST OF British open winners since 1921 shows how the spoils have been monopolized by talent from this side of the big water hazard. In 1921 Jock Hutchison, entered from this country, made a score of 296 and defeated Roger Wethered in the playoff. In 1922 Hagen (300) defeated George Duncan by a stroke. In 1923 Arthur Havers, of England (295), succeeded in keeping the title at home by defeating Hagen by a stroke.

Since that year the United States has swept the boards. In 1924 Hagen (301) defeated E. R. Whitcombe by a stroke. In 1925 Barnes (300) defeated A. Compston and E. Ray by a stroke. In 1926 Jones (291) defeated Al Watrous by two strokes. In 1927, Jones (285, a new record), defeated A. Boomer and F. Robson by six strokes. In 1928, Hagen (292) defeated Gene Sarazen, another American entry, by two strokes, and last year Hagen (292) defeated Johnny Farrell, also an American, by six strokes.

SURFACE VALUES WOULD appear to indicate that the Senators got the better of the trade whereby they obtained Outfielder Heinie Manush and Pitcher Alvin Crowder from the Browns in exchange for Outfielder Goose Goslin.

In fact, there is such a decided advantage apparent for Walter Johnson's outfit that it is hard to believe the Washington club did not cough up considerable cash on the side, though, as is always the case, it is denied that any money entered into the transaction.

Goose Goslin

AS A GENERAL rule, when a club receives two players for one, it is getting quantity for quality. But in this case, Washington, in exchange for an outfielder who batted only .288 last year and who is down to .268 this season, gets an equally good fly-chaser with a better throwing arm, who hit .355 in 1929 and has a mark of .321 for the present schedule. That alone would seem to mean an edge for the Senators, and in addition they receive a good pitcher in Crowder despite the fact that his record for 1930 shows only three victories against seven defeats.

IT IS NOT easy to understand the action of the Brown bosses, unless for some reason they were eager to get rid of Manush. For when they started out to make a trade they said their object was to get a hitter who would add a punch to their attack, yet in this deal, besides parting with Crowder, they gave up the only .300 sticker on their roster for a man who is batting 53 points less.

This is the second time that Crowder has been a member of the Washington pitching staff. The Senators had him in 1926 and part of 1927, and in July of the latter year they sent him to the Browns by the waiver route, taking Tom Zachary through the same channels in payment. The Pirates tried Crowder on the spring trip of 1925, after obtaining him from Birmingham, but turned him back to Birmingham when the latter club failed to keep an agreement in connection with the deal. He had a big season with the Browns in 1928, when he won 21 games and lost only five. Last year he won 17 and lost 15.

IF YOU THINK there's nothing hotter than the weather, just look at that pennant race in the American League. The National had the closer and more open fight for a time, but at present it's the junior loop that claims attention.

The recent dash of Roger Peckinpaugh's Indians and a June drive by Babe Ruth & Co. have turned what was originally only a two-club argument into a four-cornered fight that is one of the suitriest ever known at this advanced stage of a schedule.

Babe Ruth.

BY WINNING FROM the Tigers yesterday while the Yankees were trouncing the Indians for the second successive time in a wild slugfest, the Athletics regained first place, but four clubs really are running almost neck and neck. The A's, in the honor position, are only two games ahead of the Yanks, in fourth place. The Mackmen are only one game ahead of the Indians; the Indians are only a half game ahead of the Senators, and the Senators are only a half game ahead of the Yankees. All four clubs are charged with the same number of defeats, 21, a most unusual situation, and they are separated in the "Won" column only by the difference in number of games played. The rush of the Yanks caused the present jam. Not only did they stop the Indians by beating them twice Saturday and yesterday, but they have won four games in a row, six out of the last seven, and 12 out of the last 16.

AN ODD CHAIN of coincidences last week wiped out the entire

DIEGEL CARDS 70, VON ELM 71, JONES 73

HUNTSMAKE, Eng., June 16 (AP).—W. F. Twaits, of Bromley, British golf champion, had the lead at the end of the second round of the British open golf championship today by one stroke over the Wallasey (England) course. Twaits returned the fine card of seven 34 out and 34 in. Leo Diegel, American pro and former Canadian veteran, London pro, were tied for the lead at 146. Diegel, playing over the Royal Liverpool course and Braidbeer at Wallasey.

George Von Elm scored 71 over Wallasey and Bobby Jones 73 at the Royal Liverpool.

Mark Seymour, St. Leonard's, had a score of 71 at Wallasey, but withdrew from play when informed of the sudden death of his father while he was playing his round.

Don Moe, youthful Oregonian, and Horton Smith had 75 each, and Jim Barnes and MacDonald Smith were tied at 77.

BREAK GAVE ARNOLD START

By JESS CARVER.

This chap Arnold, the youthful Chicagoan who drives racing cars for a thrilling and dangerous livin', is a right nice sort of a chap and, among those who know a good racing driver from a bunch of beets, accounted plenty good.

Young Billy drives for Harry Hartz, the veteran pilot, who suffered injuries in a smashup a year ago from which he has not entirely recovered. Hartz, while flat on his back in a Boston hospital, designed the car that Arnold drove at Indianapolis Memorial Day and at Altoona Saturday. It was built by the Millers, who make the front-drive racers, and is a wonder.

HEPBURN SOUGHT

Hartz' accident and subsequent hospital stay put him pretty much on the rocks financially. He wanted the veteran Ralph Hepburn to race the car, but Hepburn, with a good job as consulting engineer for Studebaker, refused to risk his neck for less than 40 per cent. Hartz couldn't stand such an ante and as a last resort took the car to Indianapolis himself and attempted to qualify it.

His injur' legs lacked the PHILADELPHIA, June 16.—A note of optimism prevailed in the Pirate camp today when Manager Jewel Ens, upon his return from Baltimore, where he visited with Lloyd Waner, announced that Lloyd had so far recovered that he would join the club here tomorrow and would be back in uniform at Forbes Field Wednesday when the Pirates take on the Giants.

Skipper Ens spent yesterday with Lloyd and was more than pleased over his appearance. The little center fielder is heavier than he has ever been and he is anxious to get back in a baseball suit. He will travel from Baltimore to Philadelphia tomorrow and will be among those present tomorrow night when the Pirates head back home.

GAINS IN HEALTH

Brother Lloyd has not played a single game since the season began and the race is now two months old. He had his appendix removed last week, but did not show any improvement after reaching the spring training camp of the Pirates. Eventually he was sent to the Union Memorial Hospital in Baltimore, where he was thoroughly examined. His tonsils and adenoids were removed and soon afterward he started to gain in health and strength. Manager Ens thinks Lloyd will be able to play in about two weeks.

A semi-pro catcher named Nelson Jester from Virginia joined the Pirates here today. If he shows promise Manager Ens will sign him to a Pittsburgh contract.

The Pirates today are anxious to get some revenge on the very hostile East. Single contests with the Phillies are slated for this afternoon and tomorrow, and, needless to say, the Pittsburgh athletes are eager to cop the two remaining games before they return home to take on the Giants.

KREMER TO PITCH

The third battle with the Quakers will bring Remy Kremer to the mound against Recruit Collard. This youngster, like Phil Collins, has been quite a sensation around the City of Brotherly Love. The Shottonites, moreover, have an idea that they are just about as good a ball club as most of the teams in the Heydler circuit, and for that reason they are hard to shake down to defeat.

The Pirates this morning were in danger of dropping further into the second division as a result of the doings of the Braves. Bill McKechnie has his team in a practical tie with the Buccos. It's a great race all the way up and down the scale.

The Buccos spent the off Sunday in various ways. Quite a few of the Ensmen went to Atlantic City to see the sights. But ere they departed for the famed boardwalk town, they were warned to stay out of the water. Ens feared that his players might get sufficient sunburn to keep them out of action.

PETTY SOLD

Jess Petty, veteran left hander, today was missing from the Pirate roster. The pitcher, who has been a keen disappointment to two Pirate managers since he came to the team from Brooklyn in a swap involving Shortstop Glenn Wright, has been sold out-

Nick Altrock Says:

ST. LOUIS, June 16.—Don't let them tell you that Cleveland club isn't good. At first I thought they got into the first division on a false bill of lading, but they are there to stay. It was just 10 years ago that Brooklyn and Cleveland played a world series and history will repeat itself unless our Washington club and the A's can cure it of stuttering. I see where Schmeling and Sharkey got more than $150,000 apiece for fighting. I guess I will give up arguing with umpires and go in for barking at referees. The onl thing a heavyweight needs today is a couple of elocution lessons on how to claim a foul.

DELVECCHIO TOPS FIELD

By VERN SWARTSFAGER

Playing consistently brilliant golf a very exacting course, Perry Delvecchio, pro at the Greensburg Country Club, today practically assured himself of a place in the National Open tourney, at Interlachen next month, by carrying a 73 to pace a field of 97 in the open tourney district qualifying test at the Pittsburgh Field Club.

Delvecchio, out in 37 and home in 36, was a single stroke over par for the first half of the test, and three strokes ahead of his nearest rivals, George Underwood, Alcoma pro, Dave McKay, home club pro, and Vincent Eldred, pro at Highland, each of whom carded a 76.

Approximately one half of the contestants had finished the first round when Delvecchio posted his score. A second 18-hole round is to be played this afternoon, and the nine low scorers will be regarded as open tourney qualifiers.

Highlights of this morning's play were the performances of Watts Gunn and Alex (Sandy) Armour, brother of the renowned Tommy. Gunn carded a 79 and Armour turned in an 82, and unless their rounds this afternoon are of exceptional brilliance these linksmen of national renown will find themselves "out in the cold."

Lions' Varsity Teams Play at .643 Pace

STATE COLLEGE, Pa., June 16.—Penn State's eleven varsity teams played at an average of .643 during the year just closed, winning 54 and losing 30 contests. One game resulted in a tie.

Two teams, cross country and golf, had clean slates for the year, neither being defeated or tied in dual competition. The soccer and boxing teams won intercollegiate championships, although the former was tied in one of its league games. The tie failed to spoil the Lions' chances for a title since no other league entrant could boast a record of no defeats.

Wrestling and tennis were other sports to show successful records for their season. Each lost only one match out of six.

THE LOWDOWN ON THE BUCS

By THE BENCHWARMER.

PHILADELPHIA, June 16.—Well, folks the trip is nearly over and it hasn't been anything to brag about. When the season started everybody figured the Eastern clubs, except the Giants, was gonna be soft, but them Robins begin to flutter around like somebody and Bill McKechnie has the Braves kickin' up a lot of dust at the Wigwam.

It must be great to be a member of that Cincinnati club. It didn't take long for Dan and his gang to get down in the coal hole after they let them three stars go to the Giants. Dan says he made the deal with the idea of building up his club, but I guess he has a new way of doin' it.

GIANTS DANGEROUS

All of our crew thinks the Giants are gonna be plenty tough from here on. McGraw's pitchers do a lot of staggerin' but you won't notice it with that infield makin' double plays out of base hits. Critz had us so dizzy when we was at the Polo Grounds we all felt like we was on a merry-go-round when he hauled out of town.

Over in this town they do it with homers instead of double plays. This bird Klein has gone plumb daffy and he has all the Philly fans that way, too. There's one mean lookin' boy up around that plate. He swings from Borough Hall and I don't think you could scare him if you dusted him off every time he came up.

POOR O'DOUL

I was readin' in the papers a lot of sob stuff about Frank O'Doul being a disappointment at the plate this season and when I turn to the averages I see O'Doul is socking the old apple for about .370.

If the scribes begin to cry about a .370 hitter I wonder how they would feel if he fell down around .325 or so. They used to lead the league with marks like that when I was a kid. If one guy batted .370 his name was Cobb or Hornsby.

CREWS BEGIN HARD DRILL

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., June 16.—(AP.)—Nineteen of the 23 crews entered in the I. R. A. regatta on the Hudson here, June 26, will be on the river today. The squads of Navy, California, Cornell and M. I. T. arrived yesterday and all expect to be ready for their first local practice today.

Late yesterday the annual "Glendon Reunion" was held along the upper reaches of the course. Rich and Hugh Glendon, Columbia coaches, visiting their father at the Navy boat house. Navy's stock took a huge bound yesterday with its victory over the California varsity and regatta day promises a struggle between Navy and Columbia. The two Glendon camps are engaged in an intense, if friendly, rivalry.

The Far Western invaders, California, arrived late in the afternoon with Coach Ky Ebright in charge. He paid his compliments to Navy varsity, which defeated his first boat Saturday by half a boat length.

JOHNNIES NEAR M-A FLAG

Johnstown, above all else consistent, more and more looms up as the odds-on favorite to win the first half honors of the Middle Atlantic League season.

Although Clarksburg usurped the hero role by virtue of playing eight games and losing but one in the seven-day period ending Saturday, Johnstown entrenched itself in first place by winning six of seven games.

Yesterday at Cumberland, the Colts won both ends of a twin bill from Fairmont, taking the first game 10 to 3 and the second 4 to 3.

At Johnstown, the Johnnies lost to Charleroi, 8 to 5. Clarksburg and Jeannette divided a double bill at Clarksburg, the Generals winning the first game 4 to 3 and losing the second 6 to 3. Scottdale walloped Wheeling twice, 6 to 3 and 8 to 3.

MRS. HIRSCH VICTOR

NEW YORK, June 16.—(AP.)—Mrs Carolyn Swarts Hirsch, former Californian, defeated Mrs. K. J. Scherber, of England, 6-3, 6-3, in the final round of the women's metropolitan clay court tennis championships yesterday.

BOWEN PREPS FOR OLYMPICS

Reginald F. (Pete) Bowen, all-America quarter-miler of 1929 and intercollegiate champion this year, has finished his track career at the University of Pittsburgh, but is not expecting to put his spiked shoes in the closet for some time to come.

Bowen, the second man to win three quarter-mile championships—the I. C. 4-A, the A. A. U. and the national collegiate—is now packing up for a second trip to Europe and when he returns will attempt to make it two in a row in the A. A. U. meet over his home track at the stadium.

And after that Pete expects to compete through the 1932 Olympics, running under the colors of the New York Athletic Club.

Bowen and his coach, Frank Shea, are probably the most consistent quarter-milers of all time. Like his pupil, Shea won the three big championships a decade back.

Pete has another goal. He has not yet graduated from Pitt, and while he has had his three years of track he is eligible for football this fall and will try for a half-back position. He weighs 161 pounds and stands an even 6 feet.

By HARRY KECK,
Sports Editor.

A clever young Jewish lightweight from the sidewalks of New York meets a brilliant young Mexican puncher from Texas in the main bout in the Meyers Bowl, North Braddock, tonight.

The Jewish lad is Eddie Elkins, a newcomer in these parts, while his opponent is Tony Herrera, a distinct favorite and frequent performer here.

While in New York last week for the Sharkey-Schmeling fight, I made some inquiries about Elkins and was informed that he is an unusually smart ringster who might readily be expected to defeat almost anybody in his class. He has a good record against such stars as Bruce Flowers, Jack (Kid) Berg, Pete Nebo, Tony Caragliano, Jimmy McNamara, Billy McMahon and Phil Goldstein, among others. He is managed by Lew Brown, of New York and is a stablemate of Tommy Crawley, local lightweight, who, like Goldstein, has boxed Herrera twice.

HERRERA FAVORITE HERE

Herrera needs no introduction to the fans of this section. They are fully aware of his bounding style of milling and the lethal power that he packs in his overhand right hand punch. He is one of the most pleasing boxers to appear around here in years.

Johnny Willis, rangy Negro featherweight, of Erie, who has boxed Johnny Dunn and other notables, makes his local debut against Johnny Chiodo, of Johnstown, another favorite, in the eight-round semi-final tonight. Georgie Bretsch, punishing welterweight, of the North Side, boxes Freddie Edwards, of Chester, W. Va., in the second bout, and Sammy Paris, of the Hill, and Al Iovino, of Swissvale, bantams, meet in the opener at 8:45 daylight saving time.

CRAWLEY BOUT SET BACK

Tommy Crawley's bout with Louis (Kid) Kaplan, set for Albany, N. Y., tonight, has been set back to Friday night and will be staged at Waterbury, Conn., instead of at Albany. Tony Leone, of Dover, O., who boxes Johnny Dunn at Wheeling next Monday night, meets Henry Leonard at Chicago tonight.

Between Rounds

Buck McTiernan, of Swissvale, and Farmer Jim Cooper, of Terre Haute, Ind., have been matched for the main bout at the Meyers Bowl next Monday night. This is a natural, in view of the argument that ensued when Cooper was awarded a questionable decision over McTiernan at Motor Square Garden last fall. Cooper is a favorite with the local fans. He never has lost a decision here and last Monday night handed Joe Trippe a beating at the Bowl. The match should be one of the best "draws" of the season here.

The ruling of the State Workmen's Compensation Board that a boxer can collect from a promoter for injuries received in a bout is an important and incongruous one. It puts the clubs in a tough spot, because to compound the hurt in a bout or it isn't considered any good, and, if there are injuries, the promoters are liable to damages.

Tiny Grove, the young heavyweight, of Detroit, who beats George Parks, of Homestead, in the main bout at Riviera Park, Millvale, Thursday night, boasts a punch, having scored a number of knockout victories. He comes well recommended and will furnish George a real test.

Parks, by the way, was punching the bag last Thursday when Lube Carney, his trainer, pulled a watch on him and said, "Look, George, it's 2 o'clock and Sharkey and Schmeling are weighing in over in New York for their bout tonight. One of these days you'll be in the ring, too, and the result will turn out to make a fuss over you." "Do you know," replied George, "I was just thinking of that myself." And he continued to whale away in a purposeful way at the leather.

Answer to query—Jack Johnson and Stanley Ketchel boxed only once, at Colma, Cal., Johnson winning on a knockout in the twelfth round.

Young Rudy and Freddie Edwards have been matched to box the main bout at the Washington (Pa.) armory Thursday night.

Vince Dundee boxes Young Ketchel at Leiperville, Pa., tomorrow night.

Hein Mueller, of Germany, who believes he is a better heavyweight than Max Schmeling, his fellow-countryman, boxes Armand DeCarlos, of Italy, in the 10-round semi-final to the Young Stribling-Otto Von Porat bout at the Chicago Stadium, Wednesday night. Edgar Norman and Ted Ross are in another bout.

Tom Heeney boxes Ricardo Bertazolo, of Italy, in a 10-round bout at Boston on the night of June 30.

Bunny Buntach, manager of Buck McTiernan, denies his man is matched with Mickey Solomon at New Brighton on June 28, as announced.

ANDERSON CAPTAIN

STATE COLLEGE, Pa., June 16.—Carl O. Anderson, of Wilson, Pa., has been elected captain of the Penn State lacrosse team for next season.

Sport Vignettes

Taking a leaf from the flight of the heavyweight championship of the ring to Germany, we now have kicked off the Wightman Cup and passed the tariff bill . . . . After that, anything can happen . . . . Bobby Jones even may lose on a foul in the British Open . . . . And our Pirates may win two games in a row . . . . Next step is to match Jimmy Johnston and Joe Jacobs for the foul-claiming championship . . . . Wotta match, wotta match! . . . . Field had no chance against Billy Arnold at Altoona Saturday because there were no judges . . . . Harold Barnes, who called that foul on Sharkey denies he's an optician, as claimed. He's an optometrist, if you know the difference . . . . He's only 35 years old, married, has a young son and daughter and wears a mustache . . . . Now you know who it was that had the courage to call a foul when he saw one, even if it did mean giving the fight and title to an outclassed challenger from over the sea . . . . Incidentally, Barnes never has done any boxing himself, but for the last 10 years he has been one of the best officials in New York and has officiated in the more important matches . . . . He's a big shot now and will be remembered during the life of the present generation of ring fans, at least . . . . Jake Pitler, brother of Johnny Ray and former Pirate second baseman, who is managing the Elmira club and playing his old position, has his club up near the top in the New York-Pennsylvania League race . . . . The Pitt tennis team won 45 singles and doubles matches and lost only nine during the season recently closed . . . . Only one match was lost in the first five engagements, to Bethany, in the first dual meet, the score being 8 to 1 . . . . Wash-Jeff and Carnegie Tech were shut out, the latter twice, and Bethany was blanked in a return battle . . . . The last two matches were the only tough ones, West Point being beaten by only 5 to 4 and California's brilliant team lost to, 3 to 2 . . . . The Baltimore Orioles won 20 games out of 23 in a long home stay to climb from fifth place to first in the International League . . . . Yesterday they opened a six-game series against Rochester, which is in second place, quite a distance behind . . . . The Orioles were one of the greatest teams in the game during the heyday of the late Jack Dunn, who piloted them to six consecutive pennants following the wartime period . . . . The Ambridge Country Club boasts a real "yes man" in R. W. Aye . . . . Herbert Bayard Swope, former New York publisher and a member of the Tunney-Muldoon trophy committee, comes out with a good remedy for the foul evil, suggesting that in the future all matches ending in fouls be declared "no contest" and the man committing the foul being deprived of his purse.—HARRY KECK.

BURKE LAUDS JUNIOR GOLF TOURNEY

James Francis Burke, former general counsel for the United States Golf Association, a member of the rules committee of the governing body, and general counsel for the Pittsburgh Chamber of Commerce, has heartily endorsed the third annual Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph West Penn amateur junior tournament for the William Randolph Hearst Trophy, which is to be held at the Schenley Park municipal links on Monday, July 7. The noted golf authority said:

I know of no more wholesome event in the entire amateur sporting world than the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph West Penn amateur junior golf tournament for the Hearst Trophy.

"I have participated in and made a study of many sports and pastimes, but find that none of them develop a finer spirit of healthy competition and promote a finer set of companionships and fellowships than the game of golf.

"This tournament will have much to do with teaching these boys self-reliance, giving them confidence and educating them in the art of dealing fairly with all those with whom they come in contact in the battle of life."

EVENT WORTH WHILE

And it's the truth—every boy who competes in the William Randolph Hearst tournament will be getting something of material value from it, whether or not he is fortunate enough to be one of the prize winners.

With the entries for the tournament due to close on July 2, it would be a wise thing for all those amateurs 19 years of age and under who are not attending an institution of learning above preparatory school grades, which includes caddies 17 years of age and under, to get their entry blanks filled out, signed and sent in as soon as possible to the Golf tournament Editor. Remember—there is no entry fee. All a person has to do to get in this tournament is to send in an entry blank and provide his own clubs and balls—and even if you don't have them, Professional Al McBride at Schenley Park has a limited number of sticks for hire.

There is to be a special team trophy for the high or preparatory school team of four golfers, none more than 19 years of age, to be awarded in conjunction with the tournament—and chaps like Regis Wolff and his team of golfers out in Bellevue should organize their teams and enter them as quickly as possible.

CADDIES MUST QUALIFY

As for the caddies—eight caddies from each club within 20 miles of Pittsburgh may qualify for the event in preliminary tests, the four low scorers in the first tests to represent their club in the fight for the team plaque, which was won last year by the Castle Shannon Golf Club. Of course, if your club is more than 20 miles from the city and you are a caddie, it will not be necessary to have a preliminary qualifying test.

The entry list has grown to beyond the 150 mark, and it is going up. With several country clubs expected to qualify their caddies this week, it is anticipated that 500 or more boys will be in the fold before the week comes to an end. Don't delay YOUR entry blank—send it in NOW!

Dartmouth Cinches Eastern College Title

NEW YORK, June 16.—(AP)—The closing stages of the eastern intercollegiate baseball league's first official campaign saw Dartmouth clinch the championship through Princeton's upset of Yale, 6 to 2, in the historic feud between the Bulldog and the Tiger.

The only remaining game between Cornell and Dartmouth today cannot disarrange the lineup of the teams.

NET TOURNEY ENTRY LIST GROWS

Entries for the Pittsburgh Public Parks tennis championships slated to get under way under the auspices of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph on six batteries of Steel City park courts on July 14 are pouring in in ever-increasing numbers and all indications point toward one of the largest lists of contestants ever compiled for a local net event before the roster is closed the week prior to start of hostilities.

The handsome prizes to be awarded victorious racqueters in individual park and inter-park competition and particularly the prospect of trips to the National Public Parks championships at Washington, D. C., which will reward the title-captors in both the men's and the women's final play-offs have caught the interest of parks netmen to such an extent that a record turnout of public courts tennis talent is assured.

A most attractive feature of the Parks Sun-Telegraph tourney is the fact that no entrance fee is charged and that players will battle it out on rectangles in their own districts and thus avoid even the expense of transportation. Entry fees frequently constitute a stumbling block to younger players, especially those who figure that they will not last long in the jousting. In the Pittsburgh Public Parks tourney, however, there is absolutely no cost whatever levied upon the contestant, save that of a stamp in forwarding his entry blank to the Tournament Editor.

Feminine stars are urged to break into the Parks milling. Exceptional opportunity for nation-wide distinction is offered in this division, for 1930 is the first year in which a women's class has been added to the National municipal titular meeting and it is improbable that any performer of present wide repute will appear to dominate the going.

Thus the mere circumstance that an aspiring racquetress has enjoyed little or no previous tournament experience should not operate as deterrent from seeking the United States crown as Pittsburgh standard-bearer.

YANKEES DEFEAT INDIANS; A'S ROUT TIGERS

GIANTS DOWN CUBS; ROBINS REDS LOSE

Associated Press

Thanks to the good left arm of Robert Moses [illegible] and the powerful bats [illegible] Getzig and Babe Ruth [illegible] Philadelphia Athletics are leading the American League again.

Grove [illegible] pitching yesterday enabling the Athletics to whip Detroit 5 to 1 while Getzig and Ruth [illegible] batting the Yankees to a victory over Cleveland [illegible] pace-setters in the circuit. [illegible] the two results combined [illegible] the Athletics back into first place by a margin of one full game.

Grove gave the Tigers only four hits while [illegible] pounded Sorrell, Herring and Sullivan for 14 solid blows [illegible] being Jimmy Foxx's fourteenth homer of the year.

GEHRIG HITS TWO

Gehrig [illegible] seventeenth and [illegible] Wednesday's first home [illegible] the Yankee massacre of Cleveland. Hungry Lou" drove in seven runs for one of his best batting days this season. The Yanks pounded Hudlin and Shoffner for 16 runs in the first three innings and the game was won and lost beyond much doubt. Herb Pennock went the route for the Yankees and pitched no harder than he had to. The largest crowd [illegible] that ever saw a game at Cleveland was on hand.

The St. Louis Browns nicked their old playmate Al Crowder for two runs in the ninth to nose out Washington 3-2. Crowder was traded on Saturday with Heinie Manush for Goose Goslin blanked the Browns for six innings but weakened in the closing stages of the struggle.

GIANTS NEAR SECOND

In the National League the New York Giants advanced to within a game and a half of second place by whipping the Chicago Cubs 7-4. Pete Donohue settled down after a shaky start and held the Cubs safe while the Giants pounded Blake and Teachout freely. Hogan's homer with two on in the seventh settled the game.

Brooklyn lost ground to the Giants by dropping a 9-4 decision to the St. Louis Cardinals. The Cards took advantage of five Brooklyn errors to score nine runs on as many hits.

In the only other National League game the Boston Braves beat Cincinnati, 4-3, behind steady pitching by Ben Cantwell. The Reds were blanked for six innings but pounded Cantwell for two runs in the seventh and one in the ninth before the Braves' pitcher applied the brakes.

PIRATES SELL JESS PETTY

right to the Newark Club of the International League.

The passing of Petty means that 15 other major league clubs had to waive on his services and Petty it seems has not had sufficient years in the big show to claim a free agent release. Ten-year men cannot be sent to the minors.

There seems to be friendly relations between the Pittsburgh and Newark club and it is possible that the Pirates will get the first chance at Jess's services if he gets into a winning stride. There was nothing said to this effect when the Pittsburgh officials gave out the news of the deal.

Petty, according to reliable information, was the second highest salaried player on the Pittsburgh club. It is reported that Jess's contract called for a stipend of better than $15,000. Petty received something like this amount in his last year in Brooklyn and when he came to the Pirates, his pay was boosted.

DREW BIG SALARY

So, in releasing the veteran outright, the Pirates have disposed of a big-salary man and herein may lie the answer to the action of the 15 other clubs in waiving on the player. Few clubs would wish to assume the responsibility of paying Jess' semi-monthly check.

Donie Bush, manager of the White Sox, is one manager who might like to have Petty. Donie thinks Jess is a good pitcher, but Owner Comiskey probably doesn't want any $15,000 or better players around unless he has changed his ways. In view of Jess' showing this year, any owner should hesitate about paying such a salary.

Big Jess made a bad start in his first season with the Pirates, which was last year. He ran into all kinds of tough luck, but he made a hard fight against adversity and wound up the season pitching fine ball.

Petty this year has been in even worse straits. He has won but one game and lost six.

Petty expected to leave for Pittsburgh some time today to close up some affairs and have a conference with Barney Dreyfuss before he goes to Newark.

Babe Ruth Gives Tips On Catching Art

By BABE RUTH
Baseball's Highest Salaried Player.

"Why is it," Mac asked, "that every big league player considers a catcher so important? Seems to me the pitcher is the fellow who does the work."

I had to laugh at that one.

"The catcher can make or break a pitcher," I told him. "The catcher is the fellow who is responsible for the signals—he's the chap who must size up hitters and decide what their weakness is and how the pitcher is to pitch to them."

"What's the first thing for a catcher to remember?" Mac asked.

"Always to give the pitcher a target," I replied. "Always to give him something to shoot at."

The picture shows what I mean.

On every pitched ball the catcher should hold his glove as a target at the spot where he wants the ball delivered. It's much easier to pitch and get control if you have something definite to throw at than it is to pitch when you're just shooting at the plate.

GLOVE USED AS TARGET

"But how do I give him a target?" Mac asked.

"With your glove," I told him. "If you want a ball high and inside hold your glove in the spot where you want the ball to come. If you want the pitch low and outside hold your glove there for the pitcher to throw at. If you ever watch a real catcher perform you'll see him hold his glove for every pitch. By doing that he gives the pitcher something definite to throw at—some direct mark that he can aim for."

"But how can I tell what to have him throw?" Mac asked.

"That depends on the hitter," I told him. "Certain hitters have certain weaknesses and the good catcher soon discovers what they are. However, there are certain rules you can always follow. If you're expecting the hitter to bunt, then have the pitcher pitch a fast one high and inside. That's the toughest ball in the world to bunt.

HOW TO PLACE PITCHES

"If you've got a right-hand hitter up there and you want him to hit to the left the usual rule is to pitch inside; or, if you want him to hit to right field, you pitch outside. With a left-hand hitter you pitch inside to make him hit to right and outside if you want him to hit to left.

"But suppose I don't know?" Mac inquired.

"Then," I said, "you've got to use your judgment. In pitching to a hitter you never saw before, it's always a pretty good rule to try the first one high and inside. Then send the next one over low and outside. In other words, don't give him a good one to hit until you see how he swings and what he seems to like. For most hitters the fast ball that is inside and around his shoulders is the hardest pitch to hit. Or, if you are pitching a curve ball to him, keep it low. Most any curve ball that breaks above the waist is easy to hit and the good catcher always is having the pitcher keep his curve ball low. The nearer it is to the knees the better unless, of course, you know that a hitter likes a low ball."

MAKE BATTERS WORK

"Gee," said Mac, "it sounds complicated."

"Sure," I replied, "and it is complicated. But there are a couple of rules you can always remember. Never fail to give your pitcher a target—and never give a hitter a good ball if you can help it. Inside, outside, high or low—but never down the middle unless you're in a bad hole and have to make him hit."

Long's Sport Comment

list of major league hurlers who had pitched more than one game to a decision and still remained undefeated. There were six of these when the week opened, but they had all been beaten by Saturday night.

Lefty Groves, of the Athletics, was the first to go down, and he was followed in short order by Adolfo Luque, of the Dodgers; Bob Osborn, of the Clubs, and Bob Burke, of the Senators. This left only Lee Roy Mahaffey, of the A's, and Mel Harder, of the Indians, on the undefeated roll, and both were knocked off on Saturday.

IN DEFENSE OF Eastern athletes defeated in Southern California, it has been claimed that they were prevented from doing their best by the heat of the strange climate. It doesn't sound so convincing since 42-year-old Clarence De Mar in Los Angeles Saturday stepped out and beat a swarm of natives with ease in such a taxing contest as a marathon race.

This age marvel seems not merely to be as good as ever, but actually better. For instance, in last year's running of the same event, De Mar was defeated by Harry Chaca, crack Indian runner. This year De Mar beat Chaca home by close to 11 minutes.

Pinky Whitney

TODAY IS THE last day that will be allowed John McGraw to decide whether or not he wants any more players from Cincinnati. The trading season will close at midnight. After that hour, until the ending of the pennant races, big league pastimers cannot be shifted around except by waivers. Indications today were that there would be no further trades or sales. It is reported that among other deals discussed recently was a three-cornered dicker among the Cubs, Braves and Phillies, one angle of which was to have called for the transfer of Pinky Whitney or Fresco Thompson to the Bruins, but this is said to have fallen through. The rule restricting each major league club to not more than 25 players also will take effect at midnight and remain in force until August 31.

SOCCER REFS ELECT AT CONFAB

By TOM BIRKS.
Staff Correspondent.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., June 16.—With the United States Referees Association holding its annual meeting and election of officers for the coming season here at Haddon Hall last evening, another couple of fruitful soccer sessions went down into history. Like the parent body, the referees practically elected the entire slate of officers intact. Contrary to his own statements, President E. J. Gilgane finally ran for re-election and again was elected.

John Woods, of Chicago, opposed Gilgane on the presidential ticket but lost, and then got the office of first vice president. Jimmy McFarlan, of Cleveland, was elected second vice president, and Pat O'Conner, president of the Western Pennsylvania Referees' Association, third vice president. Sam Pickering, of Cleveland, lost out in the fight to hold his office as secretary, and W. R. Welsh, who once before held the office, copped the job.

A flock of changes in the by-laws of the association, but nothing of a startling nature, went through. The meeting closed with a banquet given to the delegates at Haddon Hall. A few of the national officers of the United States football association attended the banquet.

It might be mentioned while passing that Judge Eugene C. Bonniwell was the surprise speaker at the National convention on Saturday evening.

It was officially announced that the 1931 convention will be held in Chicago. Seattle is trying for the convention in 1932, but a trip to the West coast seems to be out.

With another national convention a matter of history, competent observers fail to see anything in the nature of a forward step in improving the game, or the legislative end of the sport.

In some cases it was pitiful to watch the delegates struggling along with things that did not mean anything. And after watching another session, the same thought that crossed the writer's mind many years ago in the Hotel Astor, New York, and the Hotel Tuller, in Detroit, was revived that it is foolish for delegates to waste their time in conventions, as the past presidents dominate everything that is done.

Another matter is the recognition of voting powers. Here was the Atlantic Coast Soccer League, vitally interested in voting down the three-game proposition suggested for divisional and grand final of the National challenge cup.

President Gilgane, of the Referee's Association, voted for the three games because they will find his referees work, and Davy Gould, who represents the Intercollegiate body, and is also publicity agent for the Referees' Association, also voted for the games. The professionals were left holding the bag.

It seems ridiculous that delegates representing little leagues should tell the big Eastern outfit what to do, but through the U. S. F. A. they are doing it.

DAY'S SANDLOT CARD FULL

A well-balanced card will be offered to the local sandlot baseball fans this evening. Two games will be staged in the West Penn League. Universal clashes with Whitaker and Verona tackles Jack Fertig's crack Homestead Aces. Both Universal and Verona are flashing real winning form at the present time.

Carnegie Steel and Reick-McJunkins, who battled it out last season in the C. & I. League will meet at Sullivan Field. Engleman and Laboon will be the opposing pitchers for this game.

Only one game will be staged in the Central League. Beckman Motors and the Jimmy Coslett club will clash at Schenley High School field.

THOMAS, CIVICS CLASH

Two games will be played in the City Circuit. J. L. Thomas will clash with the North Side Civics. Seeing that Art Rooney's bunch of fighters are popular at Dean Feld, a large crowd should be on hand.

The other game will find the Book Shoe nine doing its stuff opposed to Stowe Civics. Pop Geer wants to stop the Shoemen and another banner crowd of Mt. Washington fans should be on hand to watch the fun.

The coming week will see the end of the first half battles in nearly all of the circuits. Some of the first half championships, like in the Commercial and Industrial League, already are conceded, but the Central League is wide open and there might be some surprises in the West Penn before the first half is finished.

BOOK SHOE WINS

Yesterday, in the City League, Book Shoe nosed out St. Johns by a 4 to 3 score; North Side Civics won over W. O. W. 1 to 0 and then defeated St. Johns, 9 to 3.

The Stowe-Smith game was awarded Stowe by forfeit by the umpires when Jimmy Smith rushed Dan Dougherty. Several of his own players intervened and Jimmy promptly attacked some of them.

At Sharon, the Homestead Grays and the Brooklyn Royal Giants divided a twin bill, the Grays winning 3 to 0 and losing by a 6 to 2 count.

By PAUL G. SULLIVAN

A week-end of startling upsets laid the Pittsburgh Tennis Association Inter-Club League away in old lavendar till July 12 and from now until next Saturday Steel City racqueters will devote themselves daily to diligent practice for the forty-second annual Western Pennsylvania championships billed to open on June 21 on the clay courts of the Stanton Heights Golf Club.

Early dope on the West Penn event indicates that something akin to a new record will be set in number of entries in the various divisions of play. This is particularly true of the women's sector, in which an extraordinary fine array of talent, including Mrs. Martha Guthrie Snowdon, 1929 champion; Mrs. Dorothy Lewis, 1928 titleholder; Dorothy Jarvis, 1927 premiere; Mrs. W. S. Muckle, Stanton Heights luminary; Mrs. Hilary Binns, former Cumberland ace; Helen Carson, accomplished Greensburg southpaw; Miriam Sullivan and Betty Wattles, P. A. A. drivers, and numerous other clever contenders from the tri-state area will cross bats.

ALL MAY ENTER

Chairman Ed Seitz of the titular affair has announced that invitations to all netmen on the P. T. A. mailing list have been out for several days.

"We realize, however," stated Seitz last evening, "that our roster of players is by no means complete. Names are sometimes lost or inadvertently omitted. Then, too, of course, there are many younger players, and a good many older ones, too, who have not been competing in tournaments, but who will be eager to enter the 1930 West Penn championships because of the new men's singles consolation round feature which gives opportunity to those eliminated in their first matches to compete for consolation prizes. Persons who desire to enter the tournament, but who have not received invitations, are asked to forward their names and the events they desire to play in to John D. Beatty, in care of the Stanton Heights Golf Club, North Aiken avenue, Pittsburgh."

LOCALS ABROAD

Meanwhile several local racqueters will be carrying home colors into foreign action today and throughout the remainder of the week. Dave O'Loughlin, Eddie Jacobs and Irving Goodman, crack Pitt varsity satellites, are in Wilmington for the Delaware state championships, which begin at the Wilmington Country Club there this afternoon. Wally Arensberg, 1929 Shady Side Academy captain and present Harvard freshman mainstay, is also carded to compete at Wilmington.

Sam Keller, Duquesne Library leader; Sullivan, of the P. A. A., and perhaps Jake Olko, speedy South Hills forkhander, will be on deck at the Cleveland Tennis and Racquet Club for the Ohio State championships and the United States inter-city doubles.

strength to hold the accelerator to the floor and it looked as though the great car would have to be scratched. After a conference with his backers (Hartz had barely enough money to pay the race insurance premium on the machine), it was decided to give young Arnold, who was employed as a pit mechanic, a chance. Arnold took the powerful machine out and qualified it at a speed of 123 miles per hour. Then Hartz asked him what he'd take to drive it in the race.

"Twenty-five per cent if I win and nothing if I lose," was Billy's answer.

Arnold drove over half of the 500-mile distance at Indianapolis without stopping and then came to the pit only to have his front tires checked. He roared over the 200-mile course at Altoona without a pause.

He's earned close to $70,000 so far for his employer, and with Hartz running things in the pit and Spider Matlock as his mechanic, and a great car, figures to clean up every dollar he aims for this year.

Tariff Effect Exaggerated; Money Tonic

By B. C. FORBES

NOT A CHEERFUL week. Developments in business were most on the side of the pessimists. Developments in the stock market were mostly on the side of the bears.

Clearly, the first half of the year is ending disappointingly.

Faith that improvement will come in the second half is still widely retained. Only the fourth quarter, not the third, is mentioned frequently as likely to mark the definite turning point in general activity although it is predicted by many that recovery in stocks will set in before then.

THE MOST DISCUSSED event of last week was the indorsement of the tariff by the Senate 44-4, vote. Admittedly opposition to the measure has become far more widespread and far more outspoken during recent weeks. Press, public, industrial magnates, bankers, theorists alike have condemned the hodge-podge bill.

Foreign countries apparently are determined to follow their voiced hostility by hostile action. Cables announce that leading European copper buyers are arranging to transfer as many of their orders as possible to other than American producers. This may be lightly characterized as merely a gesture, since European buyers have not purchased copper from us because they loved us, but because it was good business to do so. Nevertheless, the movement unquestionably signifies the bitter feeling aroused throughout the world by our tariff masons. And, after all, enmity on the part of the customers is not conducive to the building up of business relations.

HAVING FRANKLY forced these disagreeable facts, it may be timely to quote a time-honored Wall street axiom: "Anything is better than uncertainty."

The new tariff is hardly likely to play havoc with many stocks. As a matter of fact, numbers of corporations will be financially benefitted and they are likely to be the first to respond. Before some of our very large corporations who expect their foreign sales to be prejudiced actually experience any drastic curtailment, foreign resentment over the tariff may abate — some other topic will doubtless come to the front to crowd tariff discussions into the background.

American industry must simply make the best of the deal meted out by Washington. While there is occasion for profound regret, there is no occasion for panic.

FALLING PRICES continue. Cotton, for all except July delivery, broke below 14 cents at New York for the first time this year, while spot prices actually went below 13 cents at several southern points. Wheat likewise went to the lowest quotations of the current crop year. Corn, rye and oats also gave way.

Copper was cut half a cent, to 12 cents, at custom smelters. Zinc and tin fell to new minimum levels. Rubber also declined, so did several other commodities.

Commercial failures continue disagreeably numerous. The failure of perhaps the largest state bank in Florida, at Miami, was accompanied by the closing of several other smaller institutions. Here and there throughout the country other small banks have been going under. In large cities bank shares have weakened under the depressing influence of abnormally low money rates, but it continues true that no major financial institution in a major city has had to close its doors, a record which strengthens the contention of those who favor the development of large institutions having branches.

STRICTLY FINANCIAL developments, apart from moderate weakness in stocks, were distinctly favorable. Call loans were officially reduced to 2½ per cent, time money was available for short periods at as low as 2¾, commercial paper was down as low as 3¼ per cent and short date bankers' acceptances at 2⅛ per cent. There were times when many millions of funds could not be rented out. Brokers' loans fell $103,000,000. The Federal Reserve System's ratio of reserve increased.

The German reparation bond offering was immediately oversubscribed and transactions started off appreciably above the issue price of 90. Several U. S. Government issues climbed to new peaks for the year.

THE LEAVEN of extremely cheap money cannot fail to have a stimulating influence by and by on bonds, on stocks, and, ultimately, on enterprise and general business. It was dear money, more than anything else, which stopped last year's rising tide of activity. Cheap money will unquestionably play its part in starting the country on an upward course.

$300,000 ORDER FOR TRUSCON

YOUNGSTOWN, O., June 16.—Operating schedules for the third week in June in the Mahoning and Shenango valleys reflect conditions which have been conspicuous in the trade for the past 30 days. Steel pipe mill production is on the upgrade, while that of flat, rolled steels, particularly sheets, is irregular. Of the 120 sheet mills in the Mahoning Valley, less than 50 are scheduled, representing the low point of the year. This curtailment is also reducing the number of active open hearth furnaces, which has been cut to 27 active units out of 51.

The district average of production declined 3 per cent for the week, with Republic Steel and Youngstown Sheet and Tube at 65 per cent.

Steel makers are hopeful that before the end of June new tonnage in flat rolled steel will show improvement, as the automobile industry gets into mass production on new models.

Newton Steel Company, catering almost wholly to the automobile trade, reflects irregular buying by this source, its production dropping this week to 50 per cent from a previously maintained 60 per cent.

Truscon Steel Company, the district's principal fabricator, has received an order aggregating $300,000 which will help its operations at a time when they were commencing to sag.

Four of the five non-integrated sheet mill properties at Niles are idle.

Strip mill production continues better than that of sheets, with most of the valley units engaged, but on a lower production basis.

Except in sheets, June is maintaining the production rate of May, and is showing betterment in some lines, notably tubes.

Price of Export Copper Reduced

NEW YORK, June 16.—A reduction of 25 points in the export price of copper was made today by Copper Exporters, Inc., bringing the export level of the metal to 12.30 cents a pound, C. I. F. European bases ports. The cut was the second made by Copper Exporters in the last few days, the export price having been reduced from 13 cents to 12.55 Saturday after custom smelters the day before had lowered the domestic price to 12 and 12¼ cents delivered.

Warner Brothers To Enlarge Studios

NEW YORK, June 16.—Plans to make First National Studios at Burbank, Calif., the largest talking picture plant in the world by spending more than $3,500,000, are under way by Warner Brothers Pictures. It is planned to add 14 new sound stages at a cost of $1,500,000, exclusive of electrical equipment.

Ohio Oil Breaks Old Marketing Boundaries

FORT WORTH, Tex., June 16.—Merger of Transcontinental Oil Company with Ohio Oil Company if consummated, will give the Ohio third rank among oil producing companies in Texas.

Another aspect of the Ohio-Transcontinetal merger lies in its furtherance of the process of Standard Oil units in breaking over into each other's marketing territory. Transcontinental has a refinery at Fort Worth and is a marketer in North Texas, which is Magnolia (Standard Oil of New York) and also Humble (Standard of New Jersey) territory. It also will market in Magnolia territory in Oklahoma as well as breaking into Atlantic Refining's territory in the East.

It is said the terms of the merger will be as follows: Ohio Oil will split its shares 2 for 1 and will give four-sevenths of new share for each share of Transcontinental.

Tariff Action Accepted Calmly in New York Financial District

Passage of the tariff bill by the Senate and indications that the measure would quickly take its place on the statute books, were calmly received by the principal trading stocks in the early dealings Saturday. Despite the admitted bad points of the revised schedules, Wall street was believed to feel that much could be said in their favor. In any event, it was felt that final disposition of the matter would eliminate the prevailing uncertainty in this regard, and allow business to go ahead on an intelligent basis. This viewpoint was reflected in a generally steady tone in the market as a whole. Copper shares were unsettled by threats of European reprisals against the tariff measure but pivotal stocks were mostly in good demand around the best levels of the recovery from the recent lows.

In answer to a request for his views on current business situation, Martin J. Insull, president of Middle West Utilities Company, made the following statement: "My feeling is that our business, taking the country as a whole, is much better than our business psychology. I think comparisons with 1928 would price the former and our comparisons with 1929 cause the latter. We seem to forget that 1929 was a year of greatest business the country ever knew. And far above a normal basis. It reached its peak about the middle of the year. So far this year we have been compared with a rising curve. From now on it will be different, and our business psychology should improve."

Porto Rican American Tobacco Company last year earned the present dividend of $7 a share on the class "A" stock, more than twice over, enabling it to make considerable progress in reducing accumulations, which since have been entirely cleared up. This fact was responsible for good buying in the issues of the company at times, although the reaction in the general market also has affected these stocks. So far this year, business of Porto Rican American has been substantially ahead of 1929, and earnings are well in excess of dividend requirements.

Judging from the comment of various observers on the scope of the existing short interest in the market is about as wide apart as the "poles." One commentator in discussing that phase of the situation holds "the short interest has grown to enormous proportions, particularly in the popular issues and others which have been the leaders in the activity on the downside." As against this another states, "While I do not concur in the belief that there is a large short interest in the market, I do think there are sufficient shorts in many pivotal issues to accelerate any extended rally."

The influx of gold during May reached $23,550,000, or slightly less than the $24,098,000 coming in during May last year, while exports were but $82,000 against $467,000 last year. The five months' total of imports of the yellow metal was $218,459,000, compared with an inflow of $150,745,000 in the same period of 1929, while exports reached $9,637,000 compared with exports of $6,500,000 in the first five months of last year.

Utilities Power and Light "A" is one of the utility systems whose shares have failed to participate to any marked degree in the buoyancy of the utility group in recent months, and therefore have suffered to a correspondingly smaller extent in the current deflation. The growth of earnings of the company has been consistent since 1924, with the latest report, that for the 12 months ending September, 1929, equal to $2.22 per share of class "A" stock. Both gross and net income have been at new peak levels in the monthly statements that have come to light, and the $2 annual dividend on the class "A" stock affords a yield of close to 6 per cent, an attractive return for a utility stock.

CHEAT RIVER POWER O. K.'D

CHARLESTON, W. Va., June 16.—Development by the West Virginia Power and Transmission Company or hydro-electric power on the Cheat and Blackwater rivers was approved by the Public Service Commission today.

The commission's approval was given in a lengthy report of its investigation of the company's application and of objections of protestants. A meeting of company officials and protestants to agree upon the form of the formal order was called for June 24.

In its report the commission stated that the company with respect to the Cheat and Blackwater projects "has met the requirements of the water power act and the act makes it the duty of the commission to issue a license therefore in the name of the state."

Chesapeake Asks Split-Up Approval

WASHINGTON, June 16.—Formal application was made to the Interstate Commerce Commission today by the Chesapeake & Ohio Railroad for permission to split up its outstanding common stock issue on the basis of issuing four shares for one now in existence.

The step was authorized last fall by the corporation, which is the central unit in the group of railroads popularly known as the Van Sweringen lines, by reason of their control at the hands of O. P. and M. J. Van Sweringen of Cleveland, and associates. It represents one of the first occasions on which a major railroad has resorted to a practice of altering capital structure which has become rather general in industrial corporation management.

FREE OF PENNSYLVANIA FOUR MILLS TAX

THE UNION TRUST COMPANY OF PITTSBURGH, TRUSTEE

Mr. W. L. Mellon, President of the Company, has made the following summary of his letter to us:

Business and Properties

Union Gulf Corporation has been organized under the laws of Pennsylvania by Gulf Oil Corporation of Pennsylvania and certain of its stockholders, to conduct directly or through subsidiaries the business of transporting, refining, distributing and marketing of petroleum and its products.

The properties of the Corporation and its subsidiaries will include a pipe line system which will connect near Tulsa with the present pipe line system of Gulf Oil Corporation of Pennsylvania, and will extend to refineries that will be acquired or constructed at Toledo and Cincinnati, Ohio, and Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania.

Through these facilities the large production of subsidiaries of Gulf Oil Corporation of Pennsylvania in the Mid-Continent, Louisiana, Arkansas and Texas fields will be made economically available to supply present marketing facilities and to meet the expected growth and expansion of the business in territory east of the Mississippi River, particularly in western Pennsylvania and in the Ohio River and Great Lakes districts.

Security

The Bonds are to be secured under a Trust Indenture through pledge with the Trustee of:

200,000 shs. Pullman Incorporated Capital Stock
140,000 shs. Aluminum Co. of America Preferred Stock.
200,000 shs. Aluminum Co. of America Common Stock.
60,000 shs. Pittsburgh Plate Glass Co. Common Stock.
60,000 shs. Pittsburgh Coal Co. Preferred Stock.
30,000 shs. United States Steel Corp. Common Stock.

At current prices the indicated aggregate market value of this collateral is more than $80,000,000.

The Indenture will provide that the Corporation will maintain on deposit with the Trustee securities satisfactory to the Trustee with an aggregate market value equal at all times to at least 130% of the principal amount of Bonds at the time outstanding.

The Corporation may from time to time, but only with the consent of the Trustee, substitute other marketable collateral for that then pledged under the Indenture.

Gulf Oil Corporation of Pennsylvania will join in the Indenture of Trust and therein will agree as follows:

(a) That it will cause to be maintained at all times collateral pledged with the Trustee having a market value at least equal to 130% of the principal amount of Bonds at any time outstanding.

(b) That on or before June 30, 1950, it will purchase all of the assets and assume all of the obligations of Union Gulf Corporation and that when said purchase is made the Bonds then outstanding shall be paid or called for redemption.

(c) That pending such purchase it will, under contract, operate and manage the properties of Union Gulf Corporation and its subsidiaries, meeting operating losses if any, maintaining the efficiency of said properties, and receiving all profits from the operations. For the use of said properties, Gulf Oil Corporation of Pennsylvania will pay the sum of $6,000,000.00 per year, in instalments of $2,000,000.00 each December 31st, April 30th, and June 30th, such payments to be made to The Union Trust Company of Pittsburgh, as agent for Union Gulf Corporation.

The contract of management and operation under (c) above will be pledged under the Indenture as security for the Bonds.

The Indenture will also provide substantially that as long as any of the Bonds are outstanding and unpaid, Union Gulf Corporation will not mortgage or pledge any of the shares of stock or other properties now or hereafter owned by it and it will not permit any mortgage to be created or pledge to be made by any of its subsidiary companies, unless it becomes the purchaser of the obligations secured by the mortgage or pledge and retains the same in its treasury, or pays the proceeds of the sale thereof, to the Trustee.

This provision shall not apply to any purchase money mortgage, or existing lien, on hereafter acquired property or the refunding of such obligations.

Sinking Fund

Union Gulf Corporation will covenant under the terms of the Trust Indenture to pay annually to the Trustee as a Sinking Fund on each May 1st, commencing May 1, 1932, $2,000,000 to be used for the purchase on each June 1st thereafter, upon tenders made during each May of Bonds at not exceeding the prevailing redemption price.

To the extent that this fund is not exhausted by tenders, Bonds shall be called by lot for redemption at the prevailing redemption price on the first day of July next following the date of each Sinking Fund payment.

Purpose of Issue

Proceeds of this issue are to be used to provide funds for the acquisition of properties, improvements and extensions thereto, and for other corporate purposes.

Assets and Earnings of Gulf Oil Corporation of Pennsylvania

Gulf Oil Corporation of Pennsylvania, which has covenanted and agreed as before mentioned, ranks among the leading oil companies of the world. As of December 31, 1929, total assets amounted to $686,722,371 while current liabilities and funded debt amounted to only $86,922,319.

General

The Capital Stock of Union Gulf Corporation will consist of 1,000 shares of $100 par value each. Gulf Oil Corporation of Pennsylvania will own 45% of the Capital Stock. The remaining 55% will be owned by certain stockholders of Gulf Oil Corporation of Pennsylvania under an agreement whereby they will not, while any of these Bonds are outstanding, sell or dispose of any part of such Stock except to Gulf Oil Corporation of Pennsylvania.

Union Gulf Corporation has agreed that no dividends will be paid on its Capital Stock while any of these Bonds are outstanding and that at any time on or before June 30th, 1950, upon request of the Gulf Oil Corporation of Pennsylvania, it will sell all of its assets to that Corporation at a price which will pay the debts of the Union Gulf Corporation and net its stockholders five percent on their investment.

99 and accrued interest to yield 5.08%

These Bonds are offered when, as and if issued and received by us and subject to approval of counsel. It is expected that temporary Bonds will be ready for delivery on or about July 1, 1930. All legal details pertaining to this issue will be passed upon by Messrs. Reed, Smith, Shaw & McClay, of Pittsburgh.

Scores of Issues Drop 4 to 20 Points to New Lows For Present Movement

NEW YORK, June 16—(AP.) Stock prices were crushed down to new low levels for the movement today, as the stock market entered the third week of almost steady decline. The unloading of stocks today was one of the most drastic of the week, and the decline in prices was by points; scores of issues dropped from 4 to about 20 points.

The selling showed signs of slackening during the early afternoon, when the ticker which had been nearly two and one-half hours in arrears began to catch up with floor prices. This was regarded as a good sign, but there have been the selling movement of the last several days was not the end without reaching a climax of heavy selling.

COMMODITIES BREAK

The decline in stocks was accompanied by fresh breaks in commodities, wheat and cotton selling off rapidly. Copper prices were again reduced. Cotton Exporters Inc. cut its price to 12.50 cents from 12.75, which brought the domestic price down to 12 cents generally. Week end business and trade reports were largely of a negative character, but sentiment in the steel trade if anything seemed a trifle more cheerful with prices showing some degree of stability.

Particularly encouraging was weakness in gasoline prices coming at a time when the petroleum industry seemed to be making rapid strides in its program to put production on a sound basis. Retail gasoline was cut 3 cents a gallon to 17 cents in California and wholesale prices at Chicago were said to display a weak tone.

The influence of the tariff measure upon the market was difficult of determination in view of the generally unsatisfactory character of business reports. In any case, President Hoover's emphasis upon the more favorable aspects of it gave no support to the market. It was rumored in brokerage circles that some interests displeased with the measure were heavy short sellers and that some liquidation appeared from traders who feared its influence on foreign trade. In general however it was regarded as of scant influence, for passage and executive approval was confidently forecast in Wall street several days ago.

STEEL SLUMPS

U. S. Steel declined more than 3 points to a new 1930 low below 160, after efforts were made to support it at that level.

American Telephone dropped 5 points to new low ground around 210. In all more than 150 issues reached new minimum levels for 1930 or longer, including a wide assortment of investment rails.

Shares losing 5 to 10 points included Westinghouse Electric, American Tobacco B, American Can, Union Pacific, American Water Works, Houston Oil, Worthington Pump, Standard Gas, United Aircraft, International Telephone and Byers. Allied Chemical dropped about 20 points, and Case declined sharply, again going below 200.

Westinghouse Gets Big Equipment Job

The Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company has received an order for electrical equipment from the Union Electric Light Power Company, of St. Louis, amounting to over $1,000,000.

The equipment is to be used in connection with the new hydro-electric project which is being constructed on the Osage River at Bagnell, Mo.

General Petroleum Gets Big Producer

LOS ANGELES, June 16.—General Petroleum Corporation's Ochsner No. 2 well in Section 20 in the north dome of Kettleman Hills, blew in with estimated production in excess of 6,000 barrels a day.

Reports from the field indicate this is the biggest producer in the Kettleman area.

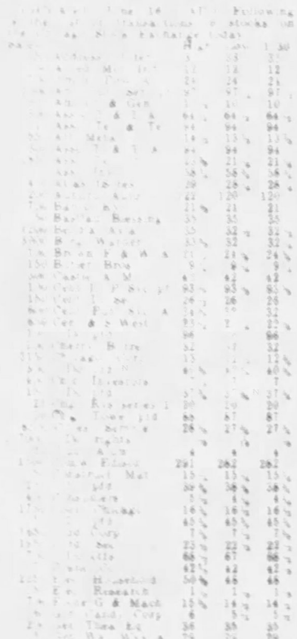
BERLIN, June 16.—Germany's exports in May rose to 1,096,459,000 marks compared with 976,704,000 in April. Imports for May dropped to 830,978,000 marks compared with 889,358,000 in April.

The surplus exports over imports were 266,000,000 marks compared with 88,000,000 in April.

No Cancellation For Belgian Firms

BRUSSELS, June 16.—The director of the General Society of Minerals today denied cancellation by Belgian firms of American copper orders. He added that negotiations between Belgian, German and British concerns still are being carried on.

CHICAGO STOCKS



GRAIN MARKET

CHICAGO, June 16 — Wide open fresh breaks in all grain values took place early today. Each delivery on the entire list of cereals outdid previous low price records for the season. General selling was associated with removal of drought damage extension in Canada and with tariff legislation at Washington. Opening 1 to 2c a bushel lower, wheat later showed but little power to rally. Corn, oats and provisions were also weak, with corn starting ⅛ to ¼c off, and subsequently holding near to the initial range.

Sharp setbacks in Liverpool wheat quotations today preceded the downturns in values here, and had the effect of intensifying bearish sentiment that prevailed.

Additional downturns in wheat prices here followed slightly transient recoveries that ensued after the downward swing at the opening. At this stage, the market was fluctuating nervously at about 12c a bushel lower than the prices which were current a year ago.

On today's sweep into a lower price range, September delivery of wheat as well as July went well below $1.00 a bushel.

NEW SHORTAGE NOW BEING PILED UP

Depletion of Stocks on Shelves in Time Will Turn Trade Situation

By MERRYLE STANLEY RUKEYSER.

NEW YORK, June 16.—Businessmen nowadays are a little bewildered by the short hand language of big business.

They are accustomed to looking at charts and graphs which are merely abstractions of the results of many varied transactions. Executives need to be reminded that big business is merely the summation of numerous small transactions among human beings of small means.

Well-managed great corporations, knowing this, test out their high sounding new ideas in Keokuk, Ia., or in Oshkosh, Wis., and if they click at these places they show more confidence than if the plans have been theoretically indorsed in New York by a professor of psychology or by a counsellor of public relations.

Accordingly, in seeking to judge the mechanism by which prosperity will be restored after the current correction, it is well to visualize the present status and state of mind of families you know. In a growing country like the United States depressions are always relatively short lived because consumption does not fall off as much as production and the net result is that the country gradually eats into accumulated stocks of merchandise. At present new shortages are in the making, and these in time will of themselves further the business situation.

INVENTORIES INVISIBLE

This time more than in any previous recession inventories have been to some extent invisible. There are statistics for stocks on the shelves of merchants and in the hands of manufacturers. But no one has adequate data on inventories in the hands of consumers, which were extremely high a year ago because of the overexploitation of consumer demand, as helped by the increased use of the instalment plan. But in the last year the psychology of the buying public changed and there has been a widespread tendency to use up goods already purchased. The passing of the months had led to the using up of this merchandise and in this sense, too, new shortages are in the making.

Even in fields where known supplies of materials are large, the extent of the over supply is exaggerated. It is largely because dealers are unwilling to stock up to the normal extent. As soon as confidence returns dealers begin to stock up, and the surplus supplies tend to disappear overnight. With the curative factor of cheap money gradually healing the economic system, the alert executive is on his toes to be ready for better business when it comes.

Meantime, the stock market is mercurial. Leadership is in the hands of professionals, who are purely opportunistic, ready to change their position quickly whenever it seems advantageous to do so. In the present situation, weak stock markets have been both a cause and an effect of pessimism. Although false optimism leads only to a fall, there is no business nutrition in the reverse policy of pessimism, which is a withering and decaying force. The capable executive tries to be an unbiassed reader of the business signposts, and yet, apart from temporary setbacks, the business executive knows that over long periods in the United States discriminating optimism yields dividends.

SHOULD CHANGE METHODS

In order to stem the receding tides of passenger traffic, the railroad should do distinctly novel things to captivate public fancy. The offering of improved facilities, such as the single-room sleeping compartment, is a step in the right direction.

Along this same line the Pullman Company has inaugurated a drive to induce affluent travelers to buy whole sections instead of merely lower berths, making an additional charge for the use of the sections equal only to one-half of the upper berth. The railroads in the new competition with automobiles and buses have been handicapped by a standpattism on the part at a time when competing agencies of transportation were progressively improving facilities.

Spokesmen for the railroads tell me that the Supreme Court decision nullifying the interpretation placed by the Interstate Commerce Commission on the Hoch-Smith resolution is the most significant railroad news of the year, yet the public with its mind focussed on the margin clerk, has paid no attention to it. Adopted five years ago by Congress for the purpose of helping the farmers through a rate structure intended to place agricultural products in a "most favored class," the Hoch-Smith resolution has been characterized by railroad men as the determining influence in all rate decisions of the I. C. C. since that time. The net effect has been to whittle down freight rates not only in favor of agriculture but in favor of any depressed industry, making the railroads the philanthropic balance wheel between prosperity and depression.

NEW SHORTAGE NOW BEING PILED UP

Depletion of Stocks on Shelves in Time Will Turn Trade Situation

By MERRYLE STANLEY RUKEYSER.

NEW YORK, June 16.—Businessmen nowadays are a little bewildered by the shorthand language of big business.

They are accustomed to looking at charts and graphs which are merely abstractions of the results of many varied transactions. Executives need to be reminded that big business is merely the sum total of numerous small transactions among human beings of small means.

Well-managed great corporations, knowing this, test out their high sounding new ideas in Keokuk, Ia., or in Oshkosh, Wis., and if they click at those places they show more confidence than if the plans have been theoretically indorsed in New York by a professor of psychology or by a counsellor of public relations.

Accordingly in seeking to judge the mechanism by which prosperity will be restored after the current correction, it is well to visualize the present status and state of mind of families you know. In a growing country like the United States depressions are always relatively short lived because consumption does not fall off as much as production and the net result is that the country gradually eats into accumulated stocks of merchandise. At present new shortages are in the making, and these in time will of themselves turn the business situation.

INVENTORIES INVISIBLE

This time more than in any previous recession inventories have been to some extent invisible. There are statistics for stocks on the shelves of merchants and in the hands of manufacturers. But no one has adequate data on inventories in the hands of consumers, which were extremely high a year ago because of the overexploitation of consumer demand, as helped by the increased use of the installment plan. But in the last year the psychology of the buying public changed and there has been a widespread tendency to use up goods already purchased. The passing of the months had led to the using up of this merchandise and in this sense, too, new shortages are in the making.

Even in fields where known supplies of materials are large, the extent of the over supply is exaggerated. It is largely because dealers are unwilling to stock up to the normal extent. As soon as confidence returns, dealers begin to stock up, and the surplus supplies tend to disappear overnight. With the curative factor of cheap money gradually healing the economic system, the alert executive is on his toes to be ready for better business when it comes.

Meantime, the stock market is mercurial. Leadership is in the hands of professionals, who are purely opportunistic, ready to change their position quickly whenever it seems advantageous to do so. In the present situation, weak stock markets have been both a cause and an effect of pessimism. Although false optimism leads only to a fall, there is no business nutrition in the reverse policy of pessimism, which is a withering and decaying force. The capable executive tries to be an unbiassed reader of the business signposts, and yet, apart from temporary setbacks, the business executive knows that over long periods in the United States discriminating optimism yields dividends.

SHOULD CHANGE METHODS

In order to stem the receding tides of passenger traffic, the railroad should do distinctly novel things to captivate public fancy. The offering of improved facilities, such as the single-room sleeping compartment, is a step in the right direction.

Along this same line the Pullman Company has inaugurated a drive to induce affluent travelers to buy whole sections instead of merely lowe, berths, making an additional charge for the use of the sections equal only to one-half of the upper berth. The railroads in the new competition with automobiles and buses have been handicapped by a stand-pattism on the part at a time when competing agencies of transportation were progressively improving facilities.

Spokesmen for the railroads tell me that the Supreme Court decision nullifying the interpretation placed by the Interstate Commerce Commission on the Hoch-Smith resolution is the most significant railroad news of the year, yet the public, with its mind focussed on the margin clerk, has paid no attention to it. Adopted five years ago by Congress for the purpose of helping the farmers through a rate structure intended to place agricultural products in a "most favored class," the Hoch-Smith resolution has been characterized by railroad men as the determining influence in all rate decisions of the I. C. C. since that time. The net effect has been to whittle down freight rates not only in favor of agriculture but in favor of any depressed industry, making the railroads the philanthropic balance wheel between prosperity and depression.

DAILY TRUE STORY

"Now what do you think?" asks my partner as he parks his imitation Homburg over my pearl gray fedora on the office hatrack.

"Listen, Sam," I says, "I got into this real estate racket to be able to exist without thinking."

"I know. He answers waving an arm as wide as a lopin' camel. I don't see that around here. It's only Bozo. Is that baby dumb!

"You can get that information by looking at him without the wear and tear of thinking. In the words of a certain ol' Ethiopian folk tales, dumbness is the most thinks this Bozo hasn't anything else!"

Sam stared at me.

"Jack," he said, "what did you sell? You never talk like that except when you make a sale."

"That's it, pal, of the Park Ridge."

Sam beamed and shook hands with me.

"You got rich. I used all my skill and best power and technique trying to sell that and when my back is turned five minutes some sap gallops up and begs to buy it from him."

"Superior, as I said," gasping my head and trying to look dignified.

"That tells me about Bozo."

"Look here, Sam," I says. "I mention my couple of skill and you say it reminds you of Bozo. Now what so, or what's crack is that to make me a partner?"

"You got it wrong, Jack. I'onna level. I thought you would know you couldn't be as dumb as Bozo."

"Apology accepted. What has Bozo done to you and sold the plot which you intend to put the park and Sam as a site for a glue factory?"

Sam chuckled and said "he did."

Bozo Arrives

Our office door flew open and crashed against a filing case.

"Wee gettin' dum joor and what ho!"

You have guessed it. It was J. Montefiore Bozelman—him brief. Bozo.

I looked at him sourly. His moon face was beaming.

"Well, Bozo, what else have you to offer?" I asked.

"Lissen, Jack, did Sammy tell you?"

Get this right. J. Montefiore Bozelman worked for us—at least he was on our pay roll.

We gave him a drawing account of 25 real betties per week. Considering the office stationery he used, the tooth he took up, out time he wasted and our personal smokes he helped himself to, he was worth to us about 35 betties less than the 25 we paid him. We took him in solely to please his mother. And here he dashes into our more or less private sanctum and hails us as Jack and Sammy!

"No, Mister Bozelman, Sammy didn't tell me and don't you tell me that you have made a sale, because I'm already threatened with high blood pressure."

"No spoofing. I've got a swell idea," and as he spoke he lifted a fist full of cigarets from the little humidor on my desk.

Sam slipped me a solemn little wink.

"Whose is it?" I demanded.

"Just a minute, Jack," Sam said, pulling such a serious face that I knew he was giving me the office to lay off and get what was coming. "Mr. Bozelman here thinks it would be a good idea for us to sell Mickey Acres—"

"Come on, never call it that again. I have a perfectly swell name for it. Shore Eden. Now if I can sell that tract—er—"

Bozo paused for words. Sam couldn't hold back a grin that made him look like a Kewpie.

"If you can sell that tract, Bozo," I told him with emphasis, "if you can sell that calling it Quagmire or Mosquito Dell or anything else we'll take you into partnership!"

"Now, that's talking high, wide and handsome, Jack, and I accept your offer."

Bozo Plans

Bozo slipped a dozen of my cigarets into his pocket, lighted one with my lighter, started to pocket that and after being reminded of his error, walked to the door.

"So long, partner."

With that he sauntered away, neglecting to close the door. Sam and I watched the Bozo step at Miss Foster's desk to drop some light prattle of conversation, saw her give him the customary icy turndown, and then he went outside and sat on one of the office deck chairs on the porch to finish the cigarets and work out his plans.

"Hot, what? Can you tie that, Jack?"

"You never can tell, Sam, a man as dumb as he is has to be smart to live, he'll think up something funnier before the week is over."

"Has to be dumb to be smart—has to be—"

Sam hesitated and looked at me anxiously.

"You wouldn't get that one, Sam, it's a paradox."

We both glanced at the big wall map of our development. Down in one corner was an untinted portion along the shore. When we bought the acreage we were now struggling to convert into a homeseeker's paradise, we had to take the section shown on our map as untinted. It was also unmentioned to our prospective clients. Sam and I called it "Mucky Acres."

From all of this you get some idea of what a laugh Bozo's plan gave us. We couldn't even give the land away for a duck farm.

We had a lively salesman with Sam and myself he was all we needed. But poor Mrs. Bozelman, who had been forced to sell most of her land when the crash came after her husband's death begged us so hard to give her a job. Mostly a position, with us that we took him on. We had certainly driven a sharp bargain with her for spot cash and so Bozo came to work for us.

I use the word "work" here merely to indicate that he was on the payroll. Bozo's idea of selling real estate to prospective builders was to sit comfortably in front of our porch chairs at the little Swiss chalet style office we built on the property and if anyone came up and offered him to take a cut' fresh check for a few house lots he would do so. Otherwise he would just sit and smoke.

Sam and I were game. We were keeping on through the season. But by the next season we would regret that we had no opening.

Heiress Calls

Bozo tried to date up our pretty secretary much to her amusement.

Miss Foster, by the open window, was wracked by Bozo's urgent request that she go places with him that evening.

"Listen, Mr. Bozelman," we heard her say. "I wouldn't go places with you. I wouldn't go if they were giving away diamond necklaces. Is that clear—"

Haw, haw!

It was a feminine voice from the drive outside.

Oh, Monty!"

What ho, Polly—what ho!" With that Bozo galloped down across our trim little lawn to greet the classiest little dame in the classiest imported roadster that anyone could sight in 1,000 summer seasons.

Good land!" exclaimed Miss Foster.

Some girl feels like getting a good laugh," I told Sam.

Miss Foster heard me.

Do you know who she is, Mr. Ames?" she asked.

I didn't.

"Polly Huggleston!"

"What!" yells Sam.

"No less, Mr. Ames. She's back from Europe now. She had to come back, didn't you read? You know, to get those fifty millions left her."

"Ninety millions," Sam corrected.

However did Bozo get to know her?" Miss Foster asked.

Search me, honey."

Sam chuckled. Miss Foster turned pink and I coughed to hide my embarrassment. We tried to be business-like in office hours but it was a secret with the three of us, and probably Sam's wife knew it, that just as soon as we cleaned up a decent profit from this acreage development Miss Foster was to become Mrs. Jack Ames.

Bozo showed up next day.

"I intended to get back, but we met some friends over at Polly's aunt's."

We managed to get through the day without going bankrupt, Bozo said.

He disappeared that afternoon.

Gilroy, our live-wire salesman, reported that night of seeing Bozo and Polly Huggleston off about in a mighty snappy little yawl. He made some sarcastic remark to the effect that Bozo wasn't so dumb—he could play all day and draw down a salary.

To Sell Property

"You know how that is, Gilroy," I told him.

During the next three weeks I saw Bozo three times.

You guessed it—he showed up on the three pay days. About the middle of the fourth week I was fed up.

Listen, Sam," I said. "Twenty-five dollars a twenty-five dollars. Once a week for a month it's a hundred bucks. Regardless of the shattering effect on the real estate profession, Bozo is through."

Sam nodded. And just then Bozo intervened.

Listen, Jack—listen, Sam—I can sell that place, you know, the kind of stamp place you sap call Mucky Acres, the section I named Shore Eden, in fact, it's all ready to sell. All I want is to have that little scrap back of it almost three acres. I've been talking with some swell guys. They can put through the ridge and drain the whole thing into Turtle Creek. What's the figure on it?"

Why, about—"

What's buying?" I cut in before Sam could make a break about price.

"I am," says Bozo.

I would have gladly sold the mess before Bozo sprung his plans at $5 an acre and feel ashamed of sticking the buyer, but I had a hunch at last. I knew Bozo couldn't buy enough land to make a tulip bed.

"Five thousand an acre," I said, just to be funny and work down to about a hundred an acre.

"I told Polly you'd want about that—it's a go!"

What do you mean, you told Polly—you mean Miss Huggleston?"

"Sure, we're going to be married and we're going to make a wonderful place of Shore Eden with a yacht inlet and a big home—we've been looking at plans—I'll put the deal through for you 'oys!"

Well, sir, Bozo married the heiress, he paid five grand an acre for that dismal swamp, and this made it possible for Miss Foster to become Mrs. Jack Ames—which is all about Bozo for the present.

GEORGE, I HAVEN'T MUCH SYMPATHY FOR YOU IN YOUR ATTEMPT TO JUST TAKE MONEY AWAY FROM THOSE MOVIE FOLKS. IS THAT YOUR IDEA OF JUSTICE?
IS IT THEIR IDEA OF JUSTICE TO THROW A LOT OF FIRE-CRACKERS INTO MY NERVOUS SYSTEM AND THEN IRON THINGS OUT BY HANDING ME A PASS FOR TWO SEATS THAT, I KNOW, ARE BEHIND A POST?
THEY EXPLAINED THAT THE SITUATION WAS JUST A BIG MISTAKE.
AND THEY WERE VERY NICE ABOUT IT.
THEY'LL BE NICE WHILE EXPLAINING THINGS TO A JURY, TOO. AND THE REASON YOU'RE SO CALM ABOUT THIS THING IS BECAUSE YOU HAVEN'T HEARD THAT LAWYER DESCRIBE WHAT HAPPENED TO US. YOU DON'T KNOW HALF OF IT. A TENTH. WAIT UNTIL YOU READ THE PAPERS THAT LAWYER DREW UP. YOU'LL FEEL LIKE A REFUGEE.

United States Senate has unanimously demanded removal of all the new dial telephones from the Senate office building and installation of old-fashioned phones.

Conservatives to the last.

Of course it is natural for the Senate to want to lag behind the rest of the country in any phase of progress.

A Senate that is baffled by a modern telephone ought to show more humility when grappling with a real complication such as the tariff.

We would appreciate the return of the papers dated June 3 when convenient, but it is not necessary.

MEDITATION

(It's Quite a Trick. Try it Sometime.)

Life guardians upon the beach
Seem satisfied, both one and each,
That founded well is all the pride
With which they contemplate the tide.
But I can't see how life-guards win
The air of self-respecting men—
It seems to me they'd blush for shame.
And take up the insurance game,
When they survey with faces grave,
The fools they hang around to save,

Compromise Is Expected In Traffic Plan Muddle

There will be general satisfaction if Council shall not commit itself so thoroughly to the so-called T plan of caring for traffic in the Liberty-Penn-Grant area, in connection with the Pennsylvania terminal improvement, that a change later to realize some of the benefits of proposed plan Z will be impossible.

It is said that a change of heart has come to some councilmen who were ready to put through an ordinance based on plan T. They do not oppose plan Z, which provides for traffic separation, while plan T merely contemplates a grade treatment of the problem, but have favored the latter because it is less costly.

However, there has been so much expert opinion expressed about the certainty of plan T failing to be able to permit satisfactory movement of traffic that Council now is said to feel that it should only be adopted with provision to adapt to it some of the improvements promised under plan Z, when additional money is available.

So it is expected that a new ordinance will appear this week and that it will embody provision for making possible a modified plan Z whenever the city finds itself in a financial position to make the change. While it is too bad that we cannot have a scheme favored by the Better Traffic Commission, the Department of City Planning and the special committee appointed by Council to make a study of the matter, it is well to know that a blunder is not to be made permanent.

$125,000 to Shadyside Extends Its Usefulness

The commencement announcement that Shadyside Academy receives a donation of $125,000 for a new dormitory at the Fox Chapel road campus is pleasing to the general public as it must be to those who control the destinies of this important institution. It is the gift of Harry W. Croft, chairman of the board of the Harbison-Walker Refractories Company, and is one of the several large donations made to Pittsburgh institutions in the last year.

It will increase the efficiency of Shadyside, an old, well-known and popular institution, which, several years ago, in order to expand, was compelled to transfer the greater part of its student body to new buildings on the outskirts of the city. It is a "prep" school of high standing whose usefulness has greatly extended in recent years and ultimately outgrew the limitations of the old Morewood avenue structure, still in use for younger boys.

Our schools are the fountain of our inspiration and Shadyside Academy is a leader among junior schools of the state.

Oakland Civic Center in More Beautiful Setting

There are still several uncouth, unsightly spots in the Oakland civic center, in which Pittsburgh takes such pride; but with the fine example set by A. W. Mellon, R. B. Mellon, C. D. Armstrong, Howard Heinz and James H. Lockhart, they will hardly be permitted to endure much longer.

Thanks to the public spirit of these five citizens, Carnegie Institute is to be given a more appropriate setting. They have bought land on Forbes street, opposite the institute—land on which several shabby one-story frame stores stand—and turned it over to the city. And it is announced that the old buildings, so incongruous in that neighborhood, will be razed at once, and part of the land used to increase the width of Forbes street and the rest landscaped. Thus an eyesore will be turned into a beauty spot.

One does not have to be wealthy to contribute to the attractiveness of the city. It may be done by planting a few flowers in the lawn or by removing the rubbish from a vacant lot.

Capitalistic Russia

And Bolshevistic America.

Capitalistic America and Communistic Russia are "sisters under the skin," believes James Truslow Adams, American historian and sociologist.

Few will agree with Mr. Adams, but few can prove him wrong when he says:

"Both are heading toward exactly the same point—mass production, mass education, a general leveling of culture, the most crass materialism, the death of the individual and all he represents, substituting therefor powerful centralized control over everything."

Much to think about in that. It will not please our captains of industry to be told that they have some things in common with the Bolsheviki. Nor will it please the Bolsheviki to hear that they have some things in common with the capitalists.

Picture Henry Ford's embarrassment if he were compared to Lenin. And picture Lenin's—if he were alive— at being compared to Henry Ford.

Tinted Teeth

The Latest From London

London's latest fad—so the papers say—is tinted teeth. The old-fashioned pearl white variety is out. Red, blue, mauve, violet are coming in. The color scheme can be modified at will. It can be changed to match the costume. The smart woman can begin the day with one shade and end it with another. Certain effects are appropriate for weddings, others for the races, still others for funerals.

It sounds interesting. No doubt the novelty will, in time, cross the Atlantic and be taken up in our cities. Eventually it will spread over the country and move across the Pacific. And when it reaches the South Sea Islands it will be right where it started from. Tinting teeth is an old South Sea custom. It has been done in those parts for generations. London, doubtless, got the idea there.

Thus does "the very latest" turn out to be, on examination, only a few hundred years old. That is the way with novelties. Possibly there is something new under the sun. But nobody has ever found it. And the chances are nobody ever will.

"Bugs" Baer Says:

Desperate Gambling

Up until last month the writer has never gambled on any sporting event in his life. Many years ago in Washington we wrote that if you must bet then gamble on yacht races because the yachts cannot whisper.

But the lure of the Calcutta sweeps takes was too much for a morale that had been weakened by dropping aspirin tablets in clam chowder.

"Bugs" Baer

All that we heard up around the Friars Club was the magnificent sum to be won by plastering a dollar on the sweeps.

First prize was a king's ransom. After the race we learned that no kings have been kidnaped lately.

Capt. Irving O'Hay, lecturer, soldier of fortune and picker of three-hoss parleys, urged us all to sink a smacker on the Calcutta sweeps. The cap loves a parley like a Hindu loves to riot. If he ever meets with an accident we know that he will parley the hosses on the ambulance.

The only person we could find who was willing to sell a ticket was Maj. Alexander. He had two and sold us one. There was an agreement if we won we were to give the maje half of the million dollars and the maje was to vice versa.

It was a verbal agreement with benefit of dictaphones. After buying the ducat we began to wonder if the maje would keep his agreement if he won.

By the wrinkles that accumulated on the maje's pan we knew that he was thinking the same thing about us.

They ran the race and Blenheim came bouncing down the lane of shattered hopes like a leopard on parade. Our ticket was about as valuable as a rain-maker in jail.

A boy in Brooklyn won a bagful of golden cabbage. A man out West grabbed another load of certified hay and lost his voice. A laborer in England tapped the till for half-a-million.

When they asked the laborer what he was going to do with the rich gravy he said, "I'm going to have six more inches put on the handle of this pick-ax."

That was his idea of luxury and comfort. And we think he's right. We didn't win anything and the major is still our friend. We never intend to bet again on anything that creeps, crawls or skitters sideways.

If we had won that sweeps we would have indulged a lifelong dream of buying an umbrella with two handles and a straw hat that wouldn't turn yellow the third week.

THE SOCIAL SCIENCES

By Archibald Henderson

There is a group of sciences, the older disciplines, known as the "natural sciences." These have to do with the phenomena of nature of the external world, and are largely devoted to describing the universe and relating the earth thereto.

It is erroneous to say that the natural sciences deal with the external world in the sense of something superficial, something on the surface of the world. For natural science deals with the obscure reactions and hidden laws of nature, whether it has to do with the inner structure of the atom, the orbit of planet X or the cause of gravitation.

In addition to the natural sciences there are the newer sciences, which we may call the mental or cultural sciences. Many of these departments of human knowledge have had to make a severe fight for recognition as sciences, with authentic scientific discipline. These social sciences may be roughly classified as politics, economics, history, jurisprudence, all of which have existed for centuries, and the newer as ects—anthropology, penology, sociology. In addition come the semi-social science (ethics and education), which are social in origin, philosophy and psychology, and which have acquired a social content. Lastly come the sciences which have steadily growing social implications—biology, geography, art and linguistics.

A new project, which bears the stamp of American genius and initiative, is the "Encyclopedia of Social Sciences," a huge work in 15 volumes now preparing under the direction of Prof. R. A. Seligman, of Columbia University, one of the world's leading authorities in his vast and extensive field. The first volume has just appeared; and the preface bears this arresting observation:

"The older sciences had such a great mass of phenomena to arrange and to interpret that each of them was busy in pursuing its own problems. The newer sciences found enough to do in staking out their own fields and in indicating their claim to existence as separate disciples. The result was that all the sciences continued in watertight compartments, and it was thought that the greatest progress could be made by emphasizing differences rather than similarities."

There was much to be said for this point of view in the early years of development; but there has come a slow realization that, while there are all kinds of associations and many angles from which human contacts can profitably be studied, it is a mistake to separate them permanently into independent sections. The sentiment being is, after all, a whole; it is unwarrantable to hold that any one phase of his activity is completely divorced from the others. Especially is this true when we consider the relation of the individual to the group and endeavor to comprehend the subtle influences reciprocally exerted by the various manifestations of common activity. The conclusions reached by the separate sciences were gradually recognized, therefore, as incomplete and provisional, and the demand went forth to attempt a better analysis through a more comprehensive synthesis.

∴ LISTEN, WORLD ∴

By Elsie Robinson

Never before has there been so much smartness in the world . . . and never before has smartness been worth so little.

To begin with, most smartness isn't smartness at all, it's simply SMARTINESS. It is easy for any normal mind to acquire smartiness. The thing's in the air. Newspapers, radios, magazines and movies pour smartiness into us at every turn. Automobiles and aeroplanes pep us up. Confession stories wise us up. Mail order catalogs dress us up.

The average youngster knows more about practical mechanics at 8 than his grandfather knew at 80. By the time he is 18 he has learned all the popular catchwords of psychology, politics, finance and science. At 20, grandpa, in his slower, quieter times, was uninformed and inarticulate. He could do a great many things and think a great many things, but he had no "line," no trick gestures. But at 20, grandson, without much thought or effort, is an eight-cylinder wise-cracker. And unfortunately, that is what he's apt to remain. Having acquired smartiness, he thinks it is enough. He never progresses beyond it. And that smartiness proves his doom.

A famous criminologist made this amazing statement recently: "It is a great mistake to think that the majority of our youthful delinquents are simple-minded. They are not. Instead, they are apt to be mentally precocious."

They are precocious because their swift, stimulating age has made them so. Naturally they despise slower, more timid people and the code they have created. Why should they, the Smarties, bend to such codes—obey laws made for stupid cowards? They don't need laws or discipline. THEY CAN BEAT THE GAME! And so they try to beat the game. But of course they can't—and you know the rest of the story. Thousands go to jail. Other thousands drift impatiently from one job to another, or one marriage to another, always at odds with their world. And still others loaf around, sponging on their relatives, waiting for "something to turn up."

Idle, restless, unhappy, peevish Smarties—our modern world is full of them. And they're pitiful as well as contemptible. They are the victims of a great delusion. They mistake their easy sophistication and facile efficiency for real knowledge, real ability. They are like colorful flowers grown under glass—brilliant to appearance but spongy at heart and wilting very quickly under the air of reality. But the Smarties do not realize this about themselves. And they honestly cannot see why they should endure the discipline grandpa endured, when "they know as much at 16 as he did at 60."

But of course, they DON'T know as much. They know many flashy facts about their world but they do not know themselves and they cannot control themselves. Self-knowledge and self-control are as hard to attain in 1930 as in 1830. IT STILL TAKES THE SAME AMOUNT OF HARD KNOCKS TO MAKE A SMARTY SMART.

By ALINE MICHAELIS.

Some Memories

SUCH HOSTS of things once held most dear
Have passed and left no trace,
Forgotten now the smile and tear
On many a once-loved face.

Forgotten, too, the by-gone goals
Which in times past meant all;
Time takes desire with other tolls,
Great longings shrink to small.

Familiar lanes and tasks and friends
Are like a tale long-told:
Yet strangely often as day ends,
Still glows some memories' gold.

One hand upon the turning knob,
One footfall down the street . . .
Long past, still sets the heart a-throb,
Still stirs the pulses' beat!

We keep one look a loved one shared,
Though triumphs come to naught;
Strange, how some memories are snared
Within the web of thoughts!

THE SCIENCE OF LIFE

By H. G. WELLS
In Collaboration With
Prof. Julian Huxley and George P. Wells.

Neither heredity nor environment is the more important—because both are essential. The best constitution in the world, of bean or man, would come to nothing at a temperature 50 degrees C. lower or 50 degrees C. higher than usual.

And not even the best imaginable conditions could force a wild bean to yield seeds as large as those of a good cultivated variety, could make an African pigmy grow six feet high, or turn a mentally defective child into a mathematician or a successful lawyer.

H. G. Wells

We turn now to a third kind of variation. We have written as if the germ-plasm were absolutely fixed and unalterable in these pure lines. And indeed heredity is from its very essence a conservative force.

It goes back to the old, old story. Beans beget beans, dogs beget dogs, men beget men, generation after generation.

But heredity is not absolutely stable. The germ-plasm is ever so slightly restless; it shifts now and then and changes. It turns over in its sleep, so to speak, and the race alters a little.

Twice, while he was carrying out his elaborate painstaking experiments, did Johannsen detect such a change in the chromosomes.

Twice did he witness a little jerk of evolutionary progress. On each occasion the progeny of one bean gave an average bean weight a little different from that of the pure line to which it belonged. In one case the new beans were lighter, in the other heavier.

Though the difference was not great, it was constant in the resulting strain, generation after generation. Something had happened in the chromosomes, and the germ plasm was permanently changed. This kind of variation biologists call mutation. Mutation is here a scientific term, and not an ordinary word: it is the special name for a variation of the germ-plasm itself.

But before we leave our beans let us pause for a second and point a moral. For they teach us something about method.

If Johannsen had worked with a handful of commercial bean seed lumped together, it would have appeared as if selection did produce a hereditary effect, and the fact that single mutations occasionally cropped up could never have been established.

It was precisely a realization of the value of this same individual method, which, together with patience, clear thinking and a certain good fortune in the choice of material, led the Abbe Mendel to the discoveries on which are based all our modern and intimate knowledge of heredity.

With those discoveries our next section will deal.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, June 16.—Diary of a modern Pepys: Up and abroad, meeting Mayor Walker and Dudley Field Malone in the elevator and walked a short way with them. And to my dentist, fully reconciled to having a tooth drawn but changed my mind awaiting him and slipped out.

In the afternoon with Monta Bell to watch him direct a picture awhile and home to my tasks. This day my diary reveals that eight years ago I drove to the country with Peter B. and Helen Kyne and returned full of determination to write a play, which was never begun.

To an eating place on Tenth avenue for dinner and the food excellent but the waiter so impertinent I could eat little. But when I rebuked him he was so apologetic. I was sorry and bestowed a double sized tip. So walking through the hub-bub of Paddy's market and home to find a gay postcard from Rube Goldberg in Hollywood.

Ed C. Hill, Park Row's Brummel and able reporter, was touching the high spots of Europe recently for his paper. He was in a Deauville cafe and noticing the King of Spain alone in a corner said: "Will you join me King in an aperitif?" His Majesty seemed pleased and they had another. Perhaps even more. Upon departing they had reached the stage of calling each other "Alf" and "Ed." Hill's managing editor, Keats Speed, heard about it from others but Hill never mentioned the incident.

The other day he inquired of Hill: "Why didn't you tell me about meeting King Alphonso in Deauville?"

"A king," replied Hill, "is just an incident in the life of a good reporter."

High wire and tight rope walkers, with few exceptions, are heavy drinkers. I am told of a circus performer who often staggers on the way to do his act. Yet when his feet touch the wire he becomes the personification of cat-like grace.

I find myself more and more under self control. Last night I slipped only one of those quill toothpicks in sanitized paper in my vest pocket while dining out.

Personal nomination for the most beautiful feminine profile in New York—Lucy Virginia Long.

Ill luck is reputed to trail men for whom fast horses are named. A race track follower recounts 10 so honored who met with tragedy—thus adding another silly to the folly of superstition.

An exploitation trick of fortune tellers, is after a prominent person meets disaster, to circulate a report the mishap had been foretold by one of their guild.

The late Arnold Rothstein was supposed to have been warned to avoid telephone calls summoning him to a hotel. He was a gambler with all the inherent superstitions of the calling and had he been so warned it is not likely he would have fallen so easily into the death trap set for him.

A crystal gazer, with an evasive and predatory eye, drifted to our town in a houseboat "The White Swan." For a half dollar he was transported into the silence and said I was destined to become a great merchant, marry a brunette and be the papa of six children. But something has confused my destiny.

Sandwich men are becoming very Park avenue. Shuffling figures who roamed the curb encased turtle like in signs are being supplanted by well dressed men who carry gaudy silken banners. It was discovered the ultra ideas attracted 100 to 1 over the old.

From Miss Carolyn: "I was amused watching you in a restaurant Thursday night. A waiter dropped a sprig of celery in your hair, spilled a little soup in your lap and when he came toward you with a big silver platter of fish you suddenly disappeared."

I know when to quit!

On my first week in New York a man who had lived here many years cornered me to give a little advice. "Don't do like most New Yorkers," he said, "and after the first year cut away from friends and never see them again."

It just occurs to me I haven't seen that bird in 15 years.

"We are six students in a journalism school," says a round robin letter, "and would like to drop around to your cage sometime to say 'Hello'."

Come around dusk. I begin swinging by my tail then.

From an editorial: "Every cigar store telephone booth has its hog." Also a few snails.

Worst Story I Have Heard Today

By WILL ROGERS.

This is one of the old stories they used to tell about women. I reckon it's out of date now, when so many men hardly know what the inside of the bank looks like until they have to go there to borrow money. Lots of home women do all the banking for the family now, but they didn't back in Jefferson's time, when this story started.

This Mrs. Roe come into the bank to cash a check, but the teller told her she would have to be identified.

"Oh, that's right," she says, "My friend, Mrs. Ann here, will identify me, and it'll be all right."

"Yes," says the teller, "but I'm afraid we don't know Mrs. Ann here."

"Oh, I never thought of that. What's your name, please?"

"Mine? Why, my name is Keller."

"Well, pardon me, Mr. Keller, for not introducing you before. This is Mr. Keller, Mrs. Ann. Now, everything will be all right, and you can cash the check, can't you?"

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

Perhaps one of the reasons you are so tired in your daily work is due to the manner in which you perform it.

Too tense in your thought and in your muscles.

Perhaps you rush at things after a period of wasting time.

You must hurry to accomplish what is expected of you.

Something goes wrong, you are delayed, become nervous and lose your temper and probably make more errors that further annoy you.

Too many persons prefer to work feverishly and shorten the time of application rather than concentrate and work more slowly and steadily.

Naturally a forced speed wears out the human machine.

On the other hand, older men may accomplish more in a week than the young fellows because they have learned better than to work spasmodically.

The younger fellow may do more in a given short time, but in the long run the one who is steady and sure wins in production, quality and accomplishment.
